JULIUS BAER GRUPPE AG AGM - 10-04-2025

1.2. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed.

CHARTER COMMUNICATIONS INC AGM - 22-04-2025

4.. Shareholder Resolution: Political Donations

Proponent Shareholder: New York State Common Retirement Fund

Proponent's argument: The New York State Common Retirement Fund requests that Charter Communications produce a semiannual political expenditures report detailing its policies, procedures, and actual monetary and non-monetary contributions used to influence elections or referendums. The proposal explicitly excludes lobbying. The proponent argues that undisclosed political spending can harm corporate value and reputation, especially when funds are channeled through trade associations, Super PACs, 527 committees, or "social welfare" groups that may support political activities misaligned with Charter's corporate values. It references a Conference Board report highlighting risks in the current political climate where increased scrutiny makes transparency critical. Charter's current policy, adopted in 2024, is seen as inadequate. Unlike peers such as AT&T, Comcast, and Verizon, Charter lacks comprehensive disclosure on trade association payments and other tax-exempt contributions used for electoral purposes. This leaves shareholders unable to assess alignment between Charter's political spending and its business strategy, priorities, or risks. Greater transparency is requested to enhance accountability and governance.

Company's response: Charter's Board recommends voting against the proposal, asserting that current disclosures and the 2024 Political Activities Policy Statement provide sufficient transparency. The Board argues the requested report would be unnecessarily burdensome, costly, and of limited additional value to shareholders. They emphasise that political contributions are made prudently and align with shareholder interests, independent of personal politics of directors or executives. Charter participates in the political process to safeguard against regulatory risks that may harm its business. Additional disclosures, especially regarding trade associations and tax-exempt groups, could expose Charter to competitive disadvantages or activist pressure. The Board also notes that similar proposals have previously received low shareholder support (22.01% in 2024). Releasing further information may not enhance shareholder value and could aid competitors or adversarial stakeholders. Therefore, Charter maintains that its existing disclosures appropriately balance transparency and business interests without the need for expanded reporting.

PIRC analysis: The transparency and completeness of the company's reporting on political spending is to the benefit of the company and its shareholders. As reputational risk is increasingly under scrutiny from shareholders and stakeholders and the financial impact from non-traditionally financial issues is becoming more evident, companies are expected to show that they live up to their policy, strategy and commitments, as well as to be open about political spending, in order to avoid any suspicion and any damage that may cause to the company's reputation, that the company may be using shareholders' funds in an inappropriate way to gain undue influence, or that the company may adopt a conduct different from what it commits to. The request for a report is considered reasonable. It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

BANK OF AMERICA CORPORATION AGM - 22-04-2025

2.. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: BEB.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 73.3, Abstain: 0.4, Oppose/Withhold: 26.3,

4.. Amend Existing Long Term Incentive Plan

The Board proposes to amend and restate the Bank of America Corporation Equity Plan (BACEP) to: (i) increase the number of shares available for grant by 100 million; (ii) cap total annual compensation for non-employee directors at $1 million, including cash and equity, with exceptions for donations and special services; and (iii) extend the Plan's expiration. Awards will vest over a three-year period, and quantified performance targets have been set, which is above market practice. However, the potential total reward raises concerns over excessiveness, and the three-year vesting is considered short term. Participation is subject to the discretion of the Compensation and Benefits Committee, which may grant awards to selected employees and directors. The inclusion of non-executive directors is misaligned with good governance, as variable pay may compromise their independent oversight role.

5.. Shareholder Resolution: Requesting the Nomination of more Director Candidates than Board Seats

Proponent's argument: The proponent, Jing Zhao, recommends that Bank of America undertake a reform of its Board election process by allowing more director candidates to be nominated than there are seats to be filled. The supporting statement suggests that corporate boards in the United States lack democratic accountability and resemble a form of oligarchy. Reference is made to Aristotle's Politics and the increasing disparity in wealth, including a CEO pay ratio of 230:1 at the company in 2023, as evidence of systemic imbalance. The proponent argues that excessive executive compensation contributes to social and economic instability and that shareholders at several major companies have recently opposed high pay packages. It is proposed that allowing shareholders to choose from a wider pool of candidates would lead to more representative and accountable governance. The resolution further recommends that any implementation of this change be made in accordance with existing contractual obligations and with flexibility in how the company structures the nomination process.

Company's response: The Company is not supportive of the proposal. It is stated that the current director nomination and selection framework is effective in identifying highly qualified individuals through a process informed by best practices and regulatory expectations. The Board expresses concern that increasing the number of candidates beyond available seats could disrupt Board cohesion and reduce its overall effectiveness. It is noted that such a framework might discourage capable candidates from standing for election and could introduce inefficiencies in the evaluation process. Shareholders are already provided with mechanisms to influence Board composition, including a proxy access bylaw which permits eligible shareholders to nominate directors. The Company also points to a majority voting standard and director resignation policy as mechanisms ensuring accountability. In view of these factors, it is concluded that the requested change is unnecessary and may not serve shareholders' best interests. The Board therefore recommends that shareholders vote against the proposal.

PIRC recommendation: It is considered that permitting the nomination of more director candidates than there are board seats available may enhance the democratic nature of board elections and strengthen shareholder rights. Providing shareholders with greater choice could lead to a more representative and accountable board. While concerns regarding board dynamics are acknowledged, the proposal allows for implementation in a manner consistent with contractual obligations and good governance practice.

It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

6.. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Board Oversight of Risks Related to Animal Welfare

Proponent's argument: The proponent requests that Bank of America publish a report describing whether and how the Board exercises oversight of risks related to animal welfare. It is argued that animal welfare concerns pose material financial, reputational, and operational risks, particularly in relation to financing activities connected to animal testing, factory farming, food safety, and biodiversity impacts. The proponent contends that these issues are not currently addressed in the company's governance policies or public disclosures, despite the recognised link between nature loss and systemic environmental risks. Reference is made to the Company's financing of factory farms and its poor performance on independent animal welfare rankings. It is suggested that failing to disclose oversight mechanisms may create the perception of governance gaps, which could affect stakeholder trust. The proposal asserts that producing a report on the Board's oversight of such risks would improve transparency, mitigate reputational harm, and bring the Company into alignment with emerging investor expectations on environmental and social due diligence.

Company's response: The Company is not supportive of the proposal. It is stated that oversight of environmental and sustainability risks, including those related to animal welfare, is already conducted through the Board's Corporate Governance Committee and Enterprise Risk Committee. The Company points to its Environmental and Social Risk Policy Framework (ESRP Framework) as evidence of an existing robust process, including enhanced due diligence on transactions involving sensitive environmental and social issues. It is noted that reputational risks-such as those connected to animal welfare-are escalated for further review when appropriate. The Framework is said to enable the Company to identify, assess, and manage material risks arising from client activities. The Board considers that preparing the requested report would be duplicative and unnecessary, given the existing policies, committee oversight, and public disclosures. It is further argued that such reporting would not provide shareholders with meaningful additional information and would represent an inefficient use of company resources.

PIRC recommendation: It is considered that reporting on the Board's oversight of risks related to animal welfare would improve transparency and demonstrate responsiveness to emerging environmental and social concerns. While the existence of internal due diligence procedures is acknowledged, a clear public statement of how animal welfare is factored into governance and risk management would assist in addressing investor expectations and reputational concerns. Enhanced disclosure may also provide reassurance that such issues are being appropriately considered at board level.

It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

7.. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Lobbying Alignment with Bank of America's Climate Goals

Proponent's argument: Sada Geuss request that Bank of America produce an annual report analysing whether and how its lobbying and policy influence activities align with its 2030 sectoral emissions reduction target and 2050 net zero goals. The resolution highlights the systemic financial risks posed by climate change and notes that corporate lobbying inconsistent with climate action could undermine these targets. The proponent points to gaps in the bank's current disclosures, including limited transparency around direct lobbying and memberships in trade associations that have opposed key climate legislation, such as the Inflation Reduction Act. It is argued that such associations' positions may contradict the Company's stated climate ambitions and pose reputational and systemic risks. The proposal urges the Company to adopt best practices in climate lobbying disclosure, citing Unilever and Enel as examples. It is further stated that investors require more detailed reporting in order to assess the extent to which the bank's policy engagement supports or potentially undermines its public commitments to climate action.

Company's response: The Company does not support the proposal. It is stated that current disclosures already provide extensive information about lobbying and political activities, including those related to the Company's climate strategy. These include disclosures on federal lobbying expenditures, trade association memberships, and the Company's involvement in climate policy through its public policy team. The Board maintains that these activities are subject to oversight by the Corporate Governance Committee and are aligned with the Company's commitment to responsible growth and achieving net zero emissions. It is also stated that membership in trade associations does not imply blanket endorsement of all their positions, and that the Company actively engages within these bodies to express its views. The Board further argues that it is already ranked highly in political disclosure indexes, and that producing an additional report would be duplicative, offer no material benefit to shareholders, and would divert resources away from advancing climate and business objectives.

PIRC recommendation: It is considered that the alignment between corporate lobbying activities and publicly stated climate goals is a material issue for investors. Although the Company discloses some information on lobbying and trade association memberships, the extent to which these activities support or contradict climate objectives remains unclear. A specific report addressing this question would enhance transparency and accountability, particularly in cases where misalignment may present reputational or systemic risk. Similar reports published by peers demonstrate the feasibility and utility of this type of disclosure. It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

8.. Shareholder Resolution: Disclosure of Energy Financing Ratio

Proponent's argument: The proponents request that Bank of America disclose an annual Energy Supply Ratio (ESR), defined as the proportion of financing for low-carbon energy relative to fossil fuel energy. The proposal argues that such a metric would provide decision-useful information to investors by illustrating the extent to which the Company's financial activities align with its stated climate goals, including its 2050 net zero commitment and its $1 trillion sustainable finance target by 2030. It is stated that although the Company discloses other climate-related metrics, the ESR would offer a clearer view of energy financing allocation and support investor evaluation of transition leadership. The proponents point to Bloomberg's standardised ESR methodology and note that several leading banks have already committed to disclose this ratio, demonstrating feasibility and emerging best practice. A public ESR, including methodology and classification criteria, is seen as a necessary addition to current disclosures in order to assess how the Company is responding to climate-related financial risks and opportunities.

Company's response: The Company is not supportive of the proposal. It is stated that significant resources have already been dedicated to developing a comprehensive climate strategy and associated disclosures, including emissions targets and progress updates published in its Sustainability and Task Force on Climate-related Financial Disclosures (TCFD) reports. The Company notes that third-party organisations, including Bloomberg, already estimate and publish energy financing ratios using standardised methods, offering comparability across institutions. The Board expresses concern that individual company-reported ESRs would rely on varied methodologies, reducing comparability and potentially confusing stakeholders. Additionally, it is argued that developing an internal methodology and tracking system would be resource-intensive and would not result in meaningful additional insights for shareholders. In view of these factors, the Board concludes that producing the requested ESR disclosure is not an efficient or necessary use of company resources.

PIRC recommendation: It is considered that enhanced disclosure on the Company's relative financing of low-carbon and fossil fuel energy is relevant and useful for investors seeking to assess progress against stated net zero goals. While third-party metrics may offer broad insight, company-reported data with transparent methodologies is viewed as more credible and accountable. As other financial institutions adopt similar disclosure practices, a consistent and clearly defined ESR would help support market expectations and comparability.

It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

5.. Shareholder Resolution: Right to Call Special Meetings

Proponent Shareholder: John Chevedden

Proponent's argument: The proponent requests that the Board amend IQVIA's governing documents to allow shareholders owning a combined 10% of the outstanding common stock, or the lowest threshold permissible under state law, to call a special shareholder meeting. The proposal criticises the Board's 2023 amendment requiring 25% of shares, combined with a one-year holding period, which effectively raises the threshold and restricts shareholder rights. The proponent argues that excluding shares owned for less than a year skews the effective requirement to 40%, making it nearly impossible for shareholders to exercise this right. He asserts that the Board was not transparent about the practical impact of the restriction. Shareholders are encouraged to support the proposal to improve their ability to act swiftly on urgent matters between annual meetings, restoring genuine shareholder rights and avoiding excessive obstacles.

Company's response: The company is against the proposal, stating that the current 25% threshold and one-year holding requirement protect against misuse by transient shareholders while balancing shareholder rights and corporate stability. The company highlights that the existing policy was approved by 96% of shareholders in 2023, with the proponent's similar 10% proposal previously rejected. The Board argues that a 10% threshold would allow a small minority or even a single shareholder to call costly special meetings that could be used to further individual interests rather than those of the broader shareholder base. The company also stresses that the one-year holding period aligns with market standards and SEC rules, ensuring only shareholders with a long-term interest can trigger special meetings. It concludes that the proposal mischaracterises the company's governance and that its current practices reflect best governance standards and shareholder engagement.

PIRC analysis: The right to call a special shareholder meeting provides shareholders with a way of communicating with the Board and debating and voting on issues with the rest of shareholders which in itself enhances shareholders' rights. The 10% threshold recommended by the Proponent is considered acceptable. It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

7. Creation of Authorized Capital 2025 with the option to disapply subscription rights and amendment of Article 4, Paragraph 2 of the Articles of Incorporation

Bayer proposes the creation of Authorised Capital 2025 of up to €875 million, representing just under 35% of current capital stock. This authorisation would allow the Board of Management, with Supervisory Board approval, to increase capital against cash contributions up until April 24, 2028. This tool is intended to give Bayer the flexibility to raise capital quickly, particularly to manage potential future legal settlements or other financing needs. However, the company clarifies that there are no current plans to use this authorisation, and it will not be used to finance acquisitions (M&A). Stockholders would generally retain subscription rights, but these may be excluded for fractional shares to simplify technical processes.

To implement this, Article 4, Paragraph 2 of the Articles of Incorporation will be amended to reflect the new authorisation terms.

1g.. Re-Elect Dale B. Wolf - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board, Chair of the Compensation Committee and Member of the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. In terms of best practice, it is considered that both the Compensation Committee and the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

It is considered that the Chair of the Compensation Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation, and there are concerns with the company's executive compensation.

Furthermore, the chair holds another chair position at a listed company; Mr. Wolf has been the Executive Chair of EHealth, Inc. since September 2021. This raises time commitment concerns, and it is considered that the chair should be able to wholly dedicate their time to the company in times of company crisis. It is considered that there is insufficient time to be able to effectively chair two or more companies at the same time.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

5.. Shareholder Resolution: Right to Call Special Meetings

Proponent Shareholder: John Chevedden

Proponent's argument: The proposal, submitted by John Chevedden, calls on Molina Healthcare to amend its governing documents to allow shareholders owning a combined 10% of the company's outstanding common stock or the lowest threshold permitted by state law to call a special shareholder meeting. The proponent argues this change is essential to ensure meaningful shareholder engagement and to enhance the Board's accountability. With the ability to convene special meetings, shareholders would gain a "Plan B" mechanism to address board complacency, encourage strategic responsiveness, and foster improved director performance, particularly in light of growing board exculpation measures that may weaken fiduciary accountability. The proposal emphasises that traditional shareholder communication channels are often inadequate, equating them to sending a letter to the CEO. It also notes that technological advancements, such as virtual meetings, reduce logistical burdens for convening special meetings, reinforcing the argument that corporate bylaws should reflect these evolving norms. The proposal concludes that enhancing shareholder rights to initiate special meetings strengthens corporate democracy and urges a "yes" vote.

Company's Response: Molina Healthcare's Board recommends voting against the proposal, stating that it is unnecessary and not in shareholders' best interests. The company emphasises its ongoing commitment to strong corporate governance and stockholder engagement, including proxy access, board refreshment practices, independent directors, and open communication channels. The Board argues that these existing mechanisms already provide ample opportunities for shareholder input and accountability. Moreover, the company warns that allowing shareholders with 10% of shares to call special meetings could empower a small group to pursue special interest agendas, potentially leading to corporate disruption, increased costs, and short-term pressures misaligned with long-term goals. The Board maintains that special meetings should be reserved for extraordinary circumstances and that existing provisions where the CEO, chairman, or Board can call such meetings are sufficient. Citing market practice, the company notes that only 18% of S&P 500 companies permit special meetings at the 10% threshold. Therefore, the Board concludes that the proposal is inconsistent with best practice, potentially costly, and redundant in light of current governance structures.

PIRC analysis: The right to call a special shareholder meeting provides shareholders with a way of communicating with the Board and debating and voting on issues with the rest of shareholders which in itself enhances shareholders' rights. The 10% threshold recommended by the Proponent is considered acceptable. It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

4.. Shareholder Resolution: Golden Parachute Arrangements

Proponent Shareholder: John Chevedden

Proponent's argument: The proposal requests that Capital One amend its governance documents to require a non-binding shareholder vote on any new or renewed senior executive pay arrangements that provide severance or termination payments exceeding 2.99 times the sum of base salary and target bonus. This threshold is in line with long-standing market concerns about "golden parachute" packages that are perceived as excessive or misaligned with shareholder interests. The proponent emphasises that the proposal applies only to Named Executive Officers and excludes standard benefits such as life insurance or previously earned deferred compensation. It is structured to impose no cap on long-term equity pay and would not limit the Company's ability to attract or retain talent. Rather, it seeks to introduce a shareholder check on unusually large payouts that could be triggered during termination or change of control. The proposal notes prior support for similar measures at companies like FedEx, Alaska Air, and AbbVie, with votes ranging from 51% to 65%. It argues that Say-on-Pay votes do not provide sufficient visibility into specific severance terms and that this additional vote would increase accountability without disrupting compensation practices.

Company's Response: Capital One's Board recommends a vote against the proposal, asserting that the Company's severance and change-of-control arrangements are already reasonable, market competitive, and subject to robust governance and regulatory oversight. The Company argues that it uses double-trigger mechanisms in its change-of-control agreements-requiring both a qualifying termination and an actual change of control-to avoid misalignment of incentives. Equity awards, which may vest upon such events, are standard elements of pre-approved compensation programs. The Board contends that the proposed shareholder vote would add unnecessary administrative burden, potentially harm the Company's competitiveness in attracting executive talent, and deviate from industry norms. It emphasises that executive severance arrangements are overseen by the Compensation Committee and reviewed case-by-case, with input from independent advisors. Furthermore, the Board highlights that shareholders already have effective oversight via Say-on-Pay votes and public disclosure of termination packages. In recent years, over 93% of shareholders have approved the Company's executive compensation. Based on this context, the Board concludes that the proposal is unnecessary and not in shareholders' best interests.

PIRC analysis: Change-in-control clauses and excessive severance packages are often viewed as mechanisms that can entrench underperforming management and misalign executive incentives with shareholder interests, particularly in the context of potential takeovers. The company's argument that requiring shareholder approval for such packages would undermine its competitiveness is not compelling. In many developed markets, including France and Italy, shareholder ratification of severance agreements is a common governance practice and has not impeded talent recruitment. This proposal does not seek to limit executive pay but introduces a shareholder check when severance exceeds a generous multiple of salary and bonus. It reinforces accountability and narrows the gap between shareholders and management decision making on termination terms. As such, the proposal represents an improvement in corporate governance.

It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

5.. Shareholder Resolution: Disclose Plan to Reduce Total Contribution to Climate Change

Proponent: John Chevedden.

Proponent's argument: Shareholders request that Centene issue a report (at reasonable cost, omitting proprietary information) describing if, and how, it plans to reduce its total contribution to climate change and align its operations and investments with the Paris Agreement's ambition of limiting global temperature rise. Shareholders argue the following: "The health sector accounts for an estimated 8.5% of U.S. carbon emissions.¹ Climate change is expected to increase the cost of healthcare services, making it more expensive for healthcare organizations to operate due to damage to infrastructure, supply chain disruptions, and increased complexity of care. Climate-related health conditions are also expected to increase and drive up the total cost of care, affecting profits for both healthcare systems and plans.² In its 10-K, Centene acknowledges that the "the effects of climate change ... could reduce our ability to accurately predict and effectively control the costs of providing health benefits." Despite acknowledging this risk, the Company has not published GHG or other relevant targets aimed at reducing its emissions. By contrast, peers Cigna, CVS Health, Humana, and UnitedHealth Group have set or committed to set science-based targets with the Science Based Targets initiative. HCA Healthcare aims to reduce its scope 1 and 2 emissions by 2030 in line with 1.5 °C, Elevance Health plans to decrease direct operational emissions by 50% by 2030 and reach net zero by 2050, as well as have 75% of indirect spend suppliers set science-based targets by 2028."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The board argues the following: "The Company's transparency regarding our progress is demonstrated by the fact that our results over the past 5 years have not been uniformly linear. For example, the Company's Scope 3 emissions increased slightly from 2021 to 2022. Nonetheless, the Company's commitment to achieving meaningful reduction of greenhouse gas emissions is clearly demonstrated by our success, achieving Scope 1 reductions of 59%, Scope 2 reductions of 64% and Scope 3 reductions of 57% since 2019. To date, the majority of stockholders have expressed support for the Company's efforts, with approximately 64% of voted shares voting against a similar proposal in 2024. [...] In the near term, we believe that maintaining flexibility to choose from among appropriate sustainability initiatives and the timing for the implementation of those initiatives aligns with the Company's mission to prioritize serving its members and government partners. We are continually assessing the rapidly evolving and uncertain regulatory and political landscape and the priorities of our government partners as we develop our sustainability plans and assess our climate-related risks. We are also mindful of the wide variations in costs associated with this rapidly changing landscape. We hope the meaningful results we have achieved over the past 6 years have earned your continued trust."

PIRC analysis: Most investors accept the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) recommendations that net emissions of carbon dioxide must be halved by 2030 and reach 'net zero' by 2050 to maintain warming below 1.5 degrees Celsius and that these goals must be integrated into business planning decisions, together with short- and medium-term targets for emissions reduction. Comprehensive reporting on climate impacts is in shareholders' interests both as a means of informing them of potential risks and opportunities faced by the company, of strategies put in place to manage those risks and opportunities, and of the evaluation of the potential impact of different scenarios, including a 1.5 degrees Celsius scenario, on their businesses, strategy, and financial planning. It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

6.. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Climate Risk to Retirement Investments

Proponent: As You Sow

Proponent's argument: Shareholders request Centene publish a report disclosing if and how the Company is protecting retirement plan beneficiaries - especially those with a longer investment time horizon - from increased future portfolio risk created by present-day investments in high-carbon companies. Shareholders argue the following: "Greenhouse gas emissions and the resulting warming are causing significant, deleterious consequences for the global economy. Those harms are predicted to grow. Prior studies estimate that unmitigated climate change will cut the world economy by $23 trillion by 2050, with climate-related damages already costing the global economy an estimated $16 million per hour. These effects will have a particularly significant impact on workers saving for retirement. Retirement plan beneficiaries have long investment horizons, and "[t]he longer term the investment horizon, the more likely it is that climate will not only be a material risk, but the most material risk." Additionally, climate portfolio risk to retirement plans will be difficult to mitigate. An International Finance Corporation report concludes that "the traditional way of managing risk through a shift in asset allocation into increased holdings of more conservative, lower risk, lower return asset classes may do little to offset climate risks."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The board argues the following: "The U.S. Department of Labor's investment duties regulation mandates that an ERISA retirement plan fiduciary select investment options, including the default investment option, based on factors the fiduciary "reasonably determines are relevant to a risk and return analysis." The law requires that a fiduciary may not sacrifice the interest of 401(k) plan participants' retirement income or other financial benefits by compromising investment returns or taking on additional investment risks to promote unrelated benefit or goals. The weight given to a risk factor should be based on the facts and a reasonable assessment of its impact on risk and return. In addition, the recent United States federal court decision in Spence vs. American Airlines suggests that considering factors other than investment return, especially ESG factors, are not permissible and a violation of the committee's fiduciary duty of loyalty to plan participants. The impact of this decision is unclear at this time, but it would not be prudent for the Company to take actions that could increase litigation risks against the Company for implementing the request in the proposal. In discharging this fiduciary duty, the investment committee thoughtfully constructs, and closely and regularly monitors, investment options across a variety of different asset classes and investment styles, carefully weighing the potential risks, rewards, and goals for a wide range of employees. We believe this proposal, and the report it requests with its focus on climate risks and carbon emissions is not consistent with this duty. By overlooking the legally-mandated risk and return evaluation of the 401(k) plan, the proposal risks putting undue pressure on the investment committee to make changes that are imprudent or not in the best interests of 401(k) plan participants."

PIRC analysis: It is considered that shareholders should be focused on long-term value creation. Ignoring the potential long-term costs of ignoring climate change as part of the investment strategy of the company's retirement plan is not considered to be in the best interests of its employees. Fossil fuels financing is risky, with records of several human rights and environmental violations and returns that can pay out only years after the initial expensive investment. Although some case studies show that pension funds are getting increasingly involved in the energy transition, most of the financial system as a whole is still oriented mainly towards financing the linear economy when not directly fossil fuel enterprises. Nevertheless, retail investors such as the beneficiaries from the company's retirement plan are increasingly reported to feel that brands have a responsibility to take care of the planet, and UN's Business and Sustainable Development Commission issued a forecast where sustainability is mentioned as to be worth at least USD 12 trillion a year by 2030 to businesses. As such, financing the energy transition could be indeed an opportunity especially for pension funds, where the size of a greener economy (directly related to the availability of financing for those projects) and the long term would meet. It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

CONOCOPHILLIPS AGM - 13-05-2025

5.. Shareholder Resolution: Remove Emissions Reduction Targets

Proponent: National Legal and Policy Center (NLPC)

Proponent's argument: Shareholders request the Company to remove all emissions reduction targets covering greenhouse gas emissions of the Company's operations and energy products. Shareholders argue the following: "ConocoPhillips's embrace of politically-driven climate alarmism will destroy shareholder resources both in the short and long run. The Company has only two paths to reduce greenhouse gas emissions: investing in carbon capture and storage technology, or reducing oil and gas production. CCS projects are unprofitable without government subsidies, which are unlikely to remain in their current form under the new presidential administration. That leaves the Company with one path: reducing oil and gas investment. ConocoPhillips has always been an oil and gas company; Reducing production would destroy shareholder resources."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The board argues the following: "ConocoPhillips continues to be guided by our value proposition of superior returns to stockholders through price cycles while executing against our Triple Mandate, which sets out three objectives to align our actions with the underlying realities of our business and demonstrates our commitment to create long-term value for our stockholders. [...] We regularly meet with stockholders on a variety of topics, including our climate-related risks and associated target framework. In recent years, during these engagements, an overwhelming majority of stockholders have expressed support for our GHG target framework as well as our actions to reduce Scope 1 and Scope 2 emissions. We have had consistent support from stockholders on our approach to target setting, dating back to our first target set in 2017. [...] Our recent acquisition of Marathon Oil fits within our target framework and is fully aligned with our commitment to develop assets that have a low cost of supply and low GHG intensity, as these are most likely to compete in any future energy transition pathway. Because our 2030 targets are set on an intensity basis, we are able to respond to our sector's dynamic business environment where plans, technology, prices, industry structure and costs all change rapidly."

PIRC Recommendation: The proposal reflects an ideological rejection of mainstream climate science and responsible climate governance. Removing emissions reduction targets would significantly undermine the company's ability to manage climate-related financial risk, respond to regulatory shifts, and meet stakeholder expectations-particularly institutional investors increasingly prioritizing climate risk disclosure and mitigation. The proponent fails to provide a credible or constructive alternative to managing GHG emissions, and the argument that climate strategy is purely political is inconsistent with current global regulatory, reputational, and market pressures. ConocoPhillips's framework, while imperfect, represents a pragmatic and shareholder-aligned attempt to navigate energy transition risks. Additionally, the company's use of intensity-based targets allows operational flexibility while encouraging emissions efficiency, which is a widely accepted approach among energy peers.

14. Approve Remuneration Policy of the CEO

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy of the CEO. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice.

There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. FISERV INC. AGM - 14-05-2025

4.. Shareholder Resolution: Improved Clawback Policy

Proponent Shareholder: John Chevedden

Proponent's argument: The proponent, John Chevedden, urges the Board to adopt an enhanced clawback policy applicable to all Named Executive Officers (NEOs) that mandates recoupment of unearned compensation in cases of either misconduct or negligence. He argues that the current policy focuses primarily on employee misconduct and lacks transparency, as it is difficult to access and unclear in its application. The proponent calls for public disclosure in the proxy statement of any board deliberations on potential clawbacks, including explanations for decisions not to pursue them. He draws attention to Wells Fargo's failure to seek repayment from a negligent CEO despite significant scandals and regulatory penalties, suggesting that similar leniency could occur under Fiserv's current policy. Chevedden notes that executives can currently be rewarded despite negligent oversight, which sends the wrong signal at a time when Fiserv should reinforce accountability. By implementing the proposed policy and making it easily accessible in corporate governance documents, the company would strengthen management responsibility and shareholder confidence. The proposal aims to ensure executives are held to high standards and do not benefit from unearned pay under questionable circumstances.

Company's Response: Fiserv's Board recommends voting against Proposal 4, asserting that the company's existing Compensation Recoupment Policy already satisfies and exceeds the requirements set by the SEC and NYSE. Adopted in 2023, the policy mandates recoupment of erroneously awarded compensation without regard to fault in the event of a financial restatement and extends its reach beyond NEOs to all employees and contractors. The company emphasizes that the policy already allows for discretionary clawbacks in cases of legal or code violations, and that broadening the standard to include vague terms like "negligence" or general "conduct" could create uncertainty and discourage sound executive decision-making. Fiserv also argues that current SEC rules already mandate transparent disclosures about clawback decisions, and further mandatory disclosures could compromise the Board's discretion. The policy is already publicly accessible, including in SEC filings and on Fiserv's website. The Board contends that the proposed changes would not meaningfully enhance shareholder protections and could undermine managerial effectiveness, concluding that the proposal is not in shareholders' best interests.

PIRC analysis: While the proposal would require recoupment of remuneration under slightly broader circumstances than are typically included in most standard clawback policies, extending to negligence as well as misconduct-the concern lies in the discretion embedded in the company's current approach. Although Fiserv has adopted a clawback policy that complies with recent SEC and NYSE requirements, the proposal highlights legitimate shareholder concerns around the lack of mandatory application in cases of executive negligence and the absence of formalised disclosure around Board deliberations. The additional transparency requested, as well as clearer accountability for executive actions that fall short of misconduct but still harm the company or its reputation, represents a logical and constructive enhancement to existing governance practice. In this context, the proposal would advance corporate governance at Fiserv by strengthening accountability mechanisms and aligning executive incentives more closely with shareholder interests.

5.. Shareholder Resolution: Assessment of the Company's Supplier & Partner Code of Conduct Due Diligence Process

Proponent: The AFL-CIO Equity Index Funds

Proponent's argument: The proposal calls for Mondelēz International to commission an independent third-party assessment and report evaluating the effectiveness of its due diligence processes under its Supplier & Partner Code of Conduct, with a particular focus on the respect for freedom of association and collective bargaining rights. The underlying concern is that the company's current frameworks may not adequately identify, monitor, or remediate human rights violations-particularly within its supply chain-and that greater transparency and independent verification would help reinforce Mondelēz's stated commitments. The proposal likely follows concerns raised by past incidents (e.g. involving supplier Hearthside) and broader investor interest in ensuring credible implementation of human rights policies.

Company's response: The Board recommends voting against the proposal, asserting that Mondelēz already has strong and comprehensive mechanisms in place to uphold and monitor human rights, including freedom of association and collective bargaining, both internally and across its supply chain. These commitments are codified in the company's Human Rights Policy, Code of Conduct, and its Supplier & Partner Code of Conduct ("Supplier Code"), which is embedded in all supplier contracts. The Company highlights several key elements of its program: 1) Risk-based due diligence prior to onboarding new suppliers; 2) Embedding of contractual obligations tied to responsible sourcing; 3) Ongoing audits of prioritized tier 1 suppliers, with approximately 90% completing SMETA audits in the last three years; 4) Remediation processes and right to terminate non-compliant suppliers; 5) Collaboration initiatives such as the industry coalition targeting child and forced labor prevention; and 6) Responsive actions to supplier issues, including the case with Hearthside, demonstrating the application of oversight mechanisms. Mondelēz argues that commissioning an additional third-party assessment would not meaningfully enhance existing procedures and would divert resources from more impactful efforts.

PIRC analysis: The proponent asks for a report on the risks associated with potential and actual human rights risks of its operations and supply chain. Such risks can have significant reputational and financial consequences for a company and it is in the best interests of shareholders to be informed of the Company's exposure to and management of such risks. While the company indicates that it is committed to not using forced labour in its supply chains, it does not disclose the risks to which the company might be exposed regarding additional violations of human rights. Ensuring that suppliers are not violating human rights is considered to be due diligence, in order to uphold company's policies on human rights and minimize corresponding risks.

6.. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Flexible Plastic Packaging

Proponent: As You Sow.

Proponent's argument: The resolution urges Mondelēz to issue a report evaluating how it could address its use of flexible plastic packaging, aligned with findings from the Pew Charitable Trusts' "Breaking the Plastic Wave" report or similar sources. The proponents highlight the significant environmental, financial, and reputational risks associated with continued reliance on flexible plastic packaging, which is often unrecyclable and heavily used by the company (70.1% of total packaging). They cite rising regulatory pressures globally-including laws in the EU, France, Portugal, and five U.S. states-as well as increasing consumer demand for sustainable alternatives. The Pew Report identifies flexible plastic as the greatest opportunity for reduction or elimination, with recycling alone deemed insufficient to address pollution. The proponents argue that Mondelēz's reliance on flexible plastics puts it at risk of failing its 2025 sustainable packaging goals, as only 18.9% of its packaging is recyclable in practice and at scale, and none is reusable. The report requested should evaluate risks, assess pathways to recyclable or reusable packaging, and consider opportunities for collaboration on pre-competitive innovation.

Company's response: The Board recommends voting against the proposal, asserting that Mondelēz already addresses the concerns raised through comprehensive and transparent initiatives. It states that the company annually discloses its sustainable packaging progress in the "Snacking Made Right Report" and has set measurable goals to reduce virgin plastic use and increase recyclability, with 96% of packaging designed to be recyclable by the end of 2023. Mondelēz pursues a three-pronged approach-reduce, evolve, and improve systems-including efforts to scale alternative materials and invest in circular solutions. It collaborates through industry alliances (e.g. Circular Action Alliance, Consumer Goods Forum Flexibles Taskforce) and supports Extended Producer Responsibility schemes. Investments in ventures like Circulate Capital, Pack2Earth, and Outlander Materials further demonstrate its commitment to innovation in flexible packaging alternatives. The company maintains that issuing an additional report would be duplicative, unproductive, and provide limited added value to shareholders.

PIRC analysis: Reporting on sustainability issues is in shareholders' interests both as a means of informing shareholders of potential risks and opportunities faced by the company, but also as a means of ensuring that the management and board of a company gives due consideration to these issues. The company indicates that it already has initiatives in this area. However, such reporting takes the form of estimates of measures such as percentage of packaging worldwide which was recyclable, compostable or biodegradable, or percentage of waste which was diverted from landfill. However, company's reporting seems to present no better information on how much actually is recycled, or what goals there are for achieving either 50% recycling or more. For this reason the report requested would appear to be necessary to assess where the Company has made mistakes and how it can remedy those.

It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

7.. Shareholder Resolution: Climate Lobbying

Proponent: John Chevedden

Proponent's argument: The proposal requests Mondelēz to issue an annually updated report assessing whether and how its direct and indirect lobbying efforts align with its publicly stated goal of achieving net zero greenhouse gas emissions by 2050. The proponent argues that although the company has recognized the risks posed by climate change and adopted science-based targets, it does not provide sufficient transparency around its lobbying activities. Mondelēz has spent approximately $9 million on federal lobbying since 2014, with minimal disclosure regarding state-level activity or the alignment of its advocacy with climate goals. The proponent highlights the risk that misaligned lobbying can undermine corporate climate commitments, damage brand reputation, and expose companies to financial and operational risks. The proposal cites Unilever as an example of more comprehensive disclosure and recommends Mondelēz consider the Global Standard on Responsible Climate Lobbying to guide its reporting. It specifically calls attention to the company's association with at least one trade group known to oppose climate policy measures, raising concerns about indirect lobbying inconsistency.

Company's response: The Board recommends voting against the proposal, asserting that Mondelēz already provides substantial disclosure and has strong internal oversight mechanisms in place. The company states that it publishes comprehensive annual disclosures on lobbying activities, trade association memberships with dues over $50,000, and political contributions. Mondelēz claims a high level of transparency, pointing to its top-tier ranking on the CPA-Zicklin Index in 2024. It acknowledges that it may not always align with all trade association positions but asserts that its dues are not used to support or oppose political candidates. The company outlines its climate progress, including a 3.7% reduction in end-to-end emissions in 2023, increased use of renewable electricity, and approval of its 2030 and 2050 net-zero targets by the SBTi. It argues that current governance, including Board-level oversight through the Governance, Membership and Sustainability Committee, ensures consistency between its lobbying and sustainability strategies. The company views the requested report as duplicative and unnecessary given its existing frameworks and disclosures.

PIRC analysis: The transparency and completeness of the Company's reporting on lobbying expenditures related to climate is considered insufficient. The proposal is advisory and is considered adequately worded to respect the prerogatives of the board. It is considered that the proposal does not mean to undermine the past work of the company in this respect, or the positive role of these associations in some aspects. Steps forward are encouraging, and the company has demonstrated ability to monitor and act, when the work of some associations have come into conflict with the company's support of the Paris Agreement. Although company's contributions to trade associations do not necessarily equate with that association's political or lobbying activities, it is considered to be to the benefit of the Company and its shareholders to be open about those activities, especially if they are antithetical to its published statements about climate risk and how it is attempting to manage this. In this sense, a vote in favour is recommended as a way to show shareholders' support for the board efforts to oversee and manage its relationships with industry associations, whose positioning may not align with either the position adopted by the company or the interests of long-term investors. It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

8.. Shareholder Proposal: Report Assessing Effectiveness of Implementation of Human Rights Policy

Proponent: Wespeth Funds Trust

Proponent's argument: The resolution requests that Mondelēz commission an independent third-party report assessing the effectiveness of its implementation of the Human Rights Policy (HRP) in conflict-affected and high-risk areas (CAHRAs), with particular focus on Russia and Ukraine. The proponent argues that such areas demand heightened human rights due diligence (HRDD) under the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights (UNGPs), given their elevated legal and operational risks. Mondelēz's continued operations in Russia, despite international sanctions and accusations of war crimes against the Russian government, expose the company to reputational and ethical concerns. The Ukrainian government has officially labelled Mondelēz an "international sponsor of war", and the company's operations have drawn criticism from customers, employees, and civil society. The proponent highlights the company's increasing revenues from Russia and its reportedly ongoing operational and managerial ties there, despite public claims of a self-sufficient subsidiary. Mondelēz is also exposed to other CAHRAs, including Brazil, Côte d'Ivoire, and Guatemala. The proposal seeks a third-party analysis of the HRP's practical effectiveness, including the identification of potential policy or governance gaps to improve human rights risk management in these areas.

Company's response: The Board opposes the proposal, asserting that Mondelēz already provides robust disclosures and third-party assessments related to human rights, including in CAHRAs. The company references its annual Human Rights Due Diligence (HRDD) & Modern Slavery Report, developed with input from third-party experts (e.g. twentyfifty), as well as human rights training and grievance mechanisms accessible in local languages. It highlights heightened HRDD practices specifically in Russia and Ukraine, including social audits at manufacturing sites and actions taken to mitigate risk. One Ukrainian site underwent a virtual SMETA audit in 2024 due to security risks, while one of three Russian facilities has been audited, with the others scheduled for 2025. The company has introduced internal "Human Rights Business Unit Check-ins" in high-risk regions to bolster local capability. Mondelēz maintains that its Russian business has been scaled down, with no new capital investments or advertising, a 30% drop in contribution to global revenue since 2022, and ongoing humanitarian aid initiatives in Ukraine. The Board argues that the requested report would duplicate existing reporting and not add meaningful insight for shareholders.

PIRC Recommendation: The company's reporting lacks independent assessment of the effectiveness of its HRP implementation in such contexts, particularly regarding decision-making around continued operations. Furthermore, reliance on internal check-ins or selected audits, some of which are deferred, cannot substitute for a dedicated, independent evaluation with a focus on governance and risk mitigation. As regulatory and investor expectations around human rights due diligence grow, particularly under EU legislation, enhanced transparency and independent review are warranted. This resolution is proportionate, non-prescriptive, and aimed at addressing a clearly material risk. A third-party assessment would strengthen shareholder confidence in Mondelēz's ability to meet its responsibilities under the UNGPs.

It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

9.. Shareholder Resolution: Recycled Content Claims

Proponent: Jan Dell

Proponent's argument: The proposal requests that Mondelēz issue a report by December 2025 detailing the factual basis for the legitimacy of its recycled content claims on plastic packaging. The proponent raises concerns about the use of mass balance accounting and circular certificates-particularly the ISCC system used to claim up to 50% recycled content in Triscuit packaging-arguing that these methods are misleading and legally questionable. Citing positions from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the California Attorney General, the proposal highlights that such practices are not considered valid indicators of recycled content, and may be legally deceptive under state law. The pyrolysis process used in advanced recycling produces minimal new plastic, primarily yielding fuel, thereby challenging the accuracy of recycled content claims derived from such methods. The proponent also notes the financial risk of investing in certificates that may not withstand regulatory scrutiny, suggesting potential reputational, operational, and legal exposure. The proposal recommends the report be conducted by independent experts with no ties to the plastics or recycling industry.

Company's response: The Board recommends voting against the proposal, asserting that Mondelēz already has rigorous review and substantiation processes in place for all on-pack claims, including those related to recycled content. The company states that claims are vetted through legal, corporate affairs, and regulatory teams to ensure compliance with applicable laws, and that internal training and resources are regularly updated. It emphasizes its commitment to improving packaging circularity through advanced recycling investments and partnerships, such as its collaboration with Amcor and investment in Licella, a firm focused on turning end-of-life plastics into feedstock for new packaging. Mondelēz argues that advanced recycling technologies are increasingly accepted and aligned with evolving regulatory standards and that its participation in global and industry-led initiatives-like the Ellen MacArthur Foundation's Global Commitment and the Circular Action Alliance-demonstrates its serious commitment to credible circular solutions. It maintains that its packaging strategy, certification usage, and on-pack labelling already meet legal and ethical standards, rendering the proposed report unnecessary and duplicative.

PIRC analysis: Reporting on sustainability issues is in shareholders' interests both as a means of informing shareholders of potential risks and opportunities faced by the company, but also as a means of ensuring that the management and board of a company gives due consideration to these issues. The company indicates that it already has initiatives in this area. However, such reporting takes the form of estimates of measures such as percentage of packaging worldwide which was recyclable, compostable or biodegradable, or percentage of waste which was diverted from landfill. However, company's reporting seems to present no better information on how much actually is recycled, or what goals there are for achieving either 50% recycling or more. For this reason the report requested would appear to be necessary to assess where the Company has made mistakes and how it can remedy those.

1.2. Re-elect Stephen A. Ellis - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit and Nominating and Corporate Governance Committees. Not considered to be independent due to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that the these Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

PIRC issue: this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of Nominating and Corporate Governance committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. As the chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance committee is not up for election, members of the committee are held accountable for this lack of disclosure. Also, as the Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee is not up for election, the members of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee are considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice.

4.. Shareholder Resolution: Declassify the Board

Proponent Shareholder: John Chevedden, on behalf of James McRitchie Proponent's argument: The proposal requests that Charles Schwab reorganise its Board of Directors so that all directors are elected annually rather than on a staggered, classified basis. The proponent argues that declassified boards promote stronger accountability and align with governance best practices, noting that 90% of S&P 500 companies have adopted annual elections. Referencing studies from Harvard Law School and data from proxy advisory firms, the proposal cites widespread shareholder and institutional support for declassification, with average approval rates exceeding 70%. It contends that staggered boards can entrench underperforming directors and insulate management, undermining shareholder influence. The proponent also highlights governance concerns at Schwab, including supermajority voting requirements, the absence of proxy access, and long board tenure. The proposal emphasises that annual elections would increase responsiveness, improve board performance, and offer shareholders more direct influence over corporate governance, particularly in cases of dissatisfaction with pay or strategy. It calls for a phased or immediate transition to a one-year term structure to enhance transparency, performance, and long-term shareholder value. Company's Response: The Board opposes the proposal, stating that maintaining a classified board is in the best interests of the company and its shareholders. Schwab argues that the structure supports long-term strategic planning, enhances board continuity, and strengthens oversight in a complex regulatory environment. The company notes that a declassification proposal it put forward in 2022 failed to achieve the 80% threshold needed for approval, indicating limited shareholder support for structural change. The Board also contends that staggered terms help preserve institutional knowledge and provide stability, particularly during periods of volatility or in the face of potential hostile takeovers. According to the Board, declassification could result in a full board turnover within a single year, potentially weakening oversight and strategic consistency. It also emphasises that all directors are subject to annual evaluations and uphold fiduciary duties regardless of term length. The Board concludes that the current governance structure strikes the appropriate balance between accountability and long-term performance, and that implementing this proposal would not be an effective use of company resources at this time.

PIRC analysis: The practice of electing different classes of director each year, a classified board, is no longer viewed as best practice as it can be used as an anti-takeover device and could serve to entrench and insulate both underperforming directors and managers. Shareholder concerns in relation to director competence as well as other board issues can more appropriately be raised if all directors face election each year. It is considered that declassification of the board will bring the company in line with best practice, especially given the other practices raised by the Proponent that also insulate the board from shareholders. It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

GE HEALTHCARE TECHNOLOGIES INC AGM - 28-05-2025

Proponent Shareholder: Martin Harangozo

Proponent's argument: The proponent urges GE HealthCare to adopt a policy requiring shareholder approval for new or renewed compensation packages that include golden parachute payments exceeding 2.99 times an executive's base salary plus target short-term bonus. This proposal, focused on Named Executive Officers, aims to introduce oversight and ensure that excessive severance arrangements align with shareholder interests. Golden parachutes covered by the proposal include all forms of compensation-cash, equity, perquisites, or benefits-triggered by termination, excluding previously vested benefits. The proposal stipulates that even when limits exist, consequences such as a shareholder vote are essential for accountability. It does not limit overall pay or use of equity compensation, thus maintaining flexibility in executive recruitment. The proponent emphasizes that similar proposals have achieved majority shareholder support at other major corporations, such as FedEx, Spirit AeroSystems, Alaska Air, and Fiserv. By requiring non-binding shareholder votes on unusually large parachutes, the policy promotes transparency and shareholder alignment, without restricting the Board's ability to offer competitive long-term incentives.

Company's response: GE HealthCare's Board recommends voting against the proposal, asserting that it is unnecessary given the company's current executive compensation framework. The Board points to its existing cash severance policy, which already triggers a non-binding shareholder vote when cash severance exceeds 2.99 times the sum of base salary and target bonus for Executive Officers. The company argues that its Talent, Culture, and Compensation Committee requires flexibility to design tailored compensation packages that remain competitive globally. The Board also notes strong historical support for its executive pay practices, with over 92% of shareholders approving its say-on-pay proposals in both 2023 and 2024. Furthermore, GE HealthCare believes the proposal's broader scope may create conflicts with its Long-Term Incentive Plan, which includes double-trigger vesting and no excise tax gross-ups, in line with market best practices. The Board maintains that shareholder concerns are already adequately addressed and that adding new restrictions may undermine the Committee's ability to make effective, strategically aligned decisions in a multinational context. It concludes that the proposal is not in the best interest of shareholders.

PIRC analysis: The company's argument of losing competitive advantage by submitting severance to shareholders' approval is not considered to be an effective one: as a matter of fact, ratification of severance agreements or payments is common practice in developed markets overseas (such as France or Italy). On the contrary, this proposal is considered to be an advance in corporate governance, as it will allow to reduce the gap between shareowners and management. It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

4.. Amend Articles: Amended and Restated Certificate of Incorporation

It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.

While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuade shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, opposition is recommended.

5.. Shareholder Proposal Regarding a Report on Supply Chain GHG Emissions Reduction Strategies

Proponent Shareholder: Amy Floyd

Proponent's argument: The proponent calls on General Motors (GM) to enhance its transparency and action regarding supply chain greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions. While GM has set a goal for carbon neutrality in operations and sold products by 2040, it lacks clear targets and a comprehensive roadmap for addressing supply chain emissions, which account for approximately 16% of the company's climate impact. Given the substantial emissions from steel and aluminum production-materials heavily used in the automotive sector-the proposal stresses the need for forward-looking disclosures showing how GM will align its supply chain practices with its zero emissions ambition. Citing efforts by peers like Volvo, Mercedes-Benz, and Nissan in adopting low-carbon materials and participating in initiatives like ResponsibleSteel and SteelZero, the proposal argues that GM lags industry best practices. The requested report should evaluate GM's approach to procuring near-zero steel and aluminum, consider climate and financial impacts of material transitions, and incorporate practices from leading sustainability coalitions. Such transparency would help investors assess risk, evaluate competitive positioning, and understand GM's contribution to climate mitigation.

Company's response: GM opposes the proposal, asserting that the requested report is unnecessary due to its already robust and transparent reporting practices. The company emphasizes its commitment to responsibly sourced and sustainable materials, underpinned by existing policies such as its Responsible Materials Policy and ESG Supplier Pledge. GM outlines collaborative efforts with suppliers to reduce Scope 1 and 2 emissions by 2035 (manufacturing) and 2038 (raw materials), and details its participation in multiple initiatives including the First Movers Coalition, Scope 3 Peer Group, and industry working groups aimed at decarbonizing automotive materials. Furthermore, GM publishes annual sustainability reports aligned with global standards (GRI, SASB), disclosing Scope 3 Category 1 emissions data and associated reduction efforts. It highlights past shareholder rejections of similar proposals, which received only 14% support in 2023 and 2024, as evidence that investors recognize the adequacy of current disclosures. GM maintains that its approach-based on industry engagement, supplier collaboration, and transparent reporting-appropriately addresses supply chain emissions and aligns with its overall environmental vision.

PIRC analysis: Scope 3 emissions (all indirect emissions that occur in the value chain of the reporting company, including both upstream and downstream emissions) can be indicators of exposure to climate risks, such as carbon and energy 'hot spots' in the supply chain or use of products. Although their reporting is not compulsory under the GHG Protocol, they can help companies identify opportunities to create greater efficiencies in their value chains. Quantifying and reporting these emissions is only the first step into building a strategy with targets to reduce Scope 3 emissions. This will allow the company manage risks and opportunities related to the value chain emissions more proactively, including engagement with its value chain on other sustainability issues deriving from this climate-related approach. It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

AIRBNB INC AGM - 04-06-2025

4.. Shareholder Resolution: Vote Counting Standard

Proponent Shareholder: Connecticut Retirement Plans and Trust Funds

Proponent's argument: The proponent requests that Airbnb, Inc. begin disclosing voting results by class of shares starting with the 2026 annual meeting. The Company currently employs a multi-class share structure, granting Class B shares 20 votes per share, while Class A shares have one vote per share and Classes

C and H have no voting rights. Voting outcomes are presently reported in aggregate, without distinguishing between share classes. The proposal argues that such aggregated reporting obscures whether the will of Class A shareholders-typically more dispersed and independent-is aligned or overridden by the concentrated voting power of Class B shareholders, predominantly held by founders bound by a Voting Agreement. This agreement ensures the re-election of each founder to the board, thus entrenching their influence. The proponent asserts that disaggregating vote results would increase transparency, enable greater accountability to public shareholders, and promote sound governance practices. They note that some U.S. companies already voluntarily disclose voting results by class. The proposal emphasises that this change would not be burdensome to implement but would provide meaningful insight for shareholders, particularly when voting outcomes do not reflect the preferences of the broader investor base.

Company's Response: The Company opposes the proposal, stating it is unnecessary and not in shareholders' best interests. Airbnb asserts that all shareholders knowingly invested under the current multi-class structure, established at the IPO in 2020. The Company already discloses its capital structure-including vote allocations by class and the ownership of significant Class B shares-via SEC filings. Airbnb's founders, who hold a majority of voting power through Class B shares, are bound by a Voting Agreement, ensuring their continued board presence. The board argues that existing disclosures provide sufficient transparency for shareholders to assess voting outcomes and that introducing class-based vote result reporting would add complexity without meaningful benefit. Furthermore, the board highlights Airbnb's robust governance practices, including a majority-independent board and fully independent key committees. It claims these practices already support accountability to all shareholders. Given that vote result breakdown by class is not standard among companies with similar capital structures, the board concludes that the proposal would introduce unnecessary reporting burden and urges shareholders to vote against it.

PIRC Analysis: Different classes of shares have been created to reflect different objectives and different needs from different shareholders. Disclosing how separate classes of shares voted would give a fairer view of what are the issues of most interests, based on the class of shares.

It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

This director is the Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee, and with less than 33% of the Board being women, the composition does not meet Camden's guidelines. 3.. Shareholder Resolution: Shareholder Right to Act by Written Consent

Proponent Shareholder: John Chevedden

Proponent's argument: The proponent, John Chevedden, urges shareholders to support a proposal allowing the right to act by written consent. He argues that such a right would enable shareholders to take timely action outside of annual or special meetings, particularly in light of Alphabet's prolonged stock price slump from $381 in 2019 to $169 in late 2024. This mechanism would allow shareholders to initiate and act upon issues efficiently and apply pressure on the Board to be more responsive and accountable. The ability to act by written consent is portrayed as a tool for shareholders to catalyse strategic changes, including removing underperforming directors. This right would give shareholders the power to propose and approve actions that might otherwise be delayed or ignored by the Board, helping to mitigate governance complacency. Chevedden emphasises that empowering shareholders in this manner strengthens checks on board decisions and aligns governance with long-term value creation. The proposal advocates for a more agile governance structure where shareholder engagement is not hindered by the limitations of scheduled meetings.

Company's Response: Alphabet's Board of Directors recommends voting against the proposal, arguing that permitting shareholder action by written consent undermines transparency, excludes broader shareholder participation, and risks procedural confusion. The company maintains that shareholder meetings whether annual or special are more equitable and informative venues for corporate decision-making, as they ensure dissemination of complete information via proxy statements and provide a forum for all shareholders to engage. Alphabet highlights that actions taken via written consent could allow special interest groups to advance agendas without inclusive deliberation, possibly leading to contradictory or duplicative initiatives. Moreover, managing simultaneous or conflicting consents would impose unnecessary administrative and financial burdens. The Board points to existing governance tools like the ability of 20% of shareholders to call special meetings, annual director elections, and a proxy access provision as sufficient for shareholder influence and oversight. Alphabet also notes its proactive shareholder engagement efforts and argues that the proposed change would offer little benefit while increasing governance risks and complexity.

PIRC analysis: The resolution seeks to provide shareholders with the right to act by written consent, an important governance mechanism that allows shareholders to respond quickly in situations where waiting for a formal meeting would delay necessary action. Although the company highlights its governance practices and shareholder engagement efforts, these do not substitute for the flexibility and responsiveness that written consent enables. Shareholders should have the ability to initiate and approve actions without being constrained by the timing and structure of company-organised meetings. Granting this right would enhance shareholder oversight and accountability, particularly in times when urgent intervention is needed. It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

4.. Shareholder Resolution: Financial Performance Policy

Proponent Shareholder: Vermont Pension Investment Commission

Proponent's argument: The Vermont Pension Investment Commission calls on the company to adopt a policy ensuring that financial performance metrics used to calculate senior executive incentive compensation exclude, wherever practicable, the impact of share repurchases. The proposal asserts that executive pay should reflect operational outcomes and personal performance, not financial engineering. Buybacks can distort key performance indicators such as earnings per share and return on equity, potentially inflating executive rewards without reflecting actual value creation. The proponent highlights that executives do not determine when buybacks occur-this responsibility lies with the Board-so executives should not benefit from a metric they do not control. Academic research is cited to show that buybacks can artificially help firms meet earnings targets and divert capital from long-term investments like R&D and capital expenditure. In 2023, Alphabet spent $62.2 billion on buybacks, surpassing its investments in research and capital projects. The concern is that these expenditures may skew performance-based compensation inappropriately. The resolution would apply to future compensation plans and not interfere with current contractual obligations. The proponent urges support to reinforce alignment between executive pay and genuine operational performance.

Company's Response: Alphabet's Board opposes the proposal, asserting that its Compensation Committee-comprised solely of independent directors-is best placed to design and oversee executive compensation in alignment with shareholder interests and company strategy. The company argues that its current pay structure already reflects performance accountability, informed by market benchmarking and third-party consultant input. The Board views buybacks as a legitimate capital allocation strategy to return value to shareholders, and notes they also offset dilution from equity awards. It argues that limiting how performance metrics incorporate buybacks would unduly restrict compensation design flexibility and create misalignment with industry peers, potentially impairing Alphabet's ability to attract and retain talent. Furthermore, the company challenges the feasibility of the proposal, particularly in adjusting performance metrics like Total Shareholder Return (TSR), which is inherently market-based and influenced by numerous variables beyond share repurchases. Implementing such adjustments would be complex and subjective, especially if comparative peer metrics also required modification. The Board concludes that its compensation policies effectively drive long-term shareholder value and that the proposed policy would not serve stockholders' best interests.

PIRC analysis: The proposal addresses a significant misalignment in incentive compensation structures, where executive rewards may be inflated by financial engineering rather than genuine operational success. While the resolution allows for flexibility in implementation and does not mandate strict use of GAAP metrics, its core intention, to prevent stock buybacks from distorting performance pay, is sound. The company's argument that adjustments would be impractical or too complex is unconvincing, given that performance metrics are already subject to numerous subjective adjustments by the Compensation Committee. The use of total shareholder return, which can be artificially boosted by buybacks, further underscores the risk of rewarding executives for financial maneuvers rather than business fundamentals. Although the resolution could be more prescriptive, it highlights a growing concern around performance measurement integrity. Executive pay should reflect value creation through innovation, efficiency, and sustainable growth, not reductions in share count. On balance, it is appropriate to support the resolution to strengthen transparency and fairness in the design of executive incentives.

5.. Shareholder Resolution: Charitable Partnerships

Proponent Shareholder: Bowyer Research, Inc., on behalf of Oklahoma Tobacco Settlement Endowment Trust

Proponent's argument: The proposal urges Alphabet to issue an annual report assessing how its charitable partnerships may pose reputational or operational risks related to discrimination against individuals based on their speech or religious beliefs. The proponent argues that corporate alignment with certain advocacy groups such as the Human Rights Campaign (HRC) can undermine fundamental freedoms of speech and religion. The proposal references Alphabet's platinum level support for HRC, whose advocacy includes corporate policies on gender identity and healthcare that are politically and culturally divisive. It expresses concern that partnerships of this nature may conflict with Alphabet's stated values around inclusion and diversity of perspective, particularly for individuals holding conservative religious or political views. The proponent believes the company's current affiliations risk alienating stakeholders, damaging brand reputation, and creating an environment that is not politically or religiously neutral. It highlights other companies that have reconsidered or withdrawn similar partnerships and suggests Alphabet do the same by transparently analyzing and reporting the impact of such charitable affiliations on stakeholder trust and business risk. The resolution calls for a measured, non-confidential report that ensures Alphabet's giving aligns with its public commitments to diversity and expression.

Company's Response: Alphabet opposes the proposal, stating that it would interfere with the company's ability to manage its charitable initiatives and operational strategy. The Board asserts that decisions about philanthropic partnerships fall under routine business matters, best handled by management with the relevant expertise. Alphabet emphasizes the long-standing mission of Google.org to fund global initiatives that promote opportunity, guided by strict internal governance and oversight mechanisms. The company maintains that its philanthropic programs operate independently of political or religious agendas and undergo thorough due diligence, including legal and ethical compliance reviews. Google.org explicitly avoids funding lobbying or political activity, and Alphabet clarifies that support for an organization does not equate to endorsement of every stance it may take. Alphabet also reaffirms its commitment to freedom of expression, as stated in its Code of Conduct and product mission. The Board believes current policies adequately safeguard against discriminatory outcomes and ensure that all employees, regardless of personal views, are respected and protected from bias. In light of these systems and values, the Board concludes that the proposed report is unnecessary and would not offer meaningful additional value to shareholders.

PIRC analysis: Disclosure surrounding the company approved charities allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including stakeholder relationship. However, this resolution appears to focus on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that some views are specifically represented among the charities to which the company's customers can donate. The proponents' request appears to be based on a flawed methodology: the fact that the company provides donations to a variety of charities, including those that some shareholders may find objectionable, does not mean that all viewpoints should be equally acceptable. Given the diversity that already exists among the organisations available for donations, a vote against the resolution is recommended.

6.. Shareholder Resolution: Request to Cease CEI Participation

Proponent Shareholder: The National Center for Public Policy Research

Proponent's argument: The proposal requests that Alphabet's Board consider ending participation in the Human Rights Campaign's Corporate Equality Index (CEI), a benchmarking tool that the proponent characterises as ideologically driven and harmful to shareholder value. The proponent asserts that the CEI enforces controversial social and political standards under threat of negative scoring, compelling companies to adopt divisive policies unrelated to their business mission. The proposal highlights that Alphabet's perfect CEI score reflects compliance with criteria that it claims promote gender ideology and controversial healthcare practices, risking reputational harm and financial backlash. Citing examples like Bud Light, Target, Disney, and Planet Fitness, the proponent argues that companies which aligned themselves with similar activist causes suffered major declines in revenue or market value. It further notes that several companies, including Lowe's and Walmart, have ended CEI participation in response to shareholder concerns. The proponent views Alphabet's continued participation as a misuse of shareholder assets and a source of avoidable risk, calling on the Board to reconsider its alignment with what it describes as a hyper-partisan advocacy agenda.

Company's Response: Alphabet's Board recommends voting against the proposal, asserting that it constitutes an attempt to micromanage the company's ordinary business operations. The company explains that decisions about participation in third-party benchmarking tools like the CEI are operational matters that should remain within the discretion of management, who are best positioned to evaluate strategic partnerships and reputational implications. Alphabet emphasises that engagement with organisations does not equate to full endorsement of their agendas and that its participation in external frameworks is guided by internal assessments and stakeholder feedback. The company highlights its established compliance program and oversight structure, which include regular Board-level monitoring of reputational, regulatory, and policy risks. It also stresses that its public policy contributions are transparent and subject to restrictions, such as prohibiting political use by recipient organisations. Given these existing safeguards and the need for management flexibility, Alphabet concludes that the proposal is not in the best interests of the company or its shareholders and recommends a vote against it.

PIRC analysis: This resolution appears to be part of a broader campaign by right-wing advocacy groups to challenge corporate diversity and inclusion frameworks by targeting participation in external benchmarking tools such as the Human Rights Campaign's Corporate Equality Index (CEI). While proponents frame the proposal as a fiduciary concern related to reputational and financial risk, the resolution is ideologically motivated and seeks to halt Alphabet's participation in a standard benchmarking practice that supports inclusive workplace policies. Participation in initiatives like the CEI promotes alignment with widely accepted norms on non-discrimination and supports the company's ability to attract and retain talent across a diverse workforce. These frameworks are part of ordinary business operations and fall within management's discretion. Ending participation would send a signal of retreat from commitments to inclusion and equality, potentially undermining employee morale and company reputation. The resolution functions more as a spoiler than a constructive governance proposal, aiming to disrupt Alphabet's existing DEI strategies rather than improve transparency or performance.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

7.. Shareholder Resolution: Enhanced Disclosure on Climate Goals

Proponent Shareholder: A shareholder coalition led by Trillium ESG Global Equity Fund

Proponent's argument: The proposal calls on Alphabet to enhance its climate-related disclosures to help investors assess whether the company can meet its 2030 climate commitments. The proponent recognises Alphabet's leadership on climate issues, including its early shift to 100 percent renewable energy matching and its goal to reach net-zero greenhouse gas emissions and achieve 24/7 carbon-free energy by 2030. However, the resolution raises concern about Alphabet's growing emissions, which rose 13 percent in 2023 and are now 48 percent higher than in 2019. The increase is primarily attributed to energy demands from AI data centers, which are growing faster than Alphabet's ability to deploy clean energy. Given this trajectory, the resolution urges Alphabet to provide additional transparency on its decarbonisation plan, including scenario analysis, stress testing of its emissions reduction strategies, a breakdown of expected emissions savings per initiative, alignment with global 1.5°C climate pathways, and estimated carbon removal needs. These disclosures would help investors assess the credibility of Alphabet's climate transition strategy, mitigate risk, and reinforce the company's reputation for climate leadership.

Company's Response: Alphabet opposes the proposal, stating that it already discloses extensive information about its climate goals, progress, and the obstacles involved in achieving its targets. The company's annual Environmental Report includes year over year emissions data by scope, carbon free energy metrics, and detailed methodology. It also covers risk assessments and acknowledges the difficulties of decarbonising energy intensive operations such as AI-powered data centers. Alphabet emphasises that its pursuit of innovations like next generation nuclear and geothermal energy reflects its commitment to long-term climate progress.

The company argues that its current disclosures meet best practices and evolving regulatory expectations and are sufficient for shareholders to understand its climate approach. It views the requested report as duplicative and unnecessarily burdensome. Alphabet believes such detailed scenario planning and emissions trajectory modeling would divert resources from operational execution and that climate oversight and planning are best managed by internal experts. The Board concludes that the requested enhanced disclosure is not necessary and recommends voting against the proposal.

PIRC analysis: Most investors recognise that aligning with the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change's 1.5 degrees Celsius pathway requires reducing emissions by half by 2030 and reaching net zero by 2050. These targets should be integrated into business planning through clear short-term and medium-term objectives, supported by transparent reporting. Although Alphabet has set ambitious goals and publicly reports progress, the company's rising emissions, especially from AI-driven data centre growth, raise concerns about the credibility of its transition plan. Shareholders would benefit from additional information that shows how Alphabet intends to meet its climate targets. This includes scenario analysis, progress tracking of key strategies, and detailed projections that align with international science-based pathways. Improved disclosure would also enhance investors' ability to assess how climate-related risks and opportunities are being addressed. It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

8.. Shareholder Resolution: Equal Shareholder Voting

Proponent Shareholder: A shareholder coalition led by NorthStar Asset Management, Inc. Funded Pension Plan

Proponent's argument: The proposal requests that Alphabet adopt a recapitalisation plan to transition to a one-share, one-vote structure, phasing out its multi-class voting system over a defined period. Under the current structure, Class B shares hold ten votes per share, giving insiders such as co-founders Larry Page and Sergey Brin majority voting control despite holding a small minority of the company's equity. The proponent argues that this arrangement undermines democratic shareholder governance and entrenches control regardless of management roles. The proposal points to prior shareholder opposition to the creation of non-voting Class C shares and notes concerns over employee-shareholders receiving compensation in stock that lacks voting rights. It links the concentration of voting power to broader governance issues, including workforce treatment and transparency. The resolution draws on recommendations from key institutional investors and governance bodies such as the Council of Institutional Investors and BlackRock, which support sunset clauses and equal voting rights. Governance ratings agencies have also flagged Alphabet's voting structure as high risk. The proponent argues that equal voting rights are fundamental to shareholder accountability and urges support for this recapitalisation plan.

Company's Response: Alphabet opposes the proposal, asserting that its multi-class capital structure has supported long-term strategic stability and value creation since the company's founding. The Board highlights that the dual-class structure enables management to focus on transformative investments and innovation without the short-term pressures often imposed by markets. Alphabet credits this structure with enabling the company to grow into one of the world's most successful businesses. The Board emphasises that the company has robust governance practices, including an independent chair, majority independent directors, fully independent key committees, and regular executive sessions. It also points to its annual director elections and majority voting standard as examples of strong shareholder rights. Governance structures are reviewed regularly, and the Board believes the current system continues to serve the company and its investors well. The proposal, in the Board's view, would remove a foundational aspect of Alphabet's strategy and governance, and would not be in shareholders' best long-term interests. For these reasons, the Board recommends voting against the resolution.

PIRC analysis: It is considered that the existing class structure treats the majority of shareholders inequitably: the principle of one-share-one-vote is considered to be best practice and voting rights should be allocated equitably. It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

9.. Shareholder Resolution: Due Diligence Process to Assess Human Rights Risks in CAHRA

Proponent Shareholder: A shareholder coalition led by Zevin Asset Management

Proponent's argument: The proposal calls on Alphabet to commission an independent third-party report on the company's due diligence processes related to human rights risks in conflict-affected and high-risk areas (CAHRA). The proponent highlights the growing number and severity of global conflicts and argues that Alphabet's products and services may be used by state and government actors for surveillance, censorship, and military operations in these regions. Specific concerns include cloud infrastructure and data access in Saudi Arabia, surveillance technology used by U.S. Customs and Border Protection, links to Chinese surveillance systems, and the controversial Project Nimbus contract with the Israeli government. The proponents cite Alphabet's own Human Rights Policy, which affirms transparency and commitment to responsible technology use, but argue that there is currently no clear disclosure on how these commitments are operationalised or enforced in CAHRA contexts. The resolution seeks more detailed and transparent oversight of the human rights due diligence practices Alphabet uses to assess customer usage of its technology in high-risk regions, and whether additional safeguards or governance are necessary to mitigate exposure to human rights violations.

Company's Response : Alphabet's Board opposes the proposal, asserting that the company already has a robust human rights governance structure in place to assess and manage civil and human rights risks. Oversight is provided by senior management and the Audit Committee, while the internal Human Rights Program advises product teams, conducts due diligence, and engages external experts to inform business practices across the company. Alphabet states that its approach is grounded in international frameworks such as the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights and the Global Network Initiative Principles. The company also points to its long-standing transparency efforts, including the Google Transparency Report and participation in the Lumen database for government content removal requests. In relation to AI risks, Alphabet has developed governance frameworks based on its AI Principles and publishes an annual Responsible AI Progress Report. The Board believes that existing oversight, policies, and reporting practices provide sufficient accountability and transparency. Therefore, the Board concludes that the additional reporting requested by the proposal would not result in meaningful added value for shareholders and recommends voting against it.

PIRC analysis: Shareholders increasingly expect companies to demonstrate how they manage human rights risks in complex geopolitical environments, especially where products and services may contribute to surveillance, censorship, or armed conflict. Alphabet operates globally, including in markets that present heightened human rights risks, and has acknowledged its commitments under international frameworks such as the UN Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights. However, despite these commitments and existing reporting through transparency portals, investors lack clarity on how the company evaluates and responds to the misuse of its technology in conflict-affected and high-risk areas. The proposal is not asking for a change in policy but rather for enhanced disclosure of the processes by which Alphabet assesses and mitigates human rights risks, particularly in regions where government and military use may conflict with human rights standards. A third-party assessment would help reassure shareholders that the company's due diligence processes are credible, consistent, and responsive to growing scrutiny. The requested report is reasonable, limited in scope, and aligned with the interests of long-term investors. It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

10.. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Risks of Discrimination in GenAI

Proponent Shareholder: Inspire Investing, LLC, on behalf of William C. Cunningham

Proponent's argument: The proposal calls on Alphabet to publish a report evaluating how it oversees and mitigates risks of bias and discrimination in its generative AI (GenAI) systems, particularly regarding political or religious views. The proponent argues that GenAI tools are increasingly used to moderate content and deliver information, giving them significant influence over public discourse. The resolution expresses concern that vague policies around misinformation and hate speech could lead to the suppression of lawful and constitutionally protected viewpoints. It claims that pressure from governments, regulatory environments, and activist groups risks pushing Alphabet's AI models toward censoring controversial but legitimate perspectives. The proponent cites past incidents and reputational controversies, such as the Gemini model's handling of historical representations, to support the case that GenAI systems can produce discriminatory or ideologically biased outputs. It asserts that without enhanced oversight, Alphabet could expose itself to legal and reputational risks, particularly around freedom of speech and equal treatment. The resolution seeks transparency on how Alphabet ensures its AI systems uphold civil rights, religious freedom, and political neutrality.

Company's Response : Alphabet opposes the proposal, stating that its existing AI governance and transparency practices already address the concerns raised.

The company emphasises its foundational mission to make information universally accessible, which underpins its commitment to free expression. It highlights its longstanding AI Principles, which are updated regularly, and its investments in responsible AI development, including the publication of detailed annual AI Responsibility Reports. Alphabet points to "model cards" and technical documentation-such as those accompanying the Gemini 1.5 and Imagen 3 models-as core tools for communicating safety evaluations, bias mitigation, and system limitations. These materials are designed to disclose how the company minimises unfair bias and representational harm while maintaining model safety and compliance with societal norms. Alphabet also references public statements and disclosures, including "Our Approach to the Gemini App," which outline its methodology for governing GenAI. The Board concludes that existing disclosures and processes sufficiently address stakeholder concerns and that the requested report would be duplicative. Therefore, it recommends voting against the proposal.

PIRC analysis: The resolution requests a report on how Alphabet manages risks of bias in generative AI systems, particularly with regard to political and religious viewpoints. While presented as a call for fairness and civil rights, the resolution is aligned with a right-wing perspective that seeks to ensure conservative viewpoints are not excluded or marginalised in AI outputs. It reflects ongoing concerns among certain shareholder groups about how content moderation policies and AI safety protocols may interact with freedom of expression and ideological diversity. Alphabet has already disclosed substantial information through its model cards, technical reports, and Responsible AI progress updates, which outline its efforts to mitigate bias, maintain safety, and uphold responsible development standards. While the general subject of AI fairness is legitimate, the proposal does not demonstrate that Alphabet's current disclosures are insufficient or that additional reporting would significantly enhance investor understanding.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

11.. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Cyber-Related Risks

Proponent Shareholder: The National Legal and Policy Center

Proponent's argument: The proposal asks Alphabet to publish a report assessing risks related to the unethical or improper use of external data in the development and deployment of its artificial intelligence products. The proponent expresses concern that the company's leadership in the AI industry, combined with the vast data resources at its disposal, may lead to legal, reputational, and regulatory risks if data is sourced or handled inappropriately. The supporting statement highlights past privacy incidents involving Alphabet, including a class-action lawsuit over data collection in private browsing mode and regulatory inquiries in the European Union. It also raises concerns about the company's historic relationships with government surveillance entities. The resolution argues that Alphabet's dominant role in AI development increases the importance of robust data governance and transparency, particularly as regulators and courts begin to scrutinise data sourcing practices in AI training. The proponent suggests that consumer trust and long-term value creation depend on the company demonstrating that its AI data practices are ethical, lawful, and rigorously overseen.

Company's Response: Alphabet opposes the proposal, asserting that its AI and data governance systems already provide strong oversight and meet evolving legal and ethical expectations. The company outlines its internal infrastructure, which includes detailed tracking of AI asset lineage, compliance with global regulatory frameworks like the EU AI Act, and robust safety protocols. It states that user privacy is a foundational principle, supported by responsible data minimisation, transparent controls, and compliance with regulations such as GDPR. Alphabet notes it has introduced publisher opt-out controls via Google-Extended and that its AI launches follow structured governance reviews. The company also references its Secure AI Framework (SAIF), which provides security principles for AI systems and aligns with international best practices. Alphabet highlights its active engagement with policymakers and cross-industry initiatives such as the Coalition for Secure AI. The Board believes that the requested report would duplicate existing oversight structures and disclosures, and that current practices sufficiently address the concerns raised. A vote against the proposal is therefore recommended.

PIRC analysis: The proposal requests that Alphabet publish a report on the ethical and operational risks arising from the use of external data in the training and deployment of its artificial intelligence systems. As Alphabet scales its AI models across numerous applications, stakeholders have a legitimate interest in understanding how data is sourced, how usage risks are evaluated, and how those risks are being mitigated. This includes concerns about the legality of data scraping, potential bias in datasets, and the use of AI systems in contexts that may raise ethical, legal, or social concerns. A comprehensive review of data usage should not only address the technical processes involved, but also examine how the company governs issues related to privacy, consent, and downstream applications such as surveillance. The resolution is not overly prescriptive and allows for reasonable flexibility in how the company might implement the report. It is aligned with broader investor expectations that AI governance includes transparent oversight of data practices, particularly in light of mounting regulatory scrutiny and reputational risk. It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

12.. Shareholder Resolution: Human Rights Impact Assessment of AI-Driven Targeted Ad Policies

Proponent Shareholder: A shareholder coalition led by Shareholder Association for Research & Education on behalf of the United Church of Canada Pension Plan
Proponent's argument: The proposal requests that Alphabet publish an independent third-party Human Rights Impact Assessment (HRIA) focused on its AI-driven targeted advertising policies and practices. The proponent highlights that targeted advertising, which accounts for over 75 percent of Alphabet's revenue, relies heavily on AI and data-intensive profiling methods that can pose risks to privacy and human rights. Concerns are raised about the use of cookies and personal data tracking, the lack of transparency in ad safety reporting, and whether appropriate human rights due diligence is conducted for newly launched AI ad features. The proposal also points to relevant EU regulations, such as the Digital Services Act and the Artificial Intelligence Act, which may require stronger safeguards. The proponents argue that Alphabet's AI Principles and prior commitment to human rights due diligence require a comprehensive evaluation of how its ad systems may contribute to discrimination or harm. The assessment would enhance transparency, help mitigate regulatory and reputational risks, and clarify the company's commitments to ethical AI deployment in advertising, a core part of its business strategy.

Company's Response: Alphabet opposes the proposal, stating that it already has a robust human rights governance framework and privacy program in place. The company points to its Human Rights Program, which includes oversight by senior management and the Audit Committee, and is aligned with international standards such as the UN Guiding Principles. This program advises product teams, conducts due diligence, and engages with external experts. Alphabet also outlines its privacy measures, including data minimisation, user transparency tools, and opt-in ad controls. The company notes that its Publisher Policies prohibit monetisation of discriminatory or harmful content and that its Ads Safety Report provides visibility into enforcement actions. In the context of AI use in advertising, Alphabet emphasises its use of guardrails, advertiser review tools, and policy alignment with anti-discrimination laws. It also references its evolving use of privacy-enhancing technologies and cross-industry collaboration to improve advertising safety and compliance. The Board argues that these existing structures and policies sufficiently address the concerns raised and that a new assessment would be redundant. Therefore, it recommends voting against the resolution.

PIRC analysis: Due to the significant revenue generated by online advertising, concerns arise regarding the potential dissemination of misleading information through the platform, posing potential risks to human rights globally, for which there is a growing amount of evidence. While the company asserts the integration of human rights into its processes, questions persist about the application of these principles to its advertising infrastructure, especially concerning user privacy, bias and discrimination. Regulatory frameworks such as the Digital Services Act and upcoming EU's Artificial Intelligence Act aim to address these concerns, mandating companies to uphold human rights in their data handling and algorithmic decision-making (a process that for the EU aims at trustworthy AI). While the company's response indicates that some work has been done in this area, more could be done. As such the request for the assessment appears reasonable. It is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

14.. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Online Safety for Children

Proponent Shareholder: A shareholder coalition led by Boston Common Asset Management on behalf of the Boston Common ESG Impact US Equity Fund

Proponent's argument: The proposal requests that Alphabet publish a report including quantitative metrics to assess whether and how it has improved child safety and harm reduction across its platforms, particularly YouTube. The proponent raises concerns about the psychological, physical, and privacy-related harms that children may face online, including cyberbullying, exposure to harmful content, sexual exploitation, and mental health issues. The resolution highlights legal and reputational risks, noting that 42 U.S. states have filed lawsuits against Alphabet over harms allegedly caused to children by YouTube's design and business practices. It also references violations of children's data privacy laws and the company's prior fine by the FTC. Although Alphabet has issued statements and provided general updates about its policies, the resolution points out that no consistent or transparent child safety performance metrics are available for shareholders. The proponents argue that without measurable reporting, stakeholders cannot properly assess the effectiveness of Alphabet's child protection tools or evaluate the risk management of one of its most significant user groups.

Company's Response: Alphabet opposes the proposal, stating that it already discloses substantial information related to its child safety efforts and operates under new and evolving regulatory reporting requirements. The company outlines a broad range of initiatives in YouTube and Google products, including Youth Principles, age-appropriate design, ad restrictions for minors, and partnerships with child protection groups. It also references the tools and APIs it provides to external partners to combat child sexual abuse material (CSAM). Alphabet publishes quarterly transparency reports that track enforcement actions, policy violations, and safety-related content removals. It also discloses the Violative View Rate metric to show the percentage of views associated with content violating its policies. Furthermore, Alphabet points to its compliance with regulatory frameworks like the EU Digital Services Act and the UK Online Safety Act, which already require regular and detailed reporting on child safety. The Board concludes that the requested report would be redundant and that existing disclosures and global compliance mechanisms already offer a comprehensive view. Therefore, it recommends voting against the resolution.

PIRC analysis: The proponent asks for a report on the risks associated with potential and actual risks for children (personally or mentally). Such risks can have significant reputational and financial consequences for a company and it is in the best interests of shareholders to be informed of the Company's exposure to and management of such risks. While the company indicates that it is committed to internet's governance and to prevent risks to children deriving from it, it does not disclose the risks to which the company might be exposed regarding additional violations of child safety. Ensuring that users, advertisements and products do not cause setbacks to child rights or straightly violate child rights is considered to be due diligence, in order to uphold company's policies on human rights and minimise corresponding risks.

7. Approve Financial Statements

Disclosure is adequate. The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and have been audited and certified. The Company's Sustainability programme is considered to be adequate in order to minimize the impact from material non-financial risks and aiming at better performance.

However, despite having some climate targets, the company does not have an adequate short-term target. These targets are considered essential for companies that are strategically important for the transition to net zero. Short term emission reductions are required to keep alive the ambition of holding global warming to 1.5 degrees while short term targets are also critical for accountability purposes. Given the time passed since the Paris Agreement and the scale investment risks posed by climate change neither having an adequate short term target is considered to fall short of best practice and poses a major risk for investors. As such, an oppose vote is recommended.

11. Approve Remuneration Policy

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance.

This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

CLARIANT (SWITZERLAND) AG AGM - 01-04-20251.3. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

4.1.1. Elect Ahmed Mohamed Alumar - Vice Chair (Non Executive)

Non-executive Director and Member of the Nomination Committee. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: SABIC. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

PIRC issue: Additionally, regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders. As the Chair of the Nomination Committee is newly elected, opposition is recommended to the member of the Committee.

2. Approve an amendment to Second Restated Certificate of Incorporation to provide for the exculpation of officers

It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.

While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers.

4. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The Company uses adjusted performance metrics for most elements of compensation. The use of non-GAAP metrics prevents shareholders from being able to assess fully whether the performance targets are sufficiently challenging. The Company included non-financial metrics into the annual bonus structure, which is considered best practice. The Company uses only one performance metrics to determine the payout of performance awards. Instead of the use of a sole performance metric, it would be preferred that payout be linked to at least two or more performance metrics, with the inclusion of an non-financial performance criteria. Awards under the annual-incentive plans are tied to multiple performance conditions, which is considered best practice. Performance metrics are replicated under different incentive plans, raising concerns that executives are being rewarded twice for the same performance. Performance shares have a three-year performance period, which is a market standard. However, a five-year performance period is considered best practice. Executive compensation is aligned with peer group averages. In addition, executive compensation is aligned with companies of a similar market cap. The compensation rating is: BDB. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

FIRSTSERVICE CORP -SVTG AGM - 02-04-2025

3. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment.

The Company uses adjusted performance metrics for most elements of compensation. The use of non-GAAP metrics prevents shareholders from being able to assess fully whether the performance targets are sufficiently challenging. The Company does not consider non-financial metrics in its assessment of performance. The annual incentive award made during the year under review is not considered to be overly excessive as it amounts to less than 200% of base salary. Awards under the annual-incentive plans are tied to multiple performance conditions, which is considered best practice. Performance measures attached to long-term incentives do not duplicate those attached to other awards, which is considered acceptable practice. Maximum long-term award opportunities are not limited to 200% of base salary, which raises concerns over the potential excessiveness of the remuneration structure. Retention awards make up a significant portion of the long-term incentives and therefore the scheme does not link pay to performance. Performance shares have a three-year performance period, which is a market standard. However, a five-year performance period is considered best practice.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

The Chair is not considered to be independent as Ms Russo was a member of the Board of Hewlett-Packard Company (the Company's predecessor) effective January 21, 2011. Additionally, she has been on the board for over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nominating, Governance and Social Responsibility and HR and Compensation Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

25. Authorise Share Repurchase

It is proposed to fix the maximum amount available to directors, for the purpose of buying shares on the market. Although this is technically not an authority to repurchase shares, shareholders in Mexico do not approve individual authorities to repurchase shares. As such, identifying the total amount which can be used for repurchasing shares is considered an indirect authority to buy back shares on the market. These resolutions will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board it is recommended that Camden oppose.

7E. Approve Application of the Group's buyout regulations.

The proposal seeks shareholder approval to authorise the potential delivery of shares, rights, or remuneration linked to share value for executive directors under the Group's buyout regulations. These regulations allow Banco Santander to compensate executives or employees who forfeit variable remuneration from their previous employer upon joining the Group. The mechanism is intended to offer flexibility in attracting talent while ensuring fairness in compensating for lost benefits. The total number of shares issued under this resolution must not exceed a value of EUR 40 million, based on a weighted average price calculation over the preceding 50 trading sessions. The authorisation of share-based buyout awards raises concerns about excessive executive compensation and the lack of robust performance conditions tied to these grants. While buyout arrangements can support talent acquisition, they may result in undue rewards unrelated to the executive's performance within the company. Additionally, the significant potential dilution from such share issuances, up to EUR 40 million, could be detrimental to existing shareholders. Approving this resolution may also undermine broader pay equity concerns, particularly if similar retention mechanisms are not available at other levels of the organisation. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

RIO TINTO PLC AGM - 03-04-2025

1. Receive the Annual Report

The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified.

There are concerns regarding the company's sustainability policies and practices. The annual report and financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks, including the lack of board-level accountability for sustainability issues. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders; however, the report fails to do so adequately. Camden is recommended to oppose.

2. Approve Remuneration Report for UK Law Purposes

Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is below the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

3. Approve Remuneration Report for Australian Law Purposes

In accordance with Section 250R of the Australian Corporations Act, the directors are seeking approval of the remuneration report. The Act does not require directors to act on approval of the resolution and the vote is advisory. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed.

16. Re-appoint KPMG LLP as auditors of the Company

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 19.22% of audit fees during the year under review and 16.42% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years and there are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

PIRC issue: In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, Camden is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

19. Approve the Climate Action Plan

It is proposed to the shareholders to approve the Climate Action Plan of the Company.

Disclosure

The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured.

The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios.

The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 and includes scopes 1, 2 and 3 emission reductions in this commitment. The company strategy appears to include an actual reduction of carbon emissions rather than having a heavy reliance on offsetting.

There is evidence of adequate training and learning on the Board and senior management of climate-related issues.

There is adequate experience and knowledge of climate change and decarbonisation on the board of directors, including at least one non-executive director with significant experience of decarbonisation measures from within the core sector of operations of the company.

Governance

There does not appear to be any individual accountability for the policy, and the policy does not list the chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focussed for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability. The company has not pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy, which appears inconsistent with its goals and an obstacle to its effectiveness.

The company has not committed to scope 3 targets that would reduce emissions by at least 50% by 2050 and as such it is considered that this transition plan lacks sufficient ambition and may underestimate key risks and opportunities for the sector, such as shifts in commodity demand for the mining industry, deriving from the pledge to limit global warming to well below 2.0°C, and ideally not more than 1.5°C above preindustrial levels, as contained in the Paris Agreement.

Scope 3 emissions, also referred to as value chain emissions, may represent the majority of an organization's total greenhouse gas emissions (GHG). The mining industry is highly exposed to material risks to climate change and it contributes to Scope 3 emissions an estimate of 4.2 gigatons, mainly through steel and aluminium production. Coal combustion for the power sector contributes up to roughly 10 gigatons of CO₂. According to data from the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, to stay on track for a global 2°C scenario, all sectors would need to reduce CO₂ emissions from 2010 levels by at least 50% by 2050, with a preferred reduction of 85%.

24. Shareholder Resolution: Authorize the Company to conduct an independent, comprehensive and transparent review on whether Rio Tinto's dual listed structure should be unified into a single Australian domiciled holding company.

Proponent's argument: The shareholders proposing Resolution 24 seek a review of Rio Tinto's existing dual-listed company (DLC) structure. Their position, as outlined in Appendix 1 of the company's notice, highlights concerns regarding potential value destruction attributed to the current structure. They argue that the DLC framework has led to an estimated loss of US$50 billion in shareholder value. Their reasoning is based on two primary assertions: 1) Inability to issue stock for M&A: The proponent claims that the DLC structure has limited Rio Tinto's ability to effectively issue shares for strategic mergers and acquisitions (M&A), allegedly leading to a lost opportunity of US$35.6 billion in value; and 2) Franking credit inefficiencies: They assert that the DLC framework prevents optimal utilization of franking credits, estimating an additional US$14.7 billion in potential value that could have been unlocked under a unified structure. The proponents advocate for an independent expert review, with findings made publicly available, to determine whether the DLC structure remains beneficial to Rio Tinto shareholders.

Company's response: The Board of Rio Tinto strongly opposes Resolution 24, unanimously recommending a vote against the proposal. Their opposition is based on findings from a 2024 comprehensive review of the DLC structure, which included detailed input from external financial (Goldman Sachs, J.P. Morgan) and legal (Linklaters LLP, Allens) advisors, alongside tax analysis from EY. Key conclusions from the review include: 1) Effectiveness of the DLC Structure: The current structure supports liquidity, index inclusion, and capital flexibility, offering shareholders a strong platform for returns. Rio Tinto plc is among the top five dividend payers in the FTSE-100; 2) Franking Credit Utilization: Unification would reduce Rio Tinto's ability to pay fully franked dividends in the long term, leading to inefficiencies for shareholders; and 3) Unification Would Be Value Destructive: The Board estimates that moving to a single structure would incur tax costs in the mid-single-digit billions of US dollars, significantly reducing net asset value per share. Furthermore, the Board firmly rejects the proponent's claim of a US$50 billion value destruction, arguing that the calculations are flawed, selective, and misleading. They emphasize that factors such as counterparty willingness and Rio Tinto's capital allocation strategy were not adequately considered in the proponent's assessment.

Recommendation: The shareholder proposal does not provide clear evidence that unification would result in a net benefit for investors. The 2024 review already assessed the DLC structure extensively, and the company has presented compelling reasons why it remains advantageous. Furthermore, removing the UK listing without guarantees that Rio Tinto would maintain equivalent governance and transparency standards introduces significant risks for shareholders. This could weaken oversight, reduce investor protections, and impact market confidence. Given these factors, opposition is recommended.

IV.n. Elect Victor Alberto Tiburcio Celorio - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee.

The director chairs a committee which is not fully independent which does not meet Camden guidelines.

PIRC issue: The level of non-audit fees break-down is not considered to be sufficient, as the Company has not clearly disclosed the nature of non-audit fees. This is considered to be a frustration of shareholder accountability.

Vote Cast: Oppose

IV.o. Elect Olga González Aponte - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director.

The director serves as an executive of a public company, the executive also serves as a NED on the boards of more than two public companies including the company under review. This does not meet Camden's guidelines and cannot be supported. There are concerns over the director's potential time commitments, and the director could not prove full attendance of board and committee meetings during the year.

Vote Cast: Oppose

VI. Elect Planning and Finance Committee, Audit Committee and Corporate Practices Committee

It is proposed to appoint the members and chair of the Audit and Corporate Practices Committee via slate election. Individual election would be preferred and the majority of the candidates are not considered to be independent.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA AGM - 08-04-2025

3. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The Company uses adjusted performance metrics for most elements of compensation. The use of non-GAAP metrics prevents shareholders from being able to assess fully whether the performance targets are sufficiently challenging. The Company included non-financial metrics into the annual bonus structure, which is considered best practice. Awards under the annual-incentive plans are tied to multiple performance conditions, which is considered best practice. Performance measures attached to long-term incentives do not duplicate those attached to other awards, which is considered acceptable practice. Performance shares have a three-year performance period, which is a market standard. However, a five-year performance period is considered best practice. Retention awards made up less than one-third of the awards granted to executives, which is considered best practice. Executive compensation is aligned with peer group averages. In addition, executive compensation is aligned with companies of a similar market cap. The compensation rating is: ACB.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

1b.. Re-elect David Gitlin - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

PIRC issue: The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

1e.. Re-elect Michael M. McNamara - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Technology & Innovation Committee.

The Chair of the Technology & Innovation Committee is accountable for the Company's sustainability programme and there are serious concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice. The Company's sustainability policies, practice and disclosure fall short of Camden guidelines. Additionally, the Technology & Innovation Committee is not fully independent, which also does not meet Camden guidelines.

1h.. Re-elect Michael A. Todman - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Compensation Committee.

The director chairs a committee which is not fully independent which does not meet Camden guidelines.

There are also serious concerns regarding the remuneration policy at the company, and it is considered that the chair of the Compensation Committee should be held accountable for it when considering re-election.

The ratio of CEO, or the highest paid executive officer, to employee pay of the company is greater than 150:1, this does not meet Camden's guidelines.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

1j.. Re-elect Virginia M. Wilson - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Governance Committee

This director is the Chair of the Governance Committee, and with less than 33% of the Board being women, the composition does not meet Camden's guidelines.

PIRC issue: At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of Governance Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

3.. Amend Carrier Global Corporation 2020 Long-term Incentive Plan

The Board proposes an increase of 17,000,000 shares for the company's long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria.

LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

4.3. Elect Carlos Ocaña Orbis - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Nominated by the shareholder Sociedad Estatal de Participaciones Industriales (SEPI), therefore not independent. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Furthermore, the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the member of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure whilst the Chair of the Audit Committee is not up for election.

9. Authorise Share Repurchase

The Share Buyback authority is limited to 10% of the company's share capital, but it exceeds the 18-month duration. While the percentage limit is within acceptable bounds, the extended time frame raises concerns about long-term shareholder value and potential market impact. This extended period could lead to excessive buybacks beyond the intended scope, which is not in line with standard practices. Given the duration exceeds the typical 18-month limit, opposition is recommended.

11. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive Directors with an advisory vote. The Company discloses all elements of remuneration for Executives and Non-Executives. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component, which makes it unlikely that shareholders reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out.

12. Say on Climate

Governance

The Chair does not show accountability for the policy, as the Chair is not listed as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focussed for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability.

There is adequate experience and knowledge of climate change and decarbonisation on the board of directors, including at least one non-executive director with significant experience of decarbonisation measures from within the core sector of operations of the company.

There is evidence of adequate training and learning on the Board and senior management of climate-related issues.

The company has pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy.

Disclosure

The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured.

The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios.

The company has committed to being a long-term targets by 2050 and includes scopes 1, 2 and 3 emission reductions in this commitment. The company strategy appears to include an actual reduction of carbon emissions rather than having a heavy reliance on offsetting.

1f.. Elect Stuart A. Miller - Chair & Co-Chief Executive (Executive)

Chair and Co-Chief Executive Officer. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this.

As there is no formally constituted Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and there are concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice.

2.. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment.

The Company uses adjusted performance metrics for most elements of compensation. The use of non-GAAP metrics prevents shareholders from being able to assess fully whether the performance targets are sufficiently challenging. The Company does not consider non-financial metrics in its assessment of performance. Awards under the annual-incentive plans are tied to multiple performance conditions, which is considered best practice. Performance metrics are replicated under different incentive plans, raising concerns that executives are being rewarded twice for the same performance. Retention awards made up less than one-third of the awards granted to executives, which is considered best practice. The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified.

There are concerns regarding the company's sustainability policies and practices. The annual report and financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks, including the lack of board-level accountability for sustainability issues. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders; however, the report fails to do so adequately. Camden is recommended to oppose.

13. Approve Remuneration Policy

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of the fixed remuneration for the highest paid director. For Executive Directors who have not yet achieved the required shareholding, 50% of the Annual Bonus will normally be paid in cash, with the remainder deferred as either shares or cash for two years provided continued service. Best practise would be for 50% of the Annual Bonus reward to defer to shares for this period regardless of circumstances or if the shareholding requirement is met. The inclusion of non-financial KPIs on the Annual Bonus is welcomed. For the Long-Term Incentives, the performance period is three years, which is considered overly short term, however, a two year holding period applies post vesting, which is welcomed. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has also disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component.

5.2. Approve the remuneration for the Executive Committee

It is proposed to approve the prospective remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the total remuneration cap. The voting outcome of this resolution will be binding for the Company.

The Board proposes to approve a maximum total amount of remuneration for the Executive Committee of CHF 83,000,000 (plus legally required employer contributions to social security systems) for the financial year 2026.

The maximum total amount of remuneration proposed for the Executive Committee for the financial year 2026 is CHF 83,000,000, the same as in the previous year. The amount includes assumptions regarding the number of members of the Executive Committee and the remuneration structure. It also considers the maximum STIP and LTIP awards of 200 percent of the anticipated target incentive amounts and therefore reflects the maximum anticipated total remuneration that could arise under the remuneration policy.

Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance.

8. Amend Articles: Approve Virtual-only meetings

It is proposed to amend the articles in order to allow virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing virtual-only meetings.

THE TORONTO-DOMINION BANK AGM - 10-04-2025

3. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The Company uses adjusted performance metrics for most elements of compensation. The use of non-GAAP metrics prevents shareholders from being able to assess fully whether the performance targets are sufficiently challenging. The Company included non-financial metrics into the annual bonus structure, which is considered best practice. Awards under the annual-incentive plans are tied to multiple performance conditions, which is considered best practice. Performance measures attached to long-term incentives do not duplicate those attached to other awards, which is considered acceptable practice. Retention awards made up less than one-third of the awards granted to executives, which is considered best practice. Performance shares have a three-year performance period, which is a market standard. However, a five-year performance period is considered best practice.

10. Shareholder Resolution: Bharat Masrani Dismissal

Proponent Shareholder: Jacques Paquet

Proponent's argument: The proponent requests that Toronto Dominion (TD) immediately dismiss Mr. Bharat Masrani from his advisory role and prohibit him from holding any position within the bank or its subsidiaries. The proposal criticises Mr. Masrani's leadership during his decade-long tenure as CEO, citing TD's recent legal and regulatory issues, including a record US$3.9 billion fine in the United States for money laundering violations and a separate penalty in Canada. The proponent accuses Mr. Masrani of poor governance, failing to inform shareholders of critical investigations and the failed acquisition of First Horizon Bank. The argument draws parallels to the Wells Fargo scandal and contends that retaining Mr. Masrani damages the bank's reputation, performance, and shareholder value. The proponent believes that for TD to rebuild trust and improve performance, it must fully sever ties with Mr. Masrani and appoint a qualified leader with external banking experience.

Company's Response : The company opposes the proposal, stating that Mr. Masrani officially retired as CEO and director on February 1, 2025. His temporary advisory role is limited, providing transition support and institutional knowledge during a critical period as TD navigates its anti-money laundering (AML) remediation program. The board emphasises that this advisory role ends July 31, 2025, and is essential for assisting the new Group President and CEO, Mr. Chun, in ensuring continuity and stability. Mr. Chun is leading the bank's management team, undertaking a broad business review, and developing a refreshed strategy. TD argues that prematurely ending Mr. Masrani's role would interfere with CEO succession planning and risk undermining the bank's U.S. regulatory compliance efforts. For these reasons, the board recommends shareholders vote against the proposal.

PIRC analysis: The proposal requests the immediate dismissal of Mr. Masrani from any advisory or other role at the bank due to concerns over past leadership and regulatory issues. However, the company has clarified that Mr. Masrani officially retired as an executive and director in February 2025. He currently holds a temporary and limited advisory role solely to support the CEO transition and assist with the bank's AML remediation program, with this role set to conclude by July 31, 2025. Given that Mr. Masrani is no longer part of TD's executive leadership or board, and that his advisory role is transitional and time-bound, the proposal is considered unnecessary. The board has already addressed leadership succession and governance changes.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

11. Shareholder Resolution: Age Limits

Proponent Shareholder: Jacques Paquet

Proponent's argument: The proponent requests that the company amend its corporate governance policies to impose a maximum age limit of 65 years for board directors and cap board terms at seven years, without renewal. The proposal argues that current policies, which allow directors to serve until age 75 and for up to 20 years with extensions, are outdated and ill-suited to the rapid pace of technological and societal change. The proponent claims that lengthy tenures and older directors risk weakening oversight, particularly in complex areas like risk management and audit, citing failures between 2014 and 2023 that allegedly led to shareholder losses. The proposal contends that refreshing board composition with younger, technologically adept members is essential to ensure effective governance and protect shareholder interests.

Company's Response : The company opposes the proposal, asserting that TD has already modernised its director term limit policy, reducing the maximum extension from five to two years, which is leading edge compared to industry standards. Under the updated policy effective January 2025, directors may serve up to 10 years, with a possible two-year extension if in the bank's best interest. TD maintains that imposing a rigid age limit would harm the bank's ability to attract and retain high-caliber directors with diverse skills, experiences, and perspectives. The board emphasises its active renewal efforts, highlighting that 79% of directors are within their first three years of service and the average board tenure is just 2.2 years. TD believes balancing continuity with fresh perspectives ensures effective oversight. For these reasons, the board recommends shareholders vote against the proposal.

PIRC analysis: While board renewal and diversity are important elements of good corporate governance, imposing an arbitrary age limit for directors is considered overly restrictive and potentially discriminatory. Age alone is not an appropriate measure of a director's capability, judgment, or value to the board. Modern governance best practices prioritise a mix of skills, experience, and perspectives, including generational diversity, rather than exclusion based on age. Mandatory age limits risk eliminating highly qualified and high-performing directors solely due to their age, undermining board effectiveness and depriving shareholders of experienced oversight during critical periods.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12. Shareholder Resolution: Reverse CEO Appointment

Proponent Shareholder: Jacques Paquet

Proponent's argument: The proponent requests that the company reverse the appointment of Mr. Chun as Group President and CEO and instead recruit a new leader externally. The proposal argues that Mr. Chun represents a continuation of the same management style associated with the company's past leadership under Mr. Masrani, which has been criticised for regulatory failures, lawsuits, fines, and weak shareholder returns. The proponent contends that a fresh, external appointment is necessary to restore confidence, drive cultural change, and prevent further scandals, drawing comparisons to Wells Fargo's leadership overhaul during its own crisis. The proposal claims that TD's current approach lacks the independence needed to fully address past failures and calls for outside leadership experienced in Canadian and U.S. banking.

Company's Response : The company opposes the proposal, emphasising that CEO succession is a core board responsibility. TD highlights that Mr. Chun's appointment followed a rigorous, multi-year process involving independent external advisors and the evaluation of internal and external candidates. The board unanimously concluded that Mr. Chun is the right leader, bringing 32 years of diverse experience within TD and a proven record of delivering results. Mr. Chun has already launched a comprehensive review of the bank's operations, focused on customer experience, operational excellence, and cultural renewal. TD believes that replacing Mr. Chun now would undermine this ongoing transition, disrupt strategic momentum, and infringe upon the board's governance duties. The board reaffirms confidence in Mr. Chun and recommends voting against the proposal.

PIRC analysis: The proposal calls for reversing the appointment of the current CEO and mandating an external hire. However, under standard corporate governance principles, CEO succession is the responsibility of the board, with shareholders exercising their oversight by approving or rejecting directors at AGMs. Shareholders elect the board, which is accountable for setting strategy and appointing executive leadership. If shareholders are dissatisfied with management decisions, including leadership appointments, they have the ability to express their views by voting on director elections. This preserves clear governance structures and board accountability. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

It is proposed to approve the prospective variable remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the cap for the variable remuneration component. The voting outcome of this resolution will be binding for the Company.

It is proposed to fix the remuneration of members of the Executive Committee until next AGM at CHF 114,185,176. The Company submitted two separate proposals for Executives fixed and variable remuneration, which is welcomed. With this separation, if shareholders rejected the variable compensation at a future potential retrospective proposal, the Company may nevertheless pay fixed salaries. The Ordinance Against Excessive Payments provides that if compensation is not approved, it may not be paid.

The Share Buyback authority is limited to 10% of the company's share capital, but it exceeds the 18-month duration. While the percentage limit is within acceptable bounds, the extended time frame raises concerns about long-term shareholder value and potential market impact. This extended period could lead to excessive buybacks beyond the intended scope, which is not in line with standard practices.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6.b.. Re-elect Peter van Bommel - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board and member of the NSR Committee. It is considered that the members of the remuneration committee are responsible for the company's remuneration report, and owing to concerns with the company's remuneration report, opposition is recommended.

The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Nomination Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall. As no new Chair for the Committee has been announced, responsibility falls to members of the committee.

This director is a member of the Nomination Committee, and with less than 20% of the Board being women, the composition does not meet Camden's guidelines.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

7.a.. Approve Remuneration Policy

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

8.. Issue Shares for Cash

Authority to issue shares without pre-emptive rights is proposed for less than 10% of the current share capital. However; the duration of the authority exceeds 18 months. It is considered that shareholders should have the occasion to vote on such resolutions annually or at least at the next AGM.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

1.3. Discharge the Board

Standard resolution. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

3. Re-appoint PwC as the Auditors of the Company

PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 3.64% of audit fees during the year under review and 4.27% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

In addition, based on PIRC's overall assessment of the company's transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Red, indicating that it falls significantly short of PIRC's expectations. In particular, the company has failed to set emissions targets covering all relevant emissions scopes. As such, it is

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ACA .

The Company included non-financial metrics into the annual bonus structure, which is considered best practice. The annual incentive award made during the year under review is not considered to be overly excessive as it amounts to less than 200% of base salary. Awards under the annual-incentive plans are tied to multiple performance conditions, which is considered best practice. Performance metrics are replicated under different incentive plans, raising concerns that executives are being rewarded twice for the same performance. Retention awards made up less than one-third of the awards granted to executives, which is considered best practice. Performance shares have a three-year performance period, which is a market standard. However, a five-year performance period is considered best practice. Executive compensation is aligned with peer group averages. In addition, executive compensation is aligned with companies of a similar market cap. However, maximum long-term award opportunities are not limited to 200% of base salary, which raises concerns over the potential excessiveness of the remuneration structure. On balance it is recommended that Camden oppose.

This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Additionally, the company's auditor does not disclose considering climate and it is not clear whether they assessed climate-related risks associated with a 1.5C scenario. As such it is recommended that Camden oppose the re-appointment of the auditor.

SYNOPSIS INC AGM - 10-04-2025

1a.. Re-elect Dr. Aart J. de Geus - Chair (Executive)

Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

1e.. Re-elect Janice D. Chaffin - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee and Member of the Compensation and Organisational Development Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

It is also considered that the Compensation and Organisational Development Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

The Chair of the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimise material risks linked to sustainability.

Ms. Chaffin received significant opposition of more than 10% of the votes cast at the 2024 Annual Meeting, and the company has not disclosed the steps taken to address discontent with shareholders.

PIRC issue: At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Furthermore, although sufficient biographical information has been disclosed, the company has not disclosed a skills matrix or an equivalent document, where the disclosure of the skills of each of the directors on the board be made available to shareholders and could be assessed. On balance, the level of disclosure is therefore not considered to be adequate.

Mr. Painter Chairs the Compensation and Organisational Development Committee which is not fully independent; this does not meet Camden guidelines. There are serious concerns regarding the remuneration policy at the company, and it is considered that the Chair of the Compensation and Organisational Development Committee should be held accountable for it when considering re-election.

The ratio of CEO to employee pay of the company stands at 292:1; this is greater than 150:1 thus does not meet Camden's guidelines.

3.. Approve Employee Stock Purchase Plan, as Amended

It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed.

Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries; it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions.

4.. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The Company uses adjusted performance metrics for most elements of compensation. The use of non-GAAP metrics prevents shareholders from being able to assess fully whether the performance targets are sufficiently challenging. The Company included non-financial metrics into the annual bonus structure, which is considered best practice. Awards under the annual-incentive plans are tied to multiple performance conditions, which is considered best practice. Performance measures attached to long-term incentives do not duplicate those attached to other awards, which is considered acceptable practice. Retention awards made up less than one-third of the awards granted to executives, which is considered best practice. Performance shares have a three-year performance period, which is a market standard. However, a five-year performance period is considered best practice. Executive compensation is not aligned with peer group averages.

EMMI AG AGM - 10-04-2025

4.3. Approval of the variable remuneration of the Group Executive Board for the 2024 financial year

It is proposed to fix the remuneration of members of the Executive Committee until next AGM at CHF 1.317 million (CHF 1.279 million were paid for the year under review). The Company submitted two separate proposals for Executives fixed and variable remuneration, which is welcomed. With this separation, if shareholders rejected the variable compensation at a future potential retrospective proposal, the Company may nevertheless pay fixed salaries. The Ordinance Against Excessive Payments provides that if compensation is not approved, it may not be paid.

Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not adequately quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

1.1. Approve Financial Statements

The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are some concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns. The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified.

There are concerns regarding the company's sustainability policies and practices. The annual report and financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks, including the lack of board-level accountability for sustainability issues. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders; however, the report fails to do so adequately. Camden is recommended to oppose.

1.2. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed.

The Board proposes the approval of the aggregate amount of variable share-based compensation elements to be allocated to the members of the Executive Board, who were active members in 2024, in the amount of CHF 14,941,000, including CHF 1,186,000 of estimated social security contributions and miscellaneous. The Company submitted two separate proposals (cash-based and share-based) for Executive's variable remuneration, and another for fixed remuneration, which is welcomed. With this separation, if shareholders rejected the variable compensation at a future potential retrospective proposal, the Company may nevertheless pay fixed salaries. The Ordinance Against Excessive Payments provides that if compensation is not approved, it may not be paid.

Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. ROYAL BANK OF CANADA AGM - 10-04-2025

3. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ADB.

The Company uses adjusted performance metrics for most elements of compensation. The use of non-GAAP metrics prevents shareholders from being able to assess fully whether the performance targets are sufficiently challenging. Awards under the annual-incentive plans are tied to multiple performance conditions, which is considered best practice. Performance measures attached to long-term incentives do not duplicate those attached to other awards, which is considered acceptable practice. Performance shares have a three-year performance period, which is a market standard. However, a five-year performance period is considered best practice. Retention awards made up less than one-third of the awards granted to executives, which is considered best practice. The Company does not consider non-financial metrics in its assessment of performance.

4. Amend Existing Executive Share Option Plan

The Board proposes an amendment to the existing Stock Option Plan, which was originally approved in 2000. Under the revised plan, the number of common shares available for issuance will increase by 15 million, raising the total reserved shares to 127 million. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that vest over a three-year period, but there are no clearly defined performance targets. Additionally, the plan grants the Board significant discretion in determining vesting conditions at the time of each grant, reducing transparency and weakening the alignment between rewards and performance. Moreover, the total potential reward raises concerns of excessiveness, amplifying risks of shareholder dilution.

3. Re-appoint PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP as Auditor of the Company

PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 1.57% of audit fees during the year under review and 1.19% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

PIRC issue: In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, PIRC is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

6. Approve the Remuneration Report

Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.

1l.. Elect Kim K.W. Rucker - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nominating, Governance and Social Responsibility Committee.

The Chair of the Nominating, Governance and Social Responsibility Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimise material risks linked to sustainability.

PIRC Issue: At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of Nominating, Governance and Social Responsibility Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

3.. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment.

The Company uses adjusted performance metrics for most elements of compensation. The use of non-GAAP metrics prevents shareholders from being able to assess fully whether the performance targets are sufficiently challenging. The Company included non-financial metrics into the annual bonus structure, which is considered best practice. Awards under the annual-incentive plans are tied to multiple performance conditions, which is considered best practice. Performance measures attached to long-term incentives do not duplicate those attached to other awards, which is considered acceptable practice. Retention awards made up less than one-third of the awards granted to executives, which is considered best practice. Performance shares have a three-year performance period, which is a market standard. However, a five-year performance period is considered best practice. Executive compensation is not aligned with peer group averages.

Additionally, the Remuneration Committee is not fully independent, which falls short of Camden Guidelines.

The compensation rating is: ACA. Based on this rating, and due to the Remuneration Committee not being fully independent, it is recommended Camden oppose.

FLUGHAFEN ZURICH AG AGM - 14-04-2025

5. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8.2. Approve Remuneration for the Members of the Management Board.

It is proposed to approve the remuneration payable to the Members of the Management Board. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On these grounds, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

ATHENS INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT AGM - 14-04-2025

1. Submission and approval of the annual financial statements for the fiscal year 2024, with the attached thereto Reports of the Board of Directors and the Independent Certified Auditors

It was not possible to secure sufficient information in English from the Company to enable delivery of an informed report. Reports are provided for companies which provide adequate and timely disclosure of materials in English which explain the meeting agenda. Best efforts have been made to obtain such disclosures for this meeting but have not been successful. Unless sufficient information becomes available subsequent to the issuance of these recommendations, It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. Submission for discussion of the Remuneration Report of the members of the Board of Directors for the financial year 2024, in accordance with article 112 § 3 of Law 4548/2018

It is proposed to approve the remuneration paid or due to executives with an advisory vote. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated, although there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Approval of the overall management of the Board of Directors of the Company for the fiscal year 2024

Although no evidence of wrongdoing has been identified at this time, abstention is recommended due to the lack of financial statements or annual report for the year under review, which prevents shareholders from making an informed decision.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Approval of the remuneration and compensation paid to the members of the Board of Directors and its Committees for the fiscal year 2024 and approval of the advance payment of remuneration and compensation for the fiscal year 2025

The Board of Directors recommends to the General Meeting to approve in full the remuneration and compensation paid to the members of the Board of Directors during the fiscal year 2024. At the Ordinary General Meeting, that was held on 25.04.2024, a total amount of up to €682,000 was pre-approved; the fees and compensation finally paid to the Members of the Board of Directors during the fiscal year 2024 amounted to a total sum of €694,280. In addition, it is proposed the shareholders to approve the compensation for the Board for the FY2025 of f €799,488. The amount payable to the Board of Directors by more than 10% per director on annual basis.

The increase is considered material and exceeds guidelines, while the company has not duly justified it.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. Election of the Certified Auditors Accountants firm for the audit of the annual and interim financial statements

EY proposed. An adequate break-down of the nature of non-audit fees is not provided, which makes the assessment of auditor's independence based on the non-audit fee impossible. The date of appointment of the auditor is not disclosed, meaning that there are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12. Amendment of the Remuneration Policy of the members of the Company's Board of Directors

The Board of Directors, following the relevant recommendation of the Company's Remuneration & Nomination Committee, proposes to the General Meeting the revision of the Remuneration Policy of the members of the Board of Directors, by adding provisions for a long-term incentive plan for the executive members of the Board of Directors. The revised Remuneration Policy of the Company apart from the Short-Term Incentive Plan (STIP) also includes the terms of a Long-Term Incentive Plan (LTIP) for the Executive Members of the Board of Directors. The Plan consists of four (4) separate reward periods, based on performance, each lasting three years, which begin annually, consecutively, in the years 2024– 2027. Any provided rewards will vest upon completion of the three-year period, subject to the fulfilment of Company performance criteria. Under the existing Plan, the Company performance criteria considered for securing the relevant award amounts are primarily the total shareholder return of the Company (TSR), the Adjusted earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortization (EBITDA) margin, predefined ESG targets, and the achievement of milestones for Major Projects or Strategic Initiatives as they will be specified and determined by the Board of Directors during the corresponding three-year period of the Plan. The proposed Variable remuneration does not seem to be consistently capped and as such there are excessiveness concerns as the total potential variable remuneration may exceed 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is against best practices.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Introduction of a long-term stock award program of the Company (Performance Stock Awards), pursuant to article 114 of Law 4548/2018. Granting authorization to the Board of Directors to determine the specific award terms

The Board of Directors, following the relevant recommendation of the Company's Joint Remuneration & Nomination and Personnel Committee, proposes to the General Meeting the approval of the award of up to 1,250,000 common, registered shares of the Company to executive members of the Board of Directors and/or senior and/or high-level management executives of the Company. The proposed stock award will take place as follows: a) Maximum number and category of shares to be awarded: Up to 340,000 shares will be awarded per three-year period of the program, totalling up to 1,250,000 shares. The nominal value of the shares to be awarded shall not exceed 1% of the paid-up share capital of the Company, b) Source of the shares to be awarded: The shares will be treasury shares pursuant to article 49 § 3 of Law 4548/2018, and c) Award terms: The shares may be awarded in the years 2027, 2028, 2029, and 2030, taking into account the achievement of key performance indicators by the Company over the three fiscal years preceding each award year, such as, indicatively, the total shareholder return of the Company (TSR), the adjusted earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation, and amortization (EBITDA) margin, predefined ESG targets, achievement of milestones for Major Projects or Strategic Initiatives, as they will be specified and determined by the Board of Directors. The award of shares will be subject to a mandatory lock-up period of twenty-four (24) months for the 50% of the shares granted per beneficiary.

The Board proposes the approval of a new incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded options/rights to receive shares, which will start vesting after three years from the date of award. The Company does not disclose clear performance criteria but only a list of indicators, which makes it impossible to assess clearly the link between pay and performance and is deemed a serious frustration of shareholder accountability. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

14. Approval of Treasury Shares Acquisition Program

The Board of Directors proposes to the General Meeting the approval of the acquisition of the Company's treasury shares, in accordance with the provisions of article 49 of Law 4548/2018, in conjunction with the provisions of Regulation (EU) 596/2014 and Delegated Regulation (EU) 2016/1052. The maximum number of treasury shares to be acquired shall not exceed 1% of the Company's paid-up share capital, within a period of 24 months from the date of the relevant resolution of the General Meeting. The Share Buyback authority is limited to 1% of the company's share capital, but it exceeds the 18-month duration. While the percentage limit is within acceptable bounds, the extended time frame raises concerns about long-term shareholder value and potential market impact. This extended period could lead to excessive buybacks beyond the intended scope, which is not in line with standard practices. Given the duration exceeds the typical 18-month limit. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

PIRAEUS FINANCIAL HOLDINGS SA AGM - 14-04-2025

4. Appointment of Certified Auditors for the financial year 01.01.2025 - 31.12.2025 and approval of their fees

Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 28.00% of audit fees during the year under review and 28.00% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

9. Approval of distribution of discretionary reserves of an amount up to €0.23 million to the Company's staff

It is proposed to distribute up to EUR 0.23 millions from reserves, including share premium. Although legal in this market, it is considered that the share premium account should be moved into distributable reserves through a reduction of capital, and it should not be used as distributable reserve per se. As the Company proposes a direct distribution from the share premium account. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

10. Approval of amendment of the Directors' Remuneration Policy

It is proposed to the shareholders to approve the amendments on the remuneration policy of the Company. The proposed amendments are in line with market legislation and are considered adequate, however, the Bonus gap will be increase from 100% to 200% which raises concerns for potential excessiveness. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12. Approval to grant free common shares to executives and employees of the Company and affiliated entities, as defined in article 32 of Law 4308/2014

It is proposed to approve the grant free common shares of the Company to executives and employees of the Company and its affiliated entities. This proposal aims to reward executives and employees for their contribution to the achievement of the Group's strategic objectives and of specific financial and operational goals. The total number of free shares to be distributed over a period of twenty-four (24) months shall not exceed ten million seven hundred thousand (10,700,000) common registered voting shares with a nominal value of €0.93 each, i.e. the total nominal value of the shares to be distributed shall not exceed €9,951,000.00, representing 0.86% of the Company's share capital on the date of the General Meeting's decision.

The proposal for employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clearly performance criteria and conditions.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Approval to acquire Company's own shares (Share Buy-back Programme) and granting of relevant authorizations to the Board of Directors

The Share Buyback authority is limited to 0.83% of the company's share capital, but it exceeds the 18-month duration. While the percentage limit is within acceptable bounds, the extended time frame raises concerns about long-term shareholder value and potential market impact. This extended period could lead to excessive buybacks beyond the intended scope, which is not in line with standard practices. Given the duration exceeds the typical 18-month limit.

17. Granting of permission, as per article 98 par. 1 of Law 4548/2018, to the Members of the Board of Directors and Managers of the Company, to participate on the Board of Directors or in the management of the Company's subsidiaries and affiliates

Approval is sought for directors to serve on the board of other companies engaged in activities within the scope of the company's business. There are concerns over the risks and potential negative impact on shareholders interest connected to directors or other officers of the Company serving for competing companies. In addition, there is insufficient description on how the Company will take measure to monitor the conflicts of interest and prevent any negative effect for the Company and ultimately its shareholders.

SANDOZ GROUP AG AGM - 15-04-20251. Approve Financial Statements

The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified.

There are concerns regarding the company's sustainability policies and practices. The annual report and financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks, including the lack of board-level accountability for sustainability issues. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders; however, the report fails to do so adequately. Camden is recommended to oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 97.8, Abstain: 2.2, Oppose/Withhold: 0.1,

2. Approve Non-Financial Statements

The non-financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and include the auditor's independent verification report. However, there are serious concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level governance structure for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the non-financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks.

5.2. Amend Articles: Capital Band

It is proposed to amend the articles in order extend the capital band provisions. Under the revised Swiss corporate law, shareholders may authorise the Board of Directors to increase or reduce the authorised share capital within a certain range, for a period of up to five years. The proposed capital band would allow a capital increase of up to 10 % of the share capital, whereby the restriction on the limitation on the exclusion of pre-emptive rights pursuant to the newly proposed Article 5c will apply if approved by the general meeting of shareholders. It is considered that shareholders should have the opportunity to vote on any exclusion of pre-emption rights annually. As the time limit for the exclusion of pre-emptive rights exceeds guidelines, opposition is recommended.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 85.7, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 14.1,

5.3. Amend Articles: Introduction of new Article 5a

It is proposed to amend the Company's Articles of association and introduce the new Article 5a. Article 5a provides for the introduction of conditional share capital for equity-linked financing instruments. It serves a similar concept as the capital band, namely the optimization of the Company's capital structure. Financial instruments such as convertible bonds or similar instruments with a share conversion mechanism may be issued under the conditional share capital. With the introduction of conditional share capital, the Board of Directors would be authorized to increase the Company's issued share capital by an amount corresponding to a maximum of 10 % of the share capital, whereby the restriction on the limitation on the exclusion of advance subscription rights pursuant to the newly proposed Article 5c will apply if approved by the general meeting of shareholders. It is considered that shareholders should have the opportunity to vote on any exclusion of pre-emption rights annually. As the time limit for the exclusion of pre-emptive rights exceeds guidelines, opposition is recommended.

5.4. Approve Authority to Increase Authorised Share Capital and Introduction of new Article 5b

It is proposed to amend the Company's Articles of Association to introduce a new Article 5b. Article 5b would create of conditional capital for employee participation. Authority is sought to increase the authorised share capital of the Company up to CHF 1,100,000. At this time, the company has not disclosed whether successive increases would be carried out with or without pre-emptive rights. As such, the aggregate authority may exceed recommended limits for issues with or without pre-emptive rights.

Results: For: 89.1, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 10.7,

5.5. Introduction of a new Article 5c: Limitation of subscription and advance subscription rights

It is proposed to amend the Company's Articles of Association to introduce a new Article 5c. Approval of Article 5c is dependent on the passing of items 5.2, 5.3 and 5.4. The total number of new registered shares issued (i) under the capital band pursuant to article 5, excluding the subscription rights of shareholders, and (ii) from the conditional capital pursuant to article 5a, excluding the advance subscription rights of shareholders, shall not exceed 10% of the share capital at the time of the capital increase until April 15, 2030. It is proposed to exclude pre-emption rights on shares issued for a period of more than 18 months. It is considered that shareholders should have the occasion to vote on such resolutions annually or at least at the next AGM.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7.2. Approval of the maximum aggregate amount of compensation of the members of the Executive Committee for the 2026 Financial Year

It is proposed to approve the prospective remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the total remuneration cap. It is proposed to approve the prospective remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the total remuneration cap. The voting outcome of this resolution will be binding for the Company.

It is proposed to fix the remuneration of members of the Executive Committee for FY26 at CHF 47,065,000. This proposal includes fixed and variable remuneration components.

Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the payout may exceed 200% of fixed salary. In addition, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for the performance criteria of its variable remuneration component, which as a consequence may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed.

1i.. Re-elect Thomas H. Harvey - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. The Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee is also considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability. The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall. 1m.. Re-elect Timothy Spence - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters.

Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nomination and Governance Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

As the Chair of the Nomination and Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice.

The director chairs a committee that is not fully independent, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

PIRC issue: Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders.

PIRC issue: At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. 2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The Company uses adjusted performance metrics for most elements of compensation. The use of non-GAAP metrics prevents shareholders from being able to assess fully whether the performance targets are sufficiently challenging. The Company does not consider non-financial metrics in its assessment of performance. For the year under review, annual bonus payouts are considered to be excessive as they represent more than 200% of base salary. Awards under the annual-incentive plans are tied to multiple performance conditions, which is considered best practice. Performance measures attached to long-term incentives do not duplicate those attached to other awards, which is considered acceptable practice. Retention awards make up a significant portion of the long-term incentives and therefore the scheme does not link pay to performance. Retention awards made up less than one-third of the awards granted to executives, which is considered best practice. Performance shares have a three-year performance period, which is a market standard. However, a five-year performance period is considered best practice. Executive compensation is aligned with peer group averages. The compensation rating is: ACB. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

4.. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Customer Discrimination

Proponent Shareholder: American Conservative Values ETF

Proponent's argument: The proponent, American Conservative Values ETF, expresses concern about the increasing trend of financial institutions politicising their services by discriminating against customers based on political or religious views. The proposal highlights that many financial institutions, including U.S. Bancorp, utilise subjective and vague standards like "reputational risk" to deny or restrict services arbitrarily, potentially targeting specific industries, political groups, or religious organisations. It cites examples of regulatory scrutiny, investigations by state officials and Congress, and recent legal precedents affirming protections against coerced debanking. The proponent argues that U.S. Bancorp's policies enable potential discrimination, citing the bank's closure of the Constitution Party of Idaho's account. The proposal calls for a report evaluating how the Board oversees risks related to discrimination against customers based on race, color, religion (including religious views), sex, national origin, or political views, and the potential impact on customers' constitutional rights.

Company's response: The company opposes the proposal, asserting that its policies and practices already prohibit discrimination in providing financial services. U.S. Bancorp emphasises its adherence to fair lending and responsible banking laws and its Code of Ethics, which mandates annual employee training and certifications. The company stresses that it does not deny services based on political or religious beliefs and that its risk management and oversight structure-including the Audit Committee, Public Responsibility Committee, and Risk Management Committee-ensures compliance with anti-discrimination laws. Additionally, U.S. Bancorp is subject to extensive regulatory oversight requiring proper risk frameworks. The Board argues that the requested report is unnecessary given existing oversight, policies, regulatory obligations, and reporting mechanisms, and that it would not provide shareholders with meaningful additional information. Therefore, the Board recommends voting against the proposal.

PIRC analysis: The proposal raises concerns over alleged politicised de-banking and potential discrimination by financial institutions against customers based on political or religious views. While it calls for increased board oversight and reporting on such risks, the framing and supporting arguments suggest the resolution is driven by a political agenda primarily aiming to protect conservative viewpoints. The proposal cites regulatory and legal developments but focuses narrowly on safeguarding one side of the political spectrum rather than broadly promoting non-discrimination and equal treatment. Notably, U.S. Bancorp already maintains comprehensive anti-discrimination policies, risk management oversight, and regulatory compliance designed to prevent arbitrary account closures based on prohibited factors. The proponent's singular emphasis on viewpoint discrimination risks misrepresenting the company's compliance obligations, while potentially undermining legitimate risk management and financial crime prevention processes. As such, the resolution appears more ideological than material in its risk framing and could divert board resources without delivering meaningful shareholder value. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

LINDT & SPRUNGLI AG AGM - 16-04-20252. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

4. Discharge of the Board of Directors and the Group Management

It was reported in December 2024, that an in-depth investigation by US TV network CBS and Swiss public broadcaster SRF recently revealed that the chocolate manufacturer Mars and the Swiss company Lindt & Sprüngli may be using child labor in Ghana. This can lead to financial or reputational consequences for the company. While responsibilities and wrongdoing yet to be identified and demonstrated fully, it is recommended that Camden oppose from approving the discharge.

7.1.2. Elect Dieter Weisskopf - Vice Chair (Non Executive)

Member of the Audit committee. Not considered independent as the director was previously employed by the Company as Chief Executive Officer from October 2016 to September 2022. It is considered that the audit committee should be comprised of exclusively independent members.

Additionally, he is the chair of the Sustainability committee. It was reported in December 2024, that an in-depth investigation by US TV network CBS and Swiss public broadcaster SRF recently revealed that the chocolate manufacturer Mars and the Swiss company Lindt & Sprüngli may be using child labor in Ghana. This can lead to financial or reputational consequences for the company. As he is the chair of the sustainability committee, he is considered to have responsibility over the company's sustainability practices.

For the above reasons, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

7.1.3. Elect Dr. Rudolf K. Sprüngli - Non-Executive Director

Member of the Compensation & Nomination Committee. Not considered to be independent as he has served on the board for more than nine years and worked as executive of the company. In addition, the director is not considered independent as the director has close family ties with the Company: He is the son of the founder David Sprüngli-Schwarz. It is considered that the Nomination and Compensation committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. As this is not the case, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

GEBERIT AG AGM - 16-04-2025

1. Approve Financial Statements

The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified.

There are concerns regarding the company's sustainability policies and practices. The annual report and financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks, including the lack of board-level accountability for sustainability issues. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders; however, the report fails to do so adequately. Camden is recommended to oppose.

5.1.1. Elect Albert M. Baehny - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered to be independent as he previously served as CEO and Executive Chairman from 2011 to 2014. Additionally, not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Oppose vote is therefore recommended. Additionally, the chair holds another chair position at a listed company, which raises time commitment concerns. It is considered that the chair should be able to wholly dedicate their time to the company in times of company crisis. The COVID pandemic has shown that there are times when multiple unrelated companies will require the Chair's full attention in order to be able to handle times of crisis. It is considered that there is insufficient time to be able to effectively chair two or more companies at the same time.

Furthermore, as the Company does not have a board elected sustainability committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered adequate to minimise the material risks linked to sustainability it is recommended to hold the chair responsible.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

1a.. Elect Kerrii B. Anderson - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Compensation Committee and member of the Nomination Committee. It is considered that the Chair of the Remuneration Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation, and owing to concerns with the company's executive compensation, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 95.8, Abstain: 0.5, Oppose/Withhold: 3.7,

1d.. Elect Heidi G. Petz - Chair & Chief Executive

Chief Executive and Chair of the Board. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

As there is no independent Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As such, given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Opposition is recommended.

2.. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ADB.

The Company uses adjusted performance metrics for most elements of compensation. The use of non-GAAP metrics prevents shareholders from being able to assess fully whether the performance targets are sufficiently challenging. The Company does not consider non-financial metrics in its assessment of performance. Awards under the annual-incentive plans are tied to multiple performance conditions, which is considered best practice. Performance measures attached to long-term incentives do not duplicate those attached to other awards, which is considered acceptable practice. Retention awards make up a significant portion of the long-term incentives and therefore the scheme does not link pay to performance. Performance shares have a three-year performance period, which is a market standard. However, a five-year performance period is considered best practice. Executive compensation is not aligned with peer group averages.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 90.6, Abstain: 0.6, Oppose/Withhold: 8.8,

3.. Amend Existing Long Term Incentive Plan

The Sherwin-Williams Company 2025 Equity and Incentive Compensation Plan is designed to apply to officers, other employees, non-executive directors, and certain consultants, covering both management and non-executive directors. While equity-based incentives are typically aimed at executives to align their interests with shareholder value, extending such incentives to non-executive directors raises concerns about potential conflicts of interest and misalignment with their independent oversight role. The Plan establishes a minimum vesting or performance period of one year for equity-based awards, which may limit their ability to drive long-term performance. While performance objectives may be attached to awards, the Committee has significant discretion in setting these conditions, raising concerns that awards may not be subject to sufficiently robust performance targets. Additionally, the maximum award limit is considered excessive. As non-executive directors receive a variable component on top of their fees, this is concerning as variable pay may align them with short-term interests rather than long-term supervisory duties. On this basis, opposition is recommended.

4.. Ratify Ernst & Young LLP as the Auditors

EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 30.81% of audit fees during the year under review and 20.16% on a three-year aggregate basis. 6.. Board Proposal to Eliminate Supermajority Voting

Resolution 6 proposes amending Section 6(b) of Article Fourth, Division A to eliminate the two-thirds supermajority vote requirement for certain matters affecting Serial Preferred Stock, replacing it with a simple majority vote. This change applies to amendments that alter the voting powers, rights, or preferences of Serial Preferred Stock holders, as well as the creation of senior securities and partial redemption of Serial Preferred Stock under specific conditions. This decision has implications for common shareholders. By reducing the voting threshold, common shareholders may have reduced influence on decisions affecting the company's capital structure and shareholder hierarchy. Although common shareholders are not directly included in this change, they may face a diminished ability to protect their interests in cases where preferred shareholder rights are altered. On this basis, opposition to the resolution is recommended

Senior Independent Director, Chair of the Compensation Committee, member of the Nomination Committee and Designated non-executive director workforce engagement. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years.

The director chairs a committee which is not fully independent which does not meet Camden guidelines

This director is also a non-independent member of the Nomination Committee. It is important that this committee be exclusively comprised of independent directors in order to ensure an equitable and unprejudiced appointment process. Does not meet Camden guidelines.

There are serious concerns regarding the remuneration policy at the company, and it is considered that the chair of the Remuneration Committee should be held accountable for it when considering re-election.

Furthermore, it is also considered that a worker's representative should be chosen by the employees of the company, rather than being appointed by a Non-Executive Director for workforce engagement. In instances where there is no stated intention to implement an Employee Director nominated by peers, standing for election at the AGM, support for the Designated Director for Workforce Engagement will not be given.

14. Approve Remuneration Policy

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. A welcome addition to the LTIP scheme is the use of non-financial performance metrics as a means of assessing individual performance. The use of non-financial conditions enables the policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole as well as the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Maximum potential awards for both the Annual Bonus and LTIP are clearly stated. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. A mitigation statement has been made which seeks to limit the amount of any payment or benefits provided to a Director upon leaving the Company should alternative employment be secured. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to at least 200% of salary, over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder. There is no deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus. Best practice would see half of the bonus deferred in shares over at least two years. Claw-back provisions are attached to the annual bonus. However, the deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus is not considered adequate. Half of the bonus should be deferred in shares over at least two years. The performance period for the LTIP is less than five years and is therefore not considered sufficiently long-term. Claw-back provisions are in place over long-term incentive plans. After the initial performance period which determines the extent of which the LTIP will vest, the Company does not require Directors to defer any of the award for a further holding period to apply which is not considered in line with market best practice.

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. 2.. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The Company uses adjusted performance metrics for most elements of compensation. The use of non-GAAP metrics prevents shareholders from being able to assess fully whether the performance targets are sufficiently challenging. The Company does not consider non-financial metrics in its assessment of performance. The Company uses only one performance metrics to determine the payout of performance awards. Instead of the use of a sole performance metric, it would be preferred that payout be linked to at least two or more performance metrics, with the inclusion of an non-financial performance criteria. Performance measures attached to long-term incentives do not duplicate those attached to other awards, which is considered acceptable practice. Retention awards made up less than one-third of the awards granted to executives, which is considered best practice. Performance shares have a three-year performance period, which is a market standard. However, a five-year performance period is considered best practice. Executive compensation is aligned with peer group averages. The compensation rating is: ACB.

BRITISH AMERICAN TOBACCO PLC AGM - 16-04-2025

2. Approve Remuneration Policy

Directors are entitled to a dividend income which is accrued on share awards from the date of grant, once the awards vest. Dividend should be paid from the date awards vest onwards, and not backdated to the time of grant to include the performance period. The LTIP does not utilise non-financial metrics as a means of assessing performance. The absence of Non-financial parameters to assess Executives' long-term performance is considered contrary to best practice as such factors allow the remuneration policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole and the individual roles of each of the senior executives in achieving that performance. Financial parameters are generally beyond an individual director's control. Maximum potential awards for both the Annual Bonus and LTIP are clearly stated. The performance metrics are not operating interdependently, such that vesting under the incentive plan is only possible where all threshold targets are met. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to at least 200% of salary, over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder. The Annual Bonus is deferred. Claw-back provisions are attached to the annual bonus. The deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus is in line with best practice as half of the bonus is deferred in shares over at least two years. The performance period for the LTIP is less than five years and is therefore not considered sufficiently long-term. Claw-back provisions are in place over long-term incentive plans. However, recipients of the award are required to hold their vested shares for at least a further two years, which is welcomed. Rating:ADD

3. Approve the Remuneration Report

Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.

4. Re-appoint KPMG as the Auditors of the Company

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 3.24% of audit fees during the year under review and 3.98% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. 18. Approve the Rules of the British Tabaco Performance Share Plan

The Board proposes the approval of a new long-term incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded rights to shares, a portion (or all) of which will vest depending on the achievement of some performance criteria. Vesting period is three years and as such is considered to be short-term, while performance targets have not been fully disclosed in a quantified manner at this time.

LTIP schemes are not considered an effective means of incentivising performance and are inherently flawed. There is the risk that they are rewarding volatility rather than the performance of the company. They are acting as a complex and opaque hedge against absolute company underperformance and long-term share price falls. They are also a significant factor in reward for failure.

1g.. Re-Elect Karen W. Katz - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Nominating, Governance & Sustainability Committee and Member of the Organisation & Compensation Committee. The Chair of the Nominating, Governance & Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimise material risks linked to sustainability.

The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Nominating, Governance & Sustainability Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the committee bears accountability for this shortfall. This director also received significant opposition at the previous AGM, and the Company has failed to disclosed the steps taken to address this opposition.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

PIRC issue: At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. 3.. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment.

The Company uses adjusted performance metrics for most elements of compensation. The use of non-GAAP metrics prevents shareholders from being able to assess fully whether the performance targets are sufficiently challenging. The Company included non-financial metrics into the annual bonus structure, which is considered best practice. Awards under the annual-incentive plans are tied to multiple performance conditions, which is considered best practice. Performance measures attached to long-term incentives do not duplicate those attached to other awards, which is considered acceptable practice. Retention awards made up less than one-third of the awards granted to executives, which is considered best practice. Performance shares have a three-year performance period, which is a market standard. However, a five-year performance period is considered best practice. Executive compensation is not aligned with peer group averages.

It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

PIRC issue: Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders.

5. Discharge of the members of the Board of Directors

Standard proposal. The Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability. Despite the operating company, Heineken N.V., maintaining a whistleblowing system with procedures for reporting misconduct, Heineken Holding N.V. itself does not have its own whistleblowing hotline, as it is a non-operational holding company with no employees and therefore does not monitor or manage misconduct reporting. As a result, it does not apply certain Dutch Corporate Governance Code provisions related to whistleblowing. Additionally, Heineken Holding N.V. itself does not have any board committees.

Additionally, the Board of Directors has not established any board-level committees, asserting that such structures are incompatible with Heineken Holding N.V.'s specific governance model. Other than its participation in meetings with the Preparatory Committee of the Supervisory Board of Heineken N.V., the Company lacks dedicated committees such as audit, remuneration, or nomination committees that are standard in good corporate governance.

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. 1c. Elect Milan Galik - Chief Executive

Chief Executive Officer. Member of the Compensation Committee. It is considered best practice that the committee should consist of a majority of independent non-executive directors, excluding Executive Directors from its membership.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1e. Elect Lawrence E. Harris - Lead Director

Lead Director. and Chair of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that a Lead Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board.

The director chairs a committee which is not fully independent which does not meet Camden guidelines.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1f. Elect William Peterffy - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director is the son of the company's Chairman, Thomas Peterffy. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2. Appoint the Auditors

Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 3.88% of audit fees during the year under review and 3.88% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The Company uses adjusted performance metrics for most elements of compensation. The use of non-GAAP metrics prevents shareholders from being able to assess fully whether the performance targets are sufficiently challenging. The Company does not consider non-financial metrics in its assessment of performance. Awards under the annual-incentive plans are tied to multiple performance conditions, which is considered best practice. The Company uses only one performance metrics to determine the payout of performance awards. Instead of the use of a sole performance metric, it would be preferred that payout be linked to at least two or more performance metrics, with the inclusion of an non-financial performance criteria. Performance measures attached to long-term incentives do not duplicate those attached to other awards, which is considered acceptable practice. Retention awards make up a significant portion of the long-term incentives and therefore the scheme does not link pay to performance. Performance shares have a three-year performance period, which is a market standard. However, a five-year performance period is considered best practice. Executive compensation is aligned with peer group averages. In addition, executive compensation is aligned with companies of a similar market cap. The compensation rating is: AEC.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

ADECCO GROUP AG AGM - 17-04-2025

1.2. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, it is recommended Camden oppose based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5.1.1. Re-elect Jean-Christophe Deslarzes - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Member of the Governance and Nomination Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Additionally, it is considered that the Governance and Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. 5.3. Re-elect Richard Pott - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Chair of the Nomination and Remuneration Committees. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.

In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination and Remuneration Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

Finally, it is considered that the Chair of the Remuneration Committee is responsible for the company's remuneration report, and there are concerns with the company's remuneration report.

Chair of the Board. There is no vote on the Annual Report, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

Chair of the Nomination Committee. The director chairs a committee that is not fully independent, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

Chair of the Remuneration Committee. The director chairs a committee which is not fully independent which does not meet Camden guidelines.

BP PLC AGM - 17-04-2025

1. Receive the Annual Report

The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified.

There are concerns regarding the company's sustainability policies and practices. The annual report and financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks, including the lack of board-level accountability for sustainability issues. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders; however, the report fails to do so adequately. Camden is recommended to oppose.

3. Re-elect Helge Lund - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board.

Based on PIRC's overall assessment of the company's transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Red, indicating that it falls significantly short of PIRC's expectations. In particular, the company has failed to set emissions targets covering all relevant emissions scopes.

It is further noted that as part of the company's recent strategic reset, several climate targets have been scrapped or significantly reduced in ambition, while the company plans to increase its investments in new large-scale oil and gas projects, leaving the company severely misaligned with a Paris-aligned pathway. The scrapped climate strategy was approved in 2022 by both the Board and the company's shareholders, with 85% of votes cast in favour. As such it is disappointing that the company has not offered shareholders a vote on the 'fundamental reset' of its climate strategy. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

1b.. Re-Elect Thomas A. Dattilo - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee and Member of the Compensation Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years.

The director chairs a committee that is not fully independent, which does not meet Camden guidelines. In terms of best practice, it is considered that both the Nominating and Governance Committee and the Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Nominating and Governance Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall.

The Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and there are concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice.

PIRC issue: The individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision; combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

There has been no external performance evaluation conducted in the past three years, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

1a.. Elect Peter Barrett - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Compensation & Benefits Committee and member of the Nominating & Corporate Governance Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years and the director was previously employed by the Company as Vice President. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Compensation & Benefits and Nominating & Corporate Governance Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

The director chairs a committee which is not fully independent which does not meet Camden guidelines.

The ratio of CEO, or the highest paid executive officer, to employee pay of the company is greater than 150:1, this does not meet Camden's guidelines.

There are serious concerns regarding the remuneration policy at the company, and it is considered that the chair of the Compensation & Benefits Committee should be held accountable for it when considering re-election.

Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered independent owing to a tenure of more than nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. 1h.. Elect Michel Vounatsos - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nominating & Corporate Governance Committee and member of the Audit Committee.

The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Nomination Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall.

At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of the Nominating & Corporate Governance committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

The Board proposes to amend and restate the Bank of America Corporation Equity Plan (BACEP) to: (i) increase the number of shares available for grant by 100 million; (ii) cap total annual compensation for non-employee directors at $1 million, including cash and equity, with exceptions for donations and special services; and (iii) extend the Plan's expiration. Awards will vest over a three-year period, and quantified performance targets have been set, which is above market practice. However, the potential total reward raises concerns over excessiveness, and the three-year vesting is considered short term. ING GROUP NV AGM - 22-04-2025

4A. Discharge the Executive Board

Standard proposal.

On 8 February 2024, Investors demand €500 mil. from ING for not disclosing major anti-money laundering case. A group of angry investors are suing ING for compensation for concealing a money laundering scandal that ended in a 775 million euro settlement with the Dutch authorities in 2018. The 158 institutional investors are demanding a total of 500 million euros in compensation because they bought shares without knowing that ING did not have its anti-money laundering measures in order.

Ongoing significant legal allegations against the company have not been adequately resolved at this stage, which could lead to serious financial or reputational consequences for the company. The proposed auditor is not independent, and the chair of the Audit Committee holds accountability for this. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns

1a.. Re-elect Eric L. Zinterhofer - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board and member of the Compensation and Benefits and Nominating and Corporate Governance Committees. The Chair is not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In addition, he serves on the Board of Liberty Latin America Ltd, related with a significant shareholder of the Company, Liberty Broadband Corporation. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. It is also considered that the Compensation and Benefits and Nominating and Corporate Governance Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members.
It is recommended that Camden oppose.

1d.. Re-elect John D. Markley - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee and member of the Audit Committee.

This director is a non-independent member of the Audit and Nominating and Corporate Governance Committees. As a result, the Audit and Nominating and Corporate Governance Committees are not fully independent, which does not comply with Camden guidelines.

This director is the Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee, and with less than 33% of the Board being women, the composition does not meet Camden's guidelines.

The Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee is accountable for the Company's sustainability programme and there are serious concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice. The Company's sustainability policies, practice and disclosure fall short of Camden guidelines.

Senior Independent Director, Chair of the Audit Committee, member of the Human Capital and Compensation Committee and member of the Corporate Governance Committee. Not considered independent as the director has close family ties with the Company. Kathleen Finley, Mr. Henderson's daughter, has been employed by the Bank since 2005, currently serving as a Senior Vice President on the Wealth Management National Services team of the Bank. It is considered that a Senior Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. Similarly, it is considered that Audit, Remuneration and Nomination Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. The proposed auditor is not independent, and the chair of the Audit Committee holds accountability for this.

1h.. Elect Michael G. O'Grady - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

BEAZLEY PLC AGM - 22-04-2025

1. Receive the Annual Report

The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified.

There are concerns regarding the company's sustainability policies and practices. The annual report and financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks, including the lack of board-level accountability for sustainability issues. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders; however, the report fails to do so adequately. Camden is recommended to oppose.

Since there is no director up for election who is responsible for sustainability, such as the Chair of the Sustainability Committee or any of its members, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability program.

The Chair is also chairing another company within the FTSE 350 index. It is considered that a chair cannot effectively represent two corporate cultures. The possibility of having to commit additional time to the role in times of crisis is ever present. Given this, a Chair should focus his attention onto the only one FTSE 350 Company. 9.a.. Amend Articles

The Company proposes a bundled revision of the Articles of Association. Bundled resolutions are not considered best practice and it's considered that each amendment should be put separately to the vote. Whilst disclosure is sufficient, concerns arise regarding the addition of Article 5.4, which allows the Company to hold a call option to acquire anti-take-over preference shares. This authority is considered to be counter to the best interests of shareholders. The poison pill enables management to offer warrants to shareholders during a period of public offer thus implying a threat of dilution to potential acquirers of the company. While this may cause potential acquirers to negotiate with the Board, it may also potentially prevent hostile takeovers and entrench management.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

Since there is no director up for election who is responsible for sustainability, such as the Chair of the Sustainability Committee or any of its members, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability program. Executive Chair.

The Chair is not independent, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed.

Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions.

5.. Shareholder Resolution: DEI Goals in Executive Pay Incentives

Proponent Shareholder: National Legal and Policy Center

Proponent's argument: The proponent, National Legal and Policy Center, urges Goldman Sachs to revisit and consider removing diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) criteria from its executive incentive compensation framework. The proposal cites a shifting legal environment following the 2023 U.S. Supreme Court decision in Students for Fair Admissions v. Harvard, which led to the widespread reduction of DEI programs in higher education and increased legal scrutiny of corporate DEI practices. The proponent highlights legal risks arising from DEI-related employment or contracting decisions based on race or gender, which may violate Title VII of the Civil Rights Act. The proposal expresses concern that Goldman Sachs' executive compensation framework includes DEI considerations-such as hiring targets for underrepresented groups-without transparent disclosure of how these criteria influence pay decisions. It argues this lack of clarity creates reputational and legal exposure, and that using such "non-GAAP" metrics to justify executive pay could violate SEC rules or fiduciary responsibilities. The proponent believes these risks now outweigh any benefit and calls on the Compensation Committee to eliminate potentially discriminatory DEI goals from incentive structures.

Company's Response : The Board recommends voting against the proposal, asserting that it misrepresents Goldman Sachs' compensation policies. The company states that executive pay is determined holistically by the Compensation Committee, which considers a broad range of qualitative and quantitative factors aligned with the firm's long-term strategy and people-first culture. Contrary to the proponent's claims, the firm does not use numerical DEI goals as compensation criteria. Instead, the committee evaluates good faith efforts by leaders to foster equal opportunity and strengthen the talent pool-practices the company views as commercially essential and legally compliant. Goldman Sachs emphasises that its aspirational diversity goals do not constitute quotas and are not linked to performance pay metrics. The company maintains that these efforts promote diversity of thought and experience, which is integral to firm success, and that they are executed within the framework of U.S. employment law. Therefore, the company finds the proposal unnecessary and not aligned with shareholder interests or sound governance principles.

PIRC analysis: The integration of DEI considerations into executive incentive structures can be a legitimate part of aligning leadership performance with long-term value creation and risk mitigation. Diverse leadership teams are better equipped to understand and respond to a broad range of stakeholder needs, including clients, employees, and global markets. Linking elements of incentive pay to qualitative assessments of inclusive leadership when implemented transparently and without rigid quotas can support strategic goals around talent acquisition, innovation, and cultural resilience. While it is important that such frameworks are legally compliant and avoid rigid demographic targets that may risk reputational or legal exposure, the company has explicitly clarified that it does not tie executive compensation to numeric hiring quotas, but rather to broader people strategies and inclusive leadership. The proposal appears to mischaracterise the firm's approach, drawing from ideological arguments that seek to challenge DEI initiatives more broadly. Given that DEI remains a legitimate area of strategic focus for companies navigating complex global markets, and that this resolution seems motivated by a broader ideological push rather than constructive shareholder engagement.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Results: For: 1.6, Abstain: 0.4, Oppose/Withhold: 98.0,

6.. Shareholder Resolution: Racial Discrimination Audit

Proponent Shareholder: National Center for Public Policy Research

Proponent's argument: The proponent calls on Goldman Sachs to commission an independent racial discrimination audit to assess the legal and reputational risks associated with its race based initiatives. Citing recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions, Students for Fair Admissions v. Harvard and Muldrow v. City of St. Louis, the proposal argues that corporate DEI programs face heightened legal vulnerability under evolving interpretations of anti-discrimination laws, particularly Title VII of the Civil Rights Act. The proposal asserts that Goldman Sachs engages in race conscious practices, such as race based mentoring, employee networks, representation targets, and investment allocations. These, according to the proponent, may expose the company to costly litigation, including potential class actions or lawsuits from employees, vendors, or clients. Several companies are cited as having dismantled DEI efforts in response to similar risks. With over 40,000 employees, even isolated claims could escalate into material liability. The proposal stresses the urgency of proactively evaluating and potentially revising Goldman Sachs' DEI policies to mitigate exposure to legal action and reputational harm, especially given shareholder sensitivity to corporate compliance, governance, and risk oversight.

Company's Response : The company urges shareholders to vote against the proposal, emphasising that it is both unnecessary and contrary to the best interests of shareholders. Goldman Sachs states that it is already deeply committed to ensuring all diversity related programs comply with applicable law and has proactively reviewed and adjusted its initiatives in light of legal developments. The company acknowledges that the regulatory landscape is evolving and asserts it remains vigilant in monitoring changes and adapting accordingly. It strongly rejects the notion that its policies involve unlawful discrimination, affirming that there is no place at Goldman Sachs for discrimination of any kind. The firm underscores that diversity, including diversity of thought and experience is central to its commercial success. The company views this resolution as redundant given its existing internal governance and review mechanisms and stresses that implementing an additional audit would not improve compliance but would instead divert resources without providing tangible benefit. Accordingly, the Board concludes that the resolution is unnecessary and not aligned with shareholder interests.

PIRC analysis: Diversity in the workplace contributes to improved decision making, stronger corporate culture, and better alignment with a diverse customer and stakeholder base. Transparency on staff composition, diversity policies, and progress toward inclusion goals provides shareholders with essential insight into how companies attract, retain, and develop talent in service of long-term performance. While companies must remain vigilant to ensure their diversity policies comply with legal standards, efforts to promote racial equity and inclusion are legitimate and necessary responses to structural disparities and stakeholder expectations. This resolution appears to be politically motivated, seeking to discredit or dismantle DEI initiatives under the guise of legal compliance. It frames racial equity commitments as inherently unlawful, yet provides no evidence that Goldman Sachs has violated anti-discrimination laws. The company has already conducted internal reviews in response to legal developments and committed to ongoing legal compliance. The proposal thus functions less as a constructive call for oversight and more as a mechanism to discourage broader DEI efforts. It risks chilling legitimate diversity strategies that support long-term value and employee engagement.

ASML HOLDING NV AGM - 23-04-2025

3.a.. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

3.b.. Approve Financial Statements

The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are some concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended to abstain from voting on this resolution.

6.. Approve Remuneration Policy 2025

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy with a binding vote. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of the fixed remuneration for the highest paid director. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on potential excessive variable remuneration and absence of quantified targets.

1.3. Consultative Vote On The Compensation Report

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses on the annual bonus in place which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out.

10. Elect Carlos Hank Gonzalez - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Chair of the Nomination Committee. Chair of the Board since January 2015. Not considered to be independent as he served as Chief Executive Officer of the Company. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.

The director chairs a committee that is not fully independent, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

43. Authorise Share Repurchase

It is proposed to fix the maximum amount available to directors, for the purpose of buying shares on the market. Although this is technically not an authority to repurchase shares, shareholders in Mexico do not approve individual authorities to repurchase shares. As such, identifying the total amount which can be used for repurchasing shares is considered an indirect authority to buy back shares on the market. These resolutions will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

39. Approve Directors Liability and Indemnification

It is proposed to extend the insurance cover to the members of the governing bodies of all Group companies. The insurance policy covers the civil liability (and related legal and advisory expenses) of the members of the governing bodies of all Group companies versus third parties, deriving from non-fraudulent conduct in breach of the obligations deriving from the law or intrinsic to their duties. In addition, the insurance does not explicitly exclude that it would cover also liabilities arising from fraudulent conduct, and fines handed down by the supervisory authorities. On this basis, shareholders would pay wilful violations and fraudulent conduct led by directors and executives.

THE CIGNA GROUP AGM - 23-04-20251a.. *Elect David M. Cordani - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

PIRC Issue: The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. 2. Approve Remuneration Policy

Variable pay has been updated in the year under review, with RSP awards to be replaced with PSP awards subject to a cap of 300% of salary, and subject to a performance metrics both financial and non-financial. Secondly, the annual bonus opportunity, currently 100% of salary, will be increased to 150% of salary. Therefore, total variable pay could reach 450% of the fixed salary, which is deemed excessive in comparison to the maximum recommended limit of 200%. Half of the Annual bonus defers to shares for 12 months, however, while the amount deferred is welcomed, it is considered that this amount should be deferred for a minimum of two years. The performance period for the Performance Share Plan (PSP) is three years, which is considered overly short-term, although an additional holding period applies post-vesting, which is welcomed. The utilisation of non-financial performance metrics within the variable pay is welcomed. Malus and clawback apply to all aspects of the variable pay.

21. Issue Shares with Pre-emption Rights in relation to the issuance of Equity Convertible Notes

It is proposed to authorise the Board to grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into Ordinary Shares in the Company up to an aggregate nominal amount of GBP 1.5 billion in relation to one or more issues of Equity Convertible Notes (ECNs). This authority shall expire at the conclusion of the next Annual General Meeting of the Company, or 30 June 2026 (whichever is earlier). If the proposed £1.5 billion authority is approved by shareholders, and subject to market conditions, the Company plans to issue up to £1.2 billion principal amount of ECNs in 2025

The use of ECNs are not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. ECNs are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that they may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentives equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Recent events at Deutsche Bank has led to others voicing their concerns about the destabilising effect of ECNs on both the ECN price and the share price.

8. Re-elect Danuta Gray - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Chair of the Nomination Committee.

The director chairs a committee that is not fully independent, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

Additionally, the Chair holds another chair position at a listed company, which raises time commitment concerns. It is considered that the chair should be able to wholly dedicate their time to the company in times of company crisis. The COVID pandemic has shown that there are times when multiple unrelated companies will require the Chair's full attention in order to be able to handle times of crisis. It is considered that there is insufficient time to be able to effectively chair two or more companies at the same time. For these reasons, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

14. Approve the Remuneration Report

Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate

It is proposed to fix the maximum amount available to directors, for the purpose of buying shares on the market. Although this is technically not an authority to repurchase shares, shareholders in Mexico do not approve individual authorities to repurchase shares. As such, identifying the total amount which can be used for repurchasing shares is considered an indirect authority to buy back shares on the market. 1b.. Re-elect Katherine M. Sandstrom - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. The Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability. The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. 2.. Appoint the Auditors

Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 39.82% of audit fees during the year under review and 38.77% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees raises some concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Non-audit fees exceed 25% of audit fees for the year under review and this level of non-audit fees raises concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

HIKMA PHARMACEUTICALS PLC AGM - 24-04-2025

1. Receive the Annual Report

The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified.

There are concerns regarding the company's sustainability policies and practices. The annual report and financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks, including the lack of board-level accountability for sustainability issues. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders; however, the report fails to do so adequately. Camden is recommended to oppose.

5. Re-elect Said Darwazah - Chair (Executive)

Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this. In addition, as the Chair of the Compliance, Responsibility and Ethics Committee is stepping down from the Board, and his successor Dr. Deneen Vojta has not yet assumed this position, the Chair of the Board is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability.

19. Authorise Share Repurchase

The Share Buyback could potentially increase the ownership stake of a controlling shareholder, whether current or potential. This could lead to an imbalance in shareholder power and undermine the interests of minority shareholders. It is crucial to avoid consolidating control in the hands of one entity, as this could hinder corporate governance and decision-making. To ensure fairness and equitable treatment of all shareholders, any buyback that risks increasing the ownership of a controlling party won't be supported.

21. Approval of Buyback Waiver

The company are proposing a Rule 9 waiver, which will exempt Said Darwazah, Mazen Darwazah and Ali Al-Husry (all Executive Directors and persons acting in concert with them) from the requirement of the City Code that they make an offer for the entire share capital of the company. If the Company were to repurchase from persons other than the concert party all the ordinary shares for which it is seeking authority, their interest would increase from 28.80% to 32.00% of the issued share capital. The share buy back linked to this proposal will mean that the significant shareholder becomes a controlling shareholder and therefore this requested waiver is not supported, given its impact on the governance of the company by minority shareholders.

4.5. Shareholder Resolution: Disclosure of the Languages in Which Employees are Proficient

Proponent's argument: MÉDAC calls for annual disclosure of employees' language proficiency by jurisdiction. The proponent argues that language is a core element of societal diversity and democratic functioning, and that public controversies over language have harmed corporate reputations. Since language skills are assessed during hiring, the Bank is already aware of this information. Formal disclosure would provide stakeholders with greater transparency and help prevent future reputational issues. "Proficiency" is defined as the ability to understand and use a language in all work contexts, both written and oral. The proponent contends that such reporting would reflect a company's commitment to inclusion and social responsibility.

Company's response: The Bank opposes the proposal. It affirms its compliance with the Charter of the French Language in Quebec, where French is the main workplace language. While language data is not systematically collected, employees may self-report proficiency voluntarily. This information, covering over 65 languages in 2024, is shared in the Bank's Sustainability Report. The Bank maintains that this level of voluntary, aggregated reporting is sufficient and that mandatory disclosure by jurisdiction would be operationally burdensome and of limited benefit.

PIRC recommendation: The Bank already discloses voluntarily collected language data and complies with relevant legislation. Mandated jurisdictional disclosure would offer limited additional value while introducing administrative and privacy concerns.

HCA HEALTHCARE INC AGM - 24-04-2025

1a.. Re-elect Thomas F. Frist III - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered to be independent as due to their close family ties with the Company, as he is the brother of fellow director William R. Frist. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters.

1d.. Re-elect Nancy-Ann DeParle - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the Chair.

The Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and there are concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice.

The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall.

PIRC issue: At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

5.. Amend Certificate of Incorporation: To Provide for the Exculpation of Officers

It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Juniper, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.

While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers.

In addition, on 5 March 2025, A German court ruled that Pfizer, and its partner BioNTech violated a COVID-19 vaccine patent held by Moderna. In a statement, the court in the city of Duesseldorf said that Pfizer and BioNTech would have to provide information on earnings derived from the use of the patent and that they owe Moderna appropriate compensation, though the ruling can still be appealed to a higher court. The court added that Pfizer and BioNTech had argued they were authorised by a press release from Moderna to use the technology behind the patent until the World Health Organization declared in May 2023 that COVID-19 was no longer a global health emergency.

5.. Shareholder Resolution: Religious Discrimination Against Employees

Proponent Shareholder: Kelly Aimone, represented by Bowyer Research Inc.

Proponent's argument: The proposal requests Pfizer to conduct and publish a report evaluating the risks associated with religious discrimination against employees. The proponent argues that Pfizer, as one of the largest employers in the U.S., should be proactive in promoting religious inclusion by supporting faith-based employee resource groups (ERGs), which are currently absent despite existing ERGs for other identity groups. Citing external studies like the Viewpoint Diversity Score and the 2023 Freedom at Work survey, the proposal claims many employees fear repercussions for expressing religious views, even outside the workplace. It warns that recent

Supreme Court decisions have broadened religious protections, implying that the lack of faith-based ERGs may present legal and reputational risks. The proponent believes that embracing religious diversity through formal structures will enhance talent attraction, employee engagement, and corporate culture. The requested report should evaluate these risks without disclosing proprietary information or pending litigation matters.

Company's response: The company opposes the proposal, stating that an additional report is unnecessary and would not enhance shareholder value. Pfizer asserts it already upholds a strong non-discrimination framework that includes religion among other protected characteristics, enforced through comprehensive policies, including an Equal Employment Opportunity policy and an anonymous reporting system. The company highlights mechanisms like its annual employee survey ("Pfizer Pulse"), safe space initiatives, and an Office of the Ombuds that facilitate employee feedback and support. Pfizer also states it has a robust religious accommodation policy in place, and that its People Experience team is trained to address related issues. The company views its existing DEI efforts as sufficient and believes they already encompass religious diversity. The Board concludes that the requested report would be redundant, citing its confidence in Pfizer's current practices to safeguard religious inclusion and employee well-being. Therefore, the Board unanimously recommends a vote against the proposal.

PIRC analysis: The proposal requests the Company to issue a report evaluating the risks related to religious discrimination, framed in terms of supporting religious expression and faith-based employee resource groups (ERGs). While the protection of employees from discrimination on the basis of religion is an important principle already enshrined in law and in many corporate non-discrimination policies, this resolution is part of a broader campaign by right-wing advocacy groups to reframe corporate diversity efforts around ideological and religious identity, often in opposition to existing diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI) initiatives. The proponent references tools and surveys developed by conservative think tanks to challenge prevailing DEI practices and positions religious employee groups as being unfairly excluded. While the resolution may appear to promote inclusivity, its intent is more aligned with inserting ideological agendas into corporate governance and weakening support for other protected categories.

17. Authorise the Board to Increase the Number of Shares Issued in case of Exceptional Demand

In addition to the share issuance authorities sought above, the Board requests shareholder authority for a capital increase of additional 15%, in case of exceptional demand.

A green shoe authorisation enables an authorization of additional shares in the event of exceptional public demand. In this case, the authorization would increase allow the placement of up to 15% additional new shares within a thirty day period at a price equal to that of the initial offer. There are concerns with such authorities as they may potentially represent a discount superior to the discount to which the initial authorisation is limited due to a potential rise in share price in the period between original issuance and secondary issuance. Ms. Good worked for 11 years as an audit partner at Arthur Anderson LLP and Deloitte & Touche LLP. There is no evidence that there has been a sufficient cool-off period. There are concerns over the director's potential aggregate time commitments. It is considered that the Compensation committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Additionally, the individual attendance of the directors is not disclosed as such it is not possible to confirm that the director maintained full attendance on the board and committee meetings.

It is considered that the Chair of the Compensation Committee is responsible for the company's remuneration report, and there are concerns with the company's remuneration report.

Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.54% of audit fees during the year under review and 0.47% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

The company's auditor does not disclose considering climate and it is not clear whether they assessed climate-related risks associated with a 1.5°C scenario. As such it is recommended to oppose the re-appointment of the auditor.

4. Shareholder Proposal - Report on DEI and Related Risks

Proponent's argument: The proponent expresses concern over Boeing's continued commitment to DEI initiatives in light of shifting legal and social landscapes following the U.S. Supreme Court's Students for Fair Admissions v. Harvard ruling. They cite growing legal challenges to DEI programs, noting, "there has been a sharp uptick in litigation challenging corporate DEI programs... in violation of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act.". They argue that companies like Boeing face potential litigation and reputational damage for implementing "discriminatory quotas," pointing to a USD 28.3 million judgment against Starbucks as an example of risk. The proposal criticizes Boeing's sustainability disclosures, which celebrate efforts to "increase the black representation rate in its U.S. workforce 20% by 2025" and to "close representation gaps," suggesting these goals reflect a focus on outcomes over merit. Highlighting recent operational failures and a decline in stock value (from USD 267.54 to USD 143.87), the proponent questions whether DEI should remain a priority. They allege Boeing's reported disbanding of its DEI department is misleading, stating that "all employees within its DEI department were merely transferred to a different department," calling this a "PR ploy". The proposal calls for transparency regarding how DEI aspirations may create "legal liability and a reduced focus on merit."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The company states: "We select, develop, promote, and retain the best-qualified people based on their experience and demonstrated performance without regard to race [or other legally protected characteristics]." It stresses that its DEI efforts are legally compliant and aim to foster a productive, inclusive culture. Boeing emphasizes its reorganization under the new Global Talent, Development & Employee Experience team within Human Resources, describing the change as a strategic realignment to enhance employee experience and leadership development, not a continuation of the prior DEI department. The company notes it engaged an independent third-party firm to assess and ensure alignment with its values of "nondiscrimination, inclusion, and meritocracy". As a federal contractor, Boeing acknowledges historical affirmative action requirements but underscores that it has "always rejected quotas" and that all hiring remains merit-based. The Board argues the requested report would be "onerous, unnecessary, and inefficient", stating that current disclosures, including the Sustainability & Social Impact Report and EEO-1 filings, already provide transparency. Oversight from the Board's Compensation Committee ensures accountability for human capital management.

PIRC analysis: Promoting inclusivity across the employee base helps companies attract and retain top talent, reduce reputational risks, and strengthen organizational cohesion. Transparent reporting on workforce composition, alongside clear goals for inclusion and development, allows shareholders to assess whether the company's human capital strategy aligns with long-term value creation. Rather than promoting shareholder value, it appears to be a spoiler resolution, intended to cast doubt on diversity initiatives more broadly. Its emphasis on alleged "discriminatory quotas" and the suggestion that DEI programs undermine merit are not supported by evidence of such practices at the Company. Boeing has reaffirmed its commitment to merit-based hiring and has made significant structural and cultural changes to align with evolving legal requirements. Given the Company's existing disclosures, third-party assessments, and emphasis on compliance and performance, this resolution does not serve shareholders' best interests.

Governance

There does not appear to be any individual accountability for the policy, and the policy does not list the chair as responsible for the climate strategy. Company management and the sustainability committee hold collective responsibility, which is considered insufficiently focussed for effective execution of policy and for overall accountability.

There is evidence of adequate training and learning on the Board and senior management of climate-related issues.

The company has not pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy, which appears inconsistent with its goals and an obstacle to its effectiveness.

Disclosure

The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured.

The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 and includes scopes 1, 2 and 3 emission reductions in this commitment. The company strategy appears to include an actual reduction of carbon emissions rather than having a heavy reliance on offsetting. On balance, opposition is recommended.

4.. Amend Articles: Delaware Law Provisions Regarding Officer Exculpation

It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of the company, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.

While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. 2. Approve the Remuneration Report

Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.

The expectations for pay schemes for approval for general meetings are: a going rate true market salary, director service contracts approved by vote, a single profit pool to be distributed company wide, exceptional bonuses only and no long-term incentive plans (LTIPs). Executives who are directors have unlimited liability, fiduciary duties and Companies Act s172 and contractual duties. The delivery of objectives covered by these duties should not be additionally rewarded with bonuses or LTIPs but considered part of the job. It is believed that the fallacy of 'alignment' with shareholders needs to be retired. Not only do schemes not align, but executives are employees of the company with duties to it. The duties including the new s172 duties should already set the alignment. It is incongruous to use pay schemes as a vehicle for alternative means of 'alignment' which can actually create a competing set of director 'duties'.

4. Re-appoint Ernst & Young LLP as auditor of the Company

EY proposed. No non-audit fees were paid for the year under review and non-audit fees represents 0.75% of audit fees on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years and there are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

In late 2020 International Auditing and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) produced a consultation entitled, Fraud and Going Concern and refers to the "expectations gap" in the sense that the public expect more of auditors than is expected of them. By reference to conclusions of the BEIS Select Committee of Parliament and High Court decisions, there isn't an expectations gap so far as the UK at least is concerned. Indeed auditor duties in respect of fraud are onerous and in the Barings case at the High Court the issue of negligence didn't merely involve the signing of the public accounts by the audit partner with misstated amounts in, but earlier at the time more junior members of staff missed the fraud when it was smaller reviewing a bank reconciliation (a private and not public document).

The IAASB model of auditing is based on auditors certifying information that is "useful to users". That construct side-steps the crucial duties auditors have for the benefit of the company itself as the Barings case demonstrated. In PIRC's view that model fuels an unwarranted expectations gap and, if audits are limited by the standards misdirect the focus of audits to being "useful for users", a delivery gap because the legal standard and duty is broader than the standards themselves state. PIRC has therefore asked the IAASB to reissue its consultation and has also written to the largest accounting firms to repudiate the IAASB consultation and confirm that the concept of an 'expectations gap' does not limit the scope of their work. In parallel PIRC has reviewed responses from the largest accounting firms to the IAASB determine whether they were encouraging or refuting the concept of an expectations gap. Both Deloitte and BDO correctly referred to the "expectations gap" being dependent on local laws. Both firms also referred to problems with international auditing standards and international accounting standards. BDO went so far as to make other recommendations as well. Mazars did similar in giving evidence to the BEIS Select Committee. In the absence of similar statements from PwC, KPMG, EY or Grant Thornton, Camden is unable to support re-election or re-appointment of those firms as auditors.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report

Disclosure: All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The increase in CEO salary is in line with the rest Company at 3.5%. The CEO's salary is in the median of PIRC's comparator group.

Balance: The total variable pay made to the CEO in the year under review was 286.8% of the fixed salary, which is considered excessive when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 200%. The CEO's pay ratio is considered excessive at 62:1. The maximum recommended pay ratio is 20:1.

3. Approve Remuneration Policy

The maximum Annual Bonus opportunity increased from 150% to 200% of the fixed salary for the CEO, and from 125% to 150% of the fixed salary for the CFO during the year under review. Total variable pay for the CEO can therefore reach 325% of the base salary, which is considered excessive when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 200%. The deferral period on the Annual Bonus is considered inadequate: for the Annual Bonus, 30% of any award will defer to shares for three years until 25% of the shareholding requirement is met, after which 100% will be paid in cash. It is considered best practise that half of the award vests to shares for a period of at least two years. For the Share Reward Plan, there are no performance measures linked to the rewards, however, there is a three year vesting period and usually a further two-year holding period, such that the vested shares are released five years after being granted. Dividend equivalents are added in the form of shares at each vesting date. The inclusion of non-financial performance measures on the Annual Bonus is welcomed. Malus and clawback apply.

4. Approve the Weir Group 2025 Share Reward Plan

It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions. 1b.. Elect Mitchell R. Butier - Chair (Executive)

Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this.

In addition, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters.

Lastly, given the absence of a formal sustainability committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As such, given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

PIRC issue: Regardless of local practice or recommendations, or average percentage of diversity on the boards of local listed companies, it is considered that gender diversity should be explicitly taken into account when appointing directors. Namely, it is considered that at least one-third of the board should be reserved for the less represented gender. There is an increasing amount of research that suggests that more diverse companies actually perform better than less diverse companies, and they lead to higher returns. By seemingly not including diversity in the composition of the board, and not having an adequate target to do so, it is considered that the company is not taking into account the materiality of non-financial factors, which could be detrimental for shareholders.

1a.. Re-Elect Darius Adamczyk - Non-Executive Director

Independent, Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee.

The company has been subject to litigation during the year under review on 20 September 2024. A Johnson and Johnson subsidiary filed for bankruptcy for a third time to advance an approximately USD 10 billion proposed settlement that would end tens of thousands of lawsuits alleging that the company's baby powder and other talc products caused cancer. Johnson and Johnson faces lawsuits from more than 62,000 claimants who alleged that its baby powder and other talc products were contaminated with asbestos and caused ovarian and other cancers. The company has denied the allegations and has called its products safe. Opponents of the deal said they will ask the court to dismiss the bankruptcy or transfer it to courts. While no wrongdoing has been identified at this time, there are concerns about the potential financial and reputational impacts of this litigation on the company, and the Audit Committee is considered responsible for risk oversight. 1d.. Re-Elect Joaquin Duato - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

During the year under review, the company has been fined for a product safety issue. On June 3, Johnson & Johnson must pay $260 million to an Oregon woman who said she got mesothelioma, a deadly cancer linked to asbestos exposure, from inhaling the company's talc powder. The verdict in the 4th Judicial District Circuit Court in Portland comes as the company continues to pursue a proposed $6.48 billion settlement of most talc-related lawsuits against it through a pre-packaged bankruptcy. The jury's award includes $60 million in compensatory damages and $200 million in punitive damages, and includes damages for both the plaintiff and her husband. While the full impact of this decision is yet to be ascertained, there are concerns about the legal and reputational implications of this upon the company. Owing to this, it is recommended to oppose the CEO.

GRUPO AEROPORTUARIO DEL CENTRO NORTE AGM - 25-04-2025

2. Present CEO and External Auditor Report in Compliance With Article 28

The report was not made available sufficiently before the meeting. Opposition is recommended, as this is considered a serious reporting omission. The link provided in the directors' proposal is not functioning correctly. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. Elect Board: Slate Election of the Three Proprietary Members of the Board of Directors by the Series "BB" Shareholders and Alternates

Proposal to elect the Board Proprietary Members by BB shareholders: Nicolas Notebaert, Olivier Mathieu and Rémi Maumon de Longevialle with a bundled election. Although slate elections are not considered to be best practice, they are common in this market. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board after the meeting as resulting from this slate of candidates. In addition, Alternate directors are not considered to be best practice. While point of board continuity is taken, it is considered that co-option and subsequent ratification by shareholders at a general meeting (to be called without delay) are mechanisms sufficient for the pursue of this goal.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Elect Guillaume Dubois - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: Vinci Airports. However, there is insufficient independence on the board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

14. Elect Nicolas Notebaert - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered independent as the director is proprietary director for a significant shareholder: VINCI Group. Designated by holders of the Series 'BB' shares. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Oppose vote is therefore recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Elect Pierre-Hughes Schmit - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director is proprietary director for a significant shareholder: VINCI Group. Designated by holders of the Series "B" shares. However, there is insufficient independence on the board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Elect Emmanuelle Huon - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director is proprietary director for a significant shareholder: VINCI Group. Designated by holders of the Series "B" shares. However, there is insufficient independence on the board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12. Elect Luis Ignacio Solórzano Aizpuru - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director, chair of Corporate Practices, Finance, Planning and Sustainability Committee. The company does not disclose individual attendance records for each non-executive director at Committee meetings, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

Vote Cast: Oppose

18. Appointment of the Chair of Corporate Practices, Finance, Planning and Sustainability Committee: Luis Ignacio Solorzano Aizpuru

This director is considered to be independent. Support would be normally recommended. However, due to the concerns over the potential aggregate time commitments for this Director, it is believed that they may not have sufficient time for this position as a member of the Corporate Practices, Finance, Planning and Sustainability Committee.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

BALOISE HOLDING AGM - 25-04-2025

1.2. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4.1.1. Re-Elect Dr. Thomas von Planta - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board, and Chair of the Strategy and Governance Committee. The chair holds another chair position at a listed company, BB Biotech AG; this arrangement raises time commitment concerns. It is considered that the chair should be able to wholly dedicate their time to the company in times of company crisis, and there is insufficient time to be able to effectively chair two or more companies at the same time. Furthermore, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of the Strategy and Governance Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Strategy and Governance Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4.1.6. Re-Elect Markus R. Neuhaus - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Audit Committee. At the company, the Audit Committee does not oversee the whistle-blowing hotline. This may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalated which may mean the issue is concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4.1.7. Re-Elect Professor Marie-Noelle Venturi-Zen-Ruffinen - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee and member of the Strategy and Governance Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that both these committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4.4. Appoint the Auditors

EY proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.75% of audit fees during the year under review and 1.37% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5.2.2. Approve Remuneration Policy

It is proposed to approve the prospective remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the total remuneration cap. The voting outcome of this resolution will be binding for the Company.

It is proposed to fix the remuneration of members of the Executive Committee until next AGM at CHF 4.6 million (CHF 4.6 million was proposed last year). This proposal includes fixed and variable remuneration components.

There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, it is recommended that Camden oppose based on excessiveness concerns.

7. Creation of Authorized Capital 2025 with the option to disapply subscription rights and amendment of Article 4, Paragraph 2 of the Articles of Incorporation

Bayer proposes the creation of Authorised Capital 2025 of up to €875 million, representing just under 35% of current capital stock. This authorisation would allow the Board of Management, with Supervisory Board approval, to increase capital against cash contributions up until April 24, 2028. This tool is intended to give Bayer the flexibility to raise capital quickly, particularly to manage potential future legal settlements or other financing needs. However, the company clarifies that there are no current plans to use this authorisation, and it will not be used to finance acquisitions (M&A). Stockholders would generally retain subscription rights, but these may be excluded for fractional shares to simplify technical processes.

To implement this, Article 4, Paragraph 2 of the Articles of Incorporation will be amended to reflect the new authorisation terms.

Authority is sought to issue shares without pre-emptive rights to an amount of more than 10% of the share capital, which is deemed excessive. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

8. Resolution on renewed authorization of the Board of Management to provide for the holding of virtual Annual Stockholders' Meetings (amendment of Article 2 of the Articles of Incorporation)

Bayer is seeking renewed authorisation to allow its Board of Management, with the approval of the Supervisory Board, to hold virtual Annual Stockholders' Meetings without the physical presence of shareholders or their proxies. This requires an amendment to Article 2 of the Articles of Incorporation and would apply for a period of two years from the date the change is entered into the commercial register. The company has held virtual meetings in previous years and intends to continue using the format, which permits shareholders to exercise their rights, including speaking and submitting questions, via live video communication.

It is proposed to amend the articles in order to allow virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, it is recommended that Camden oppose virtual-only meetings.

1.8. Elect Nancy McKinstry - Lead Director

Lead Director and Chair of the Audit Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that a Lead Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board. It is considered that audit committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

The director chairs a committee which is not fully independent which does not meet Camden guidelines.

At the company, the Audit Committee does not oversee the whistle-blowing hotline. This may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalated which may mean the issue is concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

During the year under review, litigation against the company has reached an unfavourable verdict and there are concerns over how this could financially or reputationally impact the company. As such, it is not clear that the Audit Committee has performed adequate risk oversight to prevent this issue from leading to damaging legal action. Therefore, opposition is recommended to the election of the Chair of the Audit Committee.

1.11. Elect Daniel J. Starks - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Compensation Committee and member of the Public Policy Committee. Not considered independent as Mr. Starks served as President, CEO and Chair of St. Jude Medical, Inc. from 2004 to January 2016, and later as Executive Chairman until its merger with the Company in January 2017. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Compensation and Public Policy Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

The director chairs a committee which is not fully independent which does not meet Camden guidelines.

It is considered that the Chair of the Compensation Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation, and owing to concerns with the company's executive compensation.

1.12. Elect John G. Stratton - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director and chair of the Nominations and Governance Committee and member of the Audit committee.

The director chairs a committee that is not fully independent, which does not meet Camden guidelines. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of Nominations and Governance be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

HENKEL AG & Co KGaA AGM - 28-04-2025

8. Amend Articles: Virtual Meetings

It is proposed to amend the articles in order to allow virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing virtual-only meetings.

9. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

3. Authorise Share Repurchase

It is proposed to fix the maximum amount available to directors, for the purpose of buying shares on the market. Although this is technically not an authority to repurchase shares, shareholders in Mexico do not approve individual authorities to repurchase shares. As such, identifying the total amount which can be used for repurchasing shares is considered an indirect authority to buy back shares on the market. These resolutions will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

GENUINE PARTS COMPANY AGM - 28-04-2025

1b.. Elect Paul D. Donahue - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered to be independent as Paul D. Donahue is the Non-Executive Chairman for the Company, a role that became effective in January 2025. Prior to that, Mr. Donahue served as the Company's Executive Chairman from June 2024 to January 2025. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. 1c.. Elect P. Russell Hardin - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-executive Director and Chair of the Nominating and ESG Committee.

The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Nominating and ESG Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall.

As the Chair of the Nominating and ESG Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice.

The Company's sustainability policies, practice and disclosure fall short of Camden guidelines. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of Nominating and ESG Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report

Disclosure: All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO did not see a salary increase in the year under review. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of PIRC's comparator group, which raises concerns around excessiveness.

Balance: The CEO's total variable pay for the year under review was 299.26% of the fixed salary (Annual Bonus 58.54% and Buy-Out awards 240.72%), which is deemed excessive when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 200%. The CEO's pay ratio is 75:1, which is deemed excessive when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 20:1.

3. Re-elect David Lowden - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board

This director is the Chair of the Nomination Committee, and with less than 40% of the Board being women, the composition does not meet Camden's guidelines.

The Chair is also chairing another company within the FTSE 350 index. It is considered that a chair cannot effectively represent two corporate cultures. The possibility of having to commit additional time to the role in times of crisis is ever present. Given this, a Chair should focus his attention onto the only one FTSE 350 Company.

The director also chairs a committee that is not fully independent, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

9. General Authority to Allot New Shares

Introduction & Background: Separate from the restructuring, the Company seeks to retain flexibility to issue shares for general corporate purposes post-consolidation.
Proposal: Resolution 9 grants the Directors authority to allot shares up to USD 100,000,000 in nominal value, limited to employee schemes or proportionate shareholder offers.

Rationale: This general authority is intended to support future capital needs and employee incentives while preserving equitable treatment of existing shareholders through proportionate offers.

PIRC Recommendation: The authority is exceeding 10% of the new share capital after its reconstructions. The proposed authority exceeds recommended limits. Therefore, an oppose vote is recommended.

PACCAR INC. AGM - 29-04-2025

1a.. Elect Mark C. Pigott - Chair (Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered to be independent as he served as Chair and CEO of the Company from January 1997 until his appointment as Executive Chair in April 2014. Additionally, he has close family ties with another member on the board, namely John M. Pigott. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.

Based on PIRC's overall assessment of the company's transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Red, indicating that it falls significantly short of PIRC's expectations. In particular, the company has failed to commit to net zero emissions by 2050. As such, it is recommended that Camden oppose the re-election of the chair of the board.

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. 5. Appoint the Auditors

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 9.43% of audit fees during the year under review and 3.29% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

8. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive Directors with an advisory vote. The Company discloses all elements of remuneration for Executives and Non-Executives. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance.

5.. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Hiring/Recruitment Discrimination

Proponent's argument: The Heritage Foundation request the Board of Directors of IBM conduct an evaluation and issue a report within the next year, at reasonable cost and excluding confidential information, assessing how the Company's DEI requirements for hiring/recruitment impact IBM's risks related to discrimination against individuals based on their race, color, religion (including religious views), sex, national origin, or political views. Shareholders argue that: "IBM is engaging in recruitment and promotion practices that prioritize so-called Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion and expose the company to charges of not only running afoul of its legal responsibilities for non-discrimination, but jettisoning its fiduciary duty to maximize shareholder return. [...] IBM should avoid needless political controversies and illegal discrimination and support fundamental freedoms that are of broad societal impact and benefit every American. One step to do this is by increasing transparency around its hiring/promotion practices to ensure such practices are focusing on business goals as opposed to corporate activism."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The board argues the following: "IBM is an equal opportunity employer. Its policies regarding recruiting and hiring are clearly outlined on our recruiting website and application portals, as referenced below. The Company neither has a policy that sets any "recruitment quotas" for executives nor has a policy that threatens any executive with "slashed bonuses, demotion, or termination of employment" over failure to meet the nonexistent "recruitment quotas." The proposal does not cite any specific Company policy or provide any evidence that such a policy exists. [...] The Company publicly discloses its workforce demographics associated with race and gender in the annual IBM Impact Report. The IBM Impact Report also clearly outlines our efforts regarding inclusion and the associated metrics. Finally, the Company periodically reviews all hiring and recruiting processes globally for compliance with government regulations and alignment with its corporate culture and values. In sum, IBM acts transparently in its hiring and recruiting practices, and, as such contends that the request for a comprehensive review of its DE&I programs and policies is unnecessary."

PIRC analysis: The potential benefits of staff diversity lie in widening the perspectives on human resources brought to bear on decision-making, avoiding too great a similarity of attitude and helping companies understand their workforces as a kaleidoscope of customers, marketplace, supply chain and society as a whole. Disclosure surrounding the company's staff composition allows shareholders to consider diversity in the context of the long-term interests of the company, including the ability to attract and retain key talent. Disclosure of a policy to improve diversity and goals that have been set to meet this policy also reassures shareholders that a diverse board is not just an aspiration but a goal. However, this resolution appears to be filed by a right-wing policy think tanks as a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's diversity and focuses on ideological diversity with the clear intent to ensure that conservative views are represented on the board as well as so-called liberal perspectives.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

1f.. Re-elect Arvind Krishna - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters.

Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Directors and Corporate Governance Committee. The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Directors and Corporate Governance Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall. The company's Audit and Nomination Committees lack full independence, with accountability placed on the Chair of the Board under Camden guidelines. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. 15. Amend Articles

The proposed Resolution 15 seeks shareholder approval for the adoption of new Articles of Association, replacing the current version last amended in 2018. While most amendments reflect updates in legislation and corporate governance practice-such as clarifying procedures for hybrid meetings, untraced shareholder processes, and general meeting security-one significant and concerning change is the proposed increase in the cap on aggregate non-executive directors' fees from GBP 500,000 to GBP 750,000 (Article 72). This represents a potential 50% rise in fees, which materially exceeds PIRC's policy guideline that permits a maximum increase of 10%. Despite the company stating it has no intention to enact a material fee hike immediately, the elevated cap enables future increases well beyond acceptable thresholds without requiring further shareholder consultation.

PIRC issue: The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. Non-Executive Director and Member of the Compensation, Performance Management and Culture Committee and Chair of the Nomination, Governance and Public Affairs Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that these committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Additionally, the Chair of the Nomination, Governance and Public Affairs Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability.

During the year under review, the company has been accused of environmental mismanagement, and while no wrongdoing has been identified at this time, there are nevertheless concerns over the potential impact of these allegations. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. 7.. Shareholder Vote on Financial Statement Assumptions and Climate Change

Proponent's argument: The proponent requests that Citi produce an audited report analysing how applying the findings of the Energy Policy Research Foundation (EPRF) and similar studies would affect the assumptions and estimates underlying its financial statements. These would include valuations tied to commodity and carbon pricing, asset lives, capital expenditures, and impairments. The proposal argues that Citi's net-zero policies are based on flawed assumptions from the IEA's Net Zero Emissions scenario and similar models, which the EPRF contends underestimate the role of fossil fuels and overstate the feasibility of renewable energy transitions. The resolution expresses concern that Citi's current climate strategy could expose it to financial risk if global energy policy or economic conditions deviate from these scenarios. The proponents suggest that renewable energy investments themselves may become "stranded assets" if based on unrealistic projections, and warn that most countries are unlikely to eliminate fossil fuel usage entirely. The report is requested to be published by February 2026, at reasonable cost, and excluding proprietary information.

Company's response: Citi opposes the proposal, asserting that it already applies rigorous, audited financial reporting standards and a comprehensive climate risk management framework. Citi explains that asset valuations are governed under GAAP and audited for compliance with FAS 157, ensuring objectivity. Strategic planning decisions are informed by a wide range of data sources, scenario analyses, and regulatory frameworks such as OCC 2023-33 and SR 23-9, which set expectations for managing climate-related financial risks. Citi highlights that it incorporates both extreme and probable climate outcomes into strategic planning to ensure financial resilience. The company's net-zero strategy is supported by client engagement and aligns with business opportunities in the energy transition. Citi believes the proposed report would duplicate existing processes and is unnecessary given the transparency already provided in its 10-K filings, Climate Report, and Climate Report Supplement. Accordingly, the Board recommends shareholders vote against the resolution.

PIRC Recommendation: PIRC opposes this resolution. The proposal is based on a rejection of widely accepted scientific and regulatory consensus around climate risk and mischaracterises the foundation of Citi's net-zero strategy. Citi already discloses material climate-related risks in line with market standards and regulatory requirements. Producing an additional report grounded in contested assumptions would not enhance governance or risk management and may instead undermine investor confidence in Citi's climate leadership.

ELEMENTIS PLC AGM - 29-04-2025

3. Approve Remuneration Policy

The Remuneration Policy is considered to work effectively as it is, so the only proposed changes for this year involve an update to the trigger events for the malus and clawback provisions. The maximum variable pay available to the CEO is 350% of the fixed salary, which is deemed excessive when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 200%. Half of the Annual Bonus defers into shares for a period of two years. The quantity of Bonus deferred is considered in line with best practise, however, we would like to see this amount deferred for at least three-years. The performance period for the LTIP is three years, which is deemed overly short-term, however, an additional holding period of two-years applies post-vesting, which is welcomed. The inclusion of non-financial performance metrics for the LTIP is also welcomed. Malus and clawback provisions apply to all aspects of the variable pay.

Balance: The CEO's total variable pay in the year under review was 240.58% of the fixed salary, which is deemed somewhat excessive when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 200%. The CEO's pay ratio is 34:1, which is deemed excessive when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 20:1.

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

4.. Shareholder Resolution: DEI Goals in Executive Pay Incentives

Proponent Shareholder: National Legal and Policy Center

Proponent's argument: The proponent, National Legal and Policy Center, calls on American Express to revisit and consider eliminating diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) goals from executive compensation programs. Citing the U.S. Supreme Court's 2023 decision in Students for Fair Admissions v. Harvard, the proponent argues that the legal landscape has shifted significantly, with growing litigation risks associated with race based employment and contracting decisions. The proposal expresses concern that DEI metrics embedded within executive pay specifically within the "Colleague" component of the company's annual incentive awards may expose American Express to reputational, regulatory, and litigation risks. These risks are said to arise from perceived discriminatory practices that favor specific identity groups over others, such as increased spending with suppliers from "underrepresented" communities. The proposal criticises the subjective nature of these incentive goals and their alignment with non-GAAP metrics, raising concerns over SEC compliance. It also references public commentary and legal opinions warning against race- and gender focused initiatives in the corporate setting. The proponent urges the Compensation and Benefits Committee to re-evaluate and potentially remove DEI driven criteria from executive compensation to reduce risk exposure and maintain shareholder value.

Company's response: The company opposes the proposal, stating that it is unnecessary as diversity related performance metrics have already been removed from executive compensation. The Board highlights that its Compensation and Benefits Committee eliminated the "Diversity Representation" goal from the Company Scorecard in 2024 following the prior year's Say-on-Pay vote and governance feedback. The updated Scorecard increases the weighting of financial performance metrics and reduces the "Colleague" category to focus only on Talent Retention and Culture, assessed via the Annual Colleague Experience Survey. The Board asserts that the 2024 adjustments, which continue into 2025, address the concerns raised by the proposal, rendering it obsolete. Additionally, the Compensation and Benefits Committee already conducts annual reviews of the executive compensation structure to ensure alignment with legal standards, shareholder input, and strategic priorities. The company emphasises the Board's broad discretion in structuring compensation programs and assures compliance with SEC disclosure requirements. Thus, the proposal is deemed redundant and without added value to shareholders. The Board recommends voting against the proposal.

PIRC analysis: The potential benefits of staff diversity lie in widening the perspectives brought to bear on decision making, reducing groupthink, and enhancing the company's understanding of its workforce, customer base, supply chain, and broader societal context. Transparent reporting on workforce composition and progress against stated diversity goals enables shareholders to assess whether the company is fostering an inclusive culture aligned with long-term value creation. Policies and targets relating to diversity demonstrate a proactive approach to talent management and corporate governance. However, this resolution appears to serve as a spoiler tactic by a politically motivated group aiming to undermine corporate DEI initiatives. It frames diversity objectives within executive compensation as discriminatory and litigious, while overlooking evidence of the long-term strategic benefits of inclusion for employee engagement, innovation, and stakeholder trust. Its narrowly framed financial and legal concerns are weighted toward immediate compliance risks and short-term cost, rather than a balanced assessment of the broader business case for DEI. Moreover, the resolution seeks to micromanage compensation policy that the company has already adjusted in response to shareholder feedback, rendering the proposal unnecessary.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

5.. Shareholder Resolution: Civil Liberties in Advertising Services

Proponent Shareholder: Thomas Rivers, c/o Bowyer Research, Inc.

Proponent's argument: The proposal, introduced by Thomas Rivers through Bowyer Research, urges American Express to evaluate and report on risks associated with potential discrimination in its advertising services, particularly on the basis of political or religious viewpoints. The proponent argues that American Express participated in practices that could suppress lawful expression by collaborating with the Global Alliance for Responsible Media (GARM), an initiative under the World Federation of Advertisers, which the proponent alleges pushed for the demonetisation of media platforms over subjective criteria like "hate speech," "disinformation," and "insensitive" content. The proposal warns these vague standards could be exploited to stifle differing political and religious perspectives, with GARM cited for endorsing controversial entities like the Global Disinformation Index and NewsGuard. The proponent contends that such actions could expose the company to legal liabilities under antitrust and anti-discrimination laws and damage its reputation. The proposal requests a board level evaluation and public report on how the company oversees risks related to politically or religiously motivated discrimination in advertising decisions.

Company's Response: The Company opposes the proposal, stating that it does not engage in discriminatory practices against advertising buyers or sellers based on political or religious affiliations or views. American Express emphasises that its advertising decisions are guided by independently developed Media Brand Safety Guidelines and values based policies that prohibit bias or discrimination. The Board asserts that the company maintains strong commitments to fairness, integrity, and legal compliance, reinforced through its Code of Conduct and Ethics Hotline. The company supports fair competition and highlights its compliance with antitrust laws via its Antitrust Compliance Policy. The Audit and Compliance Committee already provides oversight of these areas, including compliance with laws, regulations, and internal policies. Therefore, the Board concludes that the requested report is unnecessary and would not benefit shareholders. The Board recommends voting AGAINST the proposal, citing existing safeguards, a lack of discriminatory policy or practice, and effective governance structures already in place.

PIRC analysis: While the safeguarding of civil liberties, including freedom of expression, is vital, this proposal appears to be ideologically driven and rooted in a broader political agenda rather than a genuine concern for transparent advertising governance. The resolution frames widely accepted industry efforts to reduce misinformation, hate speech, and discriminatory content as censorship, and targets collaborative initiatives such as the Global Alliance for Responsible Media, which was established to uphold brand safety and reduce reputational and regulatory risk across the advertising industry. Rather than seeking transparency or accountability in a neutral manner, the proposal characterises common content moderation standards as discriminatory against political or religious viewpoints despite no evidence being presented that American Express engages in such practices. Its framing aligns with a growing trend of right-wing shareholder activism that challenges corporate commitments to responsible digital advertising and content integrity under the guise of defending free speech. The company has affirmed that it does not engage in discrimination based on political or religious affiliation and has mechanisms in place such as its Code of Conduct and oversight by the Audit and Compliance Committee to ensure compliance with relevant laws and internal policies. The request for an additional report, particularly when framed in a partisan context that undermines efforts to counter misinformation and harmful content, does not present a constructive path forward.

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out.

KIMCO REALTY CORPORATION AGM - 29-04-2025

1b.. Elect Philip E. Coviello - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee and member of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that the Audit and Nomination Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 95.0, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 4.9,

1e.. Elect Frank Lourenso - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee and member of the Executive Compensation Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 95.5, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 4.4,

1g.. Elect Mary Hogan Preusse - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee and member of the Executive Compensation Committee. The director chairs a committee that is not fully independent, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 94.9, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 5.0,

1h.. Elect Valerie Richardson - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Executive Compensation Committee and member of the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. The director chairs a committee which is not fully independent which does not meet Camden guidelines.

It is considered that the Chair of the Remuneration Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation, and owing to concerns with the company's executive compensation, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 97.3, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 2.4,

1i.. Elect Richard B. Saltzman - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.

Due to the absence of a formal Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As such, given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

Additionally, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board. There is no Senior Independent Director appointed, which does not meet Camden guidelines. It is recommended that Camden oppose. The proposed auditor is not independent, and the chair of the Audit Committee holds accountability for this.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 94.4, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 5.5,

2.. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ADB.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 95.3, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 4.5,

3.. Ratify PwC as the Auditors for the FY25

PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.07% of audit fees during the year under review and 0.09% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 92.9, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 7.1,

4.. Approve 2025 Equity Participation Plan

The Board proposes the approval of a new incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded options or rights to receive shares, which will start vesting after three years from the date of award. At this time, it seems that this plan will not be based on any performance criteria but only on the beneficiaries continued employment. As a result, they may receive bonuses unrelated to their performance or even the performance of the Company as a whole, which is considered a serious frustration of shareholder accountability.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 94.9, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 5.0,

MERLIN PROPERTIES SOCIMI S.A AGM - 29-04-20252.2. Approve the Dividend

It is proposed to distribute EUR 0.20089367 per share from reserves, including share premium. Although legal in this market, it is considered that the share premium account should be moved into distributable reserves through a reduction of capital, and it should not be used as distributable reserve per se. As the Company proposes a direct distribution from the share premium account, opposition is recommended.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4.5. Elect Francisca Ortega Hernández Agero - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee. Not considered to be independent as the director is an Executive of Banco Santander, a significant shareholder of the Company. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5. Approve Directors Compensation Policy

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of the fixed remuneration for the highest paid director. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. On balance, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Approve Share-Based Incentive Plan for Executives and Employees

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of the fixed remuneration for the highest paid director. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. The Company has disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for the entirety of its variable remuneration component. On balance, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, it is recommended Camden oppose based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Approve Authority to Increase Authorised Share Capital

It is proposed to increase the share capital with pre-emptive rights for less than 50% of the current share capital and less than 10% without preemptive rights. However, the duration of the proposed authority exceeds 26 months. On this ground, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Authorisation for the Board of Directors to Decide on Acquisition of Treasury Shares

The Share Buyback authority exceeds the 18-month duration. This extended period could lead to excessive buybacks beyond the intended scope, which is not in line with standard practices. Given the duration exceeds the typical 18-month limit, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10.1. Authorisation to the Board to Issue Debentures or Bonds

The Board requests shareholder authorization to issue debt, including convertible debt without pre-emptive rights, up to 10% of the share capital, over a period of five years. This is in accordance with Article 507 of the Capital Companies Act and the limit for issuance without pre-emptive rights is within guidelines. However, it would be preferred that shareholders approved or re-approved issues without pre-emptive rights annually. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

VAT GROUP AG AGM - 29-04-2025

1.1. Approve Financial and Statutory Statements

The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are some concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 98.2, Abstain: 1.8, Oppose/Withhold: 0.0,

1.2. Approve Non-Financial Statements

The non-financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and include the auditor's independent verification report. However, there are serious concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level governance structure for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the non-financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 95.9, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 3.8,

3. Discharge of the members of the Board of Directors and the Group Executive Committee

Standard resolution. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 97.5, Abstain: 2.3, Oppose/Withhold: 0.3,

4.1.2. Elect Urs Leinhäuser - Vice Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Director, chair of the audit committee. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 99.0, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 0.9,

4.1.5. Elect Daniel Lippuner - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director. Chair of the Sustainability Committee. The Chair of the Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered adequate to minimise the material risks linked to sustainability, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 99.2, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 0.7,

6. Appoint the Auditors

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 12.50% of audit fees during the year under review and 18.75% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

The current auditor has been in place for more than five years and there are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 97.5, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 2.4,

7.1. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance.

Rating: ADB.

Based on this rating it is recommended that Camden vote in favour.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 89.3, Abstain: 0.4, Oppose/Withhold: 10.3,

7.2. Approval of actual short-term incentive (STI) compensation of the Group Executive Committee (GEC) for the financial year 2024

It is proposed to approve the annual incentives for the previous year for executives, corresponding to aggregate amount of CHF 882,785. Annual incentives appear to be consistently capped, and the payout is in line with best practice. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has disclosed achievements only as a percentage of undisclosed targets, and as such, without quantified targets, it is impossible to assess whether the proposed amount would correspond to any overpayment against underperformance.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 97.8, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 1.8,

7.3. Approval of the maximum aggregate amount of fixed compensation of the GEC for the financial year 2026

It is proposed to approve the prospective remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the total remuneration cap. It is proposed to approve the prospective remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the total remuneration cap. The voting outcome of this resolution will be binding for the Company.

It is proposed to fix the remuneration of members of the Executive Committee until next AGM at CHF 2,900,000. This proposal includes fixed and variable remuneration components.

The variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, however, the Company has disclosed achievements only as a percentage of undisclosed targets, and as such, without quantified targets, it is impossible to assess whether the proposed amount would correspond to any overpayment against underperformance. On balance, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 98.5, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 1.2,

7.4. Approval of the maximum aggregate amount of Long-Term Incentive (LTI) compensation of the GEC for the financial year 2026

It is proposed to approve the prospective variable remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the cap for the variable remuneration component. The voting outcome of this resolution will be binding for the Company. It is proposed to fix the remuneration of members of the Executive Committee until next AGM at CHF 2,150,000 million. The Company submitted two separate proposals for Executives fixed and variable remuneration, which is welcomed. With this separation, if shareholders rejected the variable compensation at a future potential retrospective proposal, the Company may nevertheless pay fixed salaries. The Ordinance Against Excessive Payments provides that if compensation is not approved, it may not be paid.

There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 97.3, Abstain: 0.4, Oppose/Withhold: 2.3,

8. Transact Any Other Business

Shareholders should receive sufficient notice of proposals brought forward by either management or other shareholders. As such, any other proposition brought forward in the meeting would provide insufficient time for an informed assessment. Opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

OPTIMA BANK AGM - 29-04-20252. Approval of the overall management of the Company and discharge of the Statutory Auditors of the Company for the financial year 2024

In this market, board discharge prevents lawsuits or claims for activities carried out during the year relating to facts that have not been disclosed to shareholders. As a consequence, releasing auditors from liability will weaken the governance framework and introduce great risks for investors. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Re-appoint Deloitte as the Auditors of the Company

Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 72.89% of audit fees during the year under reviews. This level of non-audit fees raises major concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

Non-audit fees exceed 25% of audit fees for the year under review and this level of non-audit fees raises concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Approve the Remuneration Report

The Remuneration report was not made available sufficiently before the meeting. Opposition is recommended, as this is considered a serious reporting omission.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Approve Fees Payable to the Board of Directors

No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice, the proposed remuneration is likely to be made available only at the meeting.

Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market, support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting, as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

11. Approval of the distribution of part of the Company's Net Profits of the financial year 2024 to Executive Members of the Board of Directors, senior management and mid-level personnel of the Company.

No proposal is available at the present time. As per market practice, the proposed distribution of profit is likely to be made available only at the meeting.

Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market, support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning remuneration when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting, as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12. Authorise Share Repurchase

No proposal is available at the present time.

Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market, support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning share buybacks when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting, as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

13. Approve Release of Directors from Non-Competition Restriction

Approval is sought for directors to serve on the board of other companies engaged in activities within the scope of the company's business. There are concerns over the risks and potential negative impact on shareholders interest connected to directors or other officers of the Company serving for competing companies. In addition, there is insufficient description on how the Company will take measure to monitor the conflicts of interest and prevent any negative effect for the Company and ultimately its shareholders.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

14. Approve the amendment of the Non-executives Fees

No proposal is available at the present time.

Although this is a common practice for a standard item in this market, support will not be suggested for resolutions concerning share buybacks when sufficient information has not been made available for shareholders in sufficient time prior to the meeting, as such practice prevents shareholders from reaching an informed decision.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

QUALITAS CONTROLADORA AGM - 29-04-2025V. Authorise Share Repurchase

It is proposed to fix the maximum amount available to directors, for the purpose of buying shares on the market. Although this is technically not an authority to repurchase shares, shareholders in Mexico do not approve individual authorities to repurchase shares. As such, identifying the total amount which can be used for repurchasing shares is considered an indirect authority to buy back shares on the market. These resolutions will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

VI. Elect Board: Slate Election

Proposal to renew the Board with a bundled election. Although slate elections are not considered to be best practice, they are common in this market. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board after the meeting as resulting from this slate of candidates. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

WELLS FARGO & COMPANY AGM - 29-04-2025

1d.. Elect Theodore F. Craver, Jr. - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee and member of the Governance and Nominating Committee. Not considered independent as the director was previously employed by the Company. It is noted that prior to 1996, Mr. Craver worked for First Interstate Bancorp (First Interstate), a predecessor company of Wells Fargo. It is considered that Audit and Governance and Nominating committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

On 5 August 2024, Wells Fargo & Company is under government authorities' investigations on issues related to anti-money laundering (AML) and sanctions programs. The company did not specify which government entity was investigating its practices, nor did it provide specifics related to the issues under scrutiny. Wells Fargo & Company disclosed this AML and Sanctions program inquiry in its second-quarter Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) filing. In the same filing, the bank mentioned that it is in 'resolution discussions' with the U.S. SEC about an investigation related to the cash sweep options it provides to new investment advisory clients. The bank further added in its SEC filing that, 'There can be no assurance as to the outcome of these discussions.'

There are recent allegations of fraud at the company, and while no wrongdoing has yet been identified, there are concerns about the potential legal and reputational impacts on the company. The Audit Committee should take responsibility for overseeing the company's compliance policies, including through effective whistleblower policies. As such, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the Audit Committee Chair. The proposed auditor is not independent, and the chair of the Audit Committee holds accountability for this.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1g.. Elect Wayne M. Hewett - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director and chair of the Governance and Nominating Committee and member of the Human Resources Committee.

At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of Governance and Nominating Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

As the Chair of the Governance and Nominating Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, It is recommended that Camden oppose.

1k.. Elect Ronald L. Sargent - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Human Resources Committee and member of Audit and Governance and Nominating Committees.

There are serious concerns regarding the remuneration policy at the company, and it is considered that the chair of the Human Resources Committee should be held accountable for it when considering re-election.

The ratio of CEO, or the highest paid executive officer, to employee pay of the company is greater than 150:1, this does not meet Camden's guidelines.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 90.3, Abstain: 0.7, Oppose/Withhold: 9.0,

1l.. Elect Charles W. Scharf - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. 11. Approve Remuneration Policy

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy with a binding vote. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of the fixed remuneration for the highest paid director. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on potential excessive variable remuneration and absence of quantified targets.

OCADO GROUP PLC AGM - 29-04-2025

1. Receive the Annual Report

The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified.

There are concerns regarding the company's sustainability policies and practices. The annual report and financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks, including the lack of board-level accountability for sustainability issues. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders; however, the report fails to do so adequately. Camden is recommended to oppose.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report

Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is below the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. Total combined variable reward paid during the year is considered excessive, exceeding the 200% recommended threshold. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.

3. Elect Adam Warby - Chair (Non Executive)

Chair. Independent upon appointment.

Since there is no director up for election who is responsible for sustainability, such as the Chair of the Sustainability Committee or any of its members, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability program. Given the concerns regarding the Company's sustainability policies and practices, a vote to oppose is recommended.

AMERIPRISE FINANCIAL INC. AGM - 30-04-2025

1a.. Re-elect James M. Cracchiolo - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

6.6. Elect Helle Valentin - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director.

However, based on PIRC's overall assessment of the company's transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Amber, indicating that it falls short of PIRC's expectations. While the company has set out climate targets, assigned board-level accountability and provided a description on the mitigation levers it will use, it has failed to adequately detail board members' expertise in climate change. As such, it is recommended to oppose the re-election of the chair of the sustainability committee. As the chair of the Strategy and Sustainability committee is not up for re-election, member of this board committee are thereafter held responsible. Helle Valentin is a member of this committee and therefore her re-election is opposed.

7. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

8. Approve Remuneration Policy

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy with a binding vote. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of the fixed remuneration for the highest paid director. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on potential excessive variable remuneration and absence of quantified targets.

10. Approve Virtual-Only Shareholder Meetings Until 2027

It is proposed to amend the articles in order to allow virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing virtual-only meetings.

11. Authorisation to implement share buybacks and use treasury shares

RWE is seeking shareholder approval to renew its authorisation to repurchase up to 10% of its share capital until 29 April 2027, replacing the existing authorisation expiring in May 2025. The buybacks may occur via the stock exchange or through offers to all shareholders, with pricing limits tied to recent market averages.

Repurchased shares may be cancelled, used as acquisition currency, sold for cash at near-market prices, or allocated for convertible bonds and employee share programs, with the possibility to waive shareholder subscription rights in certain cases. The aim is to give RWE strategic and financial flexibility while ensuring protections against shareholder dilution.

The Share Buyback authority is limited to 10% of the company's share capital, but it exceeds the 18-month duration. While the percentage limit is within acceptable bounds, the extended time frame raises concerns about long-term shareholder value and potential market impact. This extended period could lead to excessive buybacks beyond the intended scope, which is not in line with standard practices. Given the duration exceeds the typical 18-month limit, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

CANADIAN PACIFIC KANSAS CITY LTD. AGM - 30-04-2025

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ADB.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

3. Say on Climate

Governance

The climate policy appears to be adequately linked to the governance of the company overall. The chair is indicated as being responsible for oversight of the climate strategy and members of the senior management have accrued significant experience in climate-related issues within the sector of the company.

There is adequate experience and knowledge of climate change and decarbonisation on the board of directors, including at least one non-executive director with significant experience of decarbonisation measures from within the core sector of operations of the company.

There is no evidence of adequate training and learning on the Board or senior management of climate-related issues, most relevantly decarbonization.

The company has not pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy, which appears inconsistent with its goals and an obstacle to its effectiveness.

Disclosure

The company has not provided a timeline for implementation of its climate strategy. This raises concern over the effectiveness of measuring and implementing progress on emission reductions and implementation of an effective transition plan.

While the company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 2.0 degrees, setting targets in line with changes of 1.5 degrees or lower would be considered to be in line with a more resilient scenario.

The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 and includes scopes 1, 2 and 3 emission reductions in this commitment. The company strategy appears to include an actual reduction of carbon emissions rather than having a heavy reliance on offsetting.

PIRC Analysis

The concerns above are reinforced by a seeming inadequate experience or knowledge on decarbonisation measures from within the core sector of operations of the company, accompanied by lack of relevant training at board level. On balance, it is recommended to oppose.

5A. Elect John Baird - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Social Responsibility Committee and member of the Risk and Sustainability Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Social Responsibility Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. The director chairs a committee that is not fully independent, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

Vote Cast: Oppose

5B. Elect Isabelle Courville - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Ms. Courville is an ex-officio member of all standing Committees and may attend committee meetings at her discretion. The Chair is not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. 5G. Elect Janet H. Kennedy - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit and Finance and Risk and Sustainability Committees. Not considered to be independent, as this director is considered to be in a material connection with the current auditor, EY, where she held the position of Partner from 2018 to 2019. It is considered that the Audit and Finance Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

As a result, the audit committee is not fully independent, which does not comply with Camden guidelines.

5I. Elect Matthew H. Paull - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Management Resources and Compensation Committee and member of the Audit and Finance Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Management Resources and Compensation and Audit and Finance Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

The ratio of CEO, or the highest paid executive officer, to employee pay of the company is greater than 150:1, this does not meet Camden's guidelines.

There are serious concerns regarding the remuneration policy at the company, and it is considered that the chair of the Management Resources and Compensation

Committee should be held accountable for it when considering re-election.

SMITH & NEPHEW PLC AGM - 30-04-2025

1. Receive the Annual Report

The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified.

There are concerns regarding the company's sustainability policies and practices. The annual report and financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks, including the lack of board-level accountability for sustainability issues. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders; however, the report fails to do so adequately. Camden is recommended to oppose.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report

Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is below the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Chair of the Nomination Committee.

Since there is no director up for election who is responsible for sustainability, such as the Chair of the Sustainability Committee or any of its members, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability program.

This director is the Chair of the Nomination Committee, and with less than 40% of the Board being women, the composition does not meet Camden's guidelines.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report

Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.

22. Authorise Issue of Equity in Relation to Any Issuance of SII Instruments

Authority is sought to allot shares and grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into ordinary shares in the Company up to an aggregate nominal amount of GBP150,000,000, representing approximately 17.03% of the Company's issued ordinary share capital as at 10 March 2025, such authority to be exercised in connection with the issue of Solvency II (SII) instruments. The authority expires at the next AGM. The Company explains that this authority is needed so that the Company has the flexibility to manage and maintain the Group's capital structure more effectively in the light of evolving regulatory capital requirements, market conditions and appetite for different instruments and their cost-effectiveness. It is noted that these SII instruments include Tier 1 instruments such as Equity Convertible Instruments or ECIs.

The use of Contingent Convertible Securities or CoCos is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. CoCos are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that CoCos may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentivises equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Recent events at Deutsche Bank has led to others voicing their concerns about the destabilising effect of CoCos on both the CoCo price and the share price. Based on these concerns, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

24. Authorise Issue of Equity without Pre-emptive Rights in Relation to Any Issuance of SII Instruments

Authority is sought to allot equity shares for cash up to an aggregate nominal amount of GBP150,000,000, representing approximately 14.91% of the Company's issued ordinary share capital as at 10 March 2025, such authority to be exercised in connection with the issue of Solvency II (SII) instruments. The authority expires at the next AGM. The Company explains that this authority is needed to give it the flexibility necessary to allot equity securities pursuant to any proposal to issue SII Instruments without the need to comply with the strict pre-emption requirements of the UK statutory regime.

The use of Contingent Convertible Securities or CoCos is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. IV. Authorise Share Repurchase

It is proposed to fix the maximum amount available to directors, for the purpose of buying shares on the market. Although this is technically not an authority to repurchase shares, shareholders in Mexico do not approve individual authorities to repurchase shares. As such, identifying the total amount which can be used for repurchasing shares is considered an indirect authority to buy back shares on the market. These resolutions will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

10. Re-elect Ian Meakins - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Chair of the Nomination Committee. It is considered that the Chair of the Remuneration Committee is responsible for the company's remuneration report, and there are major concerns with the company's remuneration report, however, as there is no Chair of the Remuneration Committee up for election at the upcoming meeting, the Chair of the Board is considered responsible instead. The chair also holds another chair position at a listed company, which raises time commitment concerns. It is considered that the chair should be able to wholly dedicate their time to the company in times of company crisis. The COVID pandemic has shown that there are times when multiple unrelated companies will require the Chair's full attention in order to be able to handle times of crisis. It is considered that there is insufficient time to be able to effectively chair two or more companies at the same time. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

PIRC issue: At the company, the Audit Committee does not oversee the whistle-blowing hotline. This may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalated which may mean the issue is concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

1.2. Re-Elect Amanda M. Brock - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Compensation Committee and Member of the Governance and Social Responsibility Committee.

It is considered that the Chair of the Compensation Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation and there are concerns with the company's executive compensation. Furthermore, the director holds an executive position at another public listed company; Ms. Brock has served as the CEO of Aris Water

Solutions Inc. since 2021. This arrangement may compromise their ability to devote sufficient attention and impartiality to their duties within the current organisation, ultimately undermining effective governance and decision-making. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Chair and CEO.

Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

Non-Executive Vice Chair, Chair of the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee and Member of the Compensation Committee.

Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years.

The director chairs a committee that is not fully independent, which does not meet Camden guidelines. In terms of best practice, it is considered that both the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee and the Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall.

The director also received significant opposition of more than 10% of the votes cast, and the company has not disclosed the steps taken to address discontent with shareholders.

1g.. Re-Elect Dale B. Wolf - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board, Chair of the Compensation Committee and Member of the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. In terms of best practice, it is considered that both the Compensation Committee and the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

It is considered that the Chair of the Compensation Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation, and there are concerns with the company's executive compensation.

Furthermore, the chair holds another chair position at a listed company; Mr. Wolf has been the Executive Chair of EHealth, Inc. since September 2021. This raises time commitment concerns, and it is considered that the chair should be able to wholly dedicate their time to the company in times of company crisis. It is considered that there is insufficient time to be able to effectively chair two or more companies at the same time.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

4.. Approve the Company's 2025 Equity Incentive Plan

It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers; the 2025 Equity Incentive Plan will supersede and replace the Company's 2019 Equity Incentive Plan. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed.

Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions.

BANCO DEL BAJIO AGM - 30-04-2025

10. Set Maximum Amount of Share Repurchase For FY 2025 and Approve Board's Report on Share Repurchase For FY 2024

It is proposed to fix the maximum amount available to directors, for the purpose of buying shares on the market. Although this is technically not an authority to repurchase shares, shareholders in Mexico do not approve individual authorities to repurchase shares. As such, identifying the total amount which can be used for repurchasing shares is considered an indirect authority to buy back shares on the market. These resolutions will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

HAPAG LLOYD AG AGM - 30-04-2025

5. Appoint the Auditors for Sustainability Reporting for Fiscal 2025

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 8.89% of audit fees during the year under review and 8.89% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

The current auditor has been in place for more than five years and there are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Re-elect Dr. Isabella Niklas - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, member of the Audit and Financial Committee, member of the Presidential and Personnel Committee, and member of the Nomination Committee.

Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder; the director has been the Management Spokeswoman at HGV Hamburger Gesellschaft für Vermögens- und Beteiligungsmanagement mbH since 2018.

In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Audit and Financial Committee, the Presidential and Personnel Committee, and the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

KNORR-BREMSE AG AGM - 30-04-2025

3. Discharge the Management Board

Standard proposal. Although no wrongdoing has been identified, the company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimise material risks linked to sustainability and the agenda does not include a vote on the annual report or the financial statements. As such, opposition is recommended on the discharge.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Elect Stephan Sturm - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: He is the chairman of the foundation executive board of the Family Foundation, which indirectly controls approx. 58.99% of the shares in Knorr-Bremse AG. There is insufficient independent representation on the Board.

Vote Cast: Oppose

8. Approve Virtual-Only Shareholder Meetings Until 2027

It is proposed to amend the articles in order to allow virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing virtual-only meetings.

13. Authorise Share Repurchase

It is proposed to fix the maximum amount available to directors, for the purpose of buying shares on the market. Although this is technically not an authority to repurchase shares, shareholders in Mexico do not approve individual authorities to repurchase shares. As such, identifying the total amount which can be used for repurchasing shares is considered an indirect authority to buy back shares on the market. These resolutions will not be supported unless the Board has set forth a clear, cogent and compelling case demonstrating how the authority would benefit long-term shareholders. As no clear justification was provided by the Board, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

5. Submission for discussion and voting of the Remuneration Report for Board of Directors' members for fiscal year 2024

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

9. Amendment of the terms of the Performance Stock Awards

The Board of Directors proposes that the shareholders approve amendments to the Company's Performance Stock Awards program. This proposal is driven by the Company's outstanding financial performance during the fiscal years 2023 and 2024, as evidenced by the Group's strong financial results, as well as the favourable outlook for the coming years. Under the current program, 66,775 shares were allocated in 2024. The proposed amendment seeks to both increase the number of shares available for distribution and extend the duration of the program by an additional two years, covering the period through 2027 and 2028. Specifically, the proposed change would set the maximum number of shares available for allocation during 2025–2028 at up to 1,200,000 shares, which corresponds to approximately 1.3% of the Company's share capital as of the date of the Ordinary General Meeting's invitation. The shares may be granted under a long-term incentive plan and will be subject to a 24-month retention period. These shares may either be: i) Treasury shares, in accordance with Article 49(3) of Law 4548/2018, or ii) Newly issued shares from the capitalization of retained earnings, distributable reserves, or share premium reserves. Importantly, the nominal value of the allocated shares will not exceed one-tenth of the Company's paid-up share capital at the time of the General Meeting's resolution. While increasing employee share ownership is generally viewed as a sound governance practice-helping to better align the interests of employees and shareholders-it is also noted that executives are included among the beneficiaries. However, the absence of clearly defined performance criteria and conditions for allocation raises governance concerns. Given these considerations, and despite the program's positive aspects, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

7. Approvals according to article 86 of L. 4261/2014

Following the recommendation of the Remuneration Committee, the BoD proposes to the AGM to approve, pursuant to the provisions and following the procedure of article 86 of L. 4261/2014, a higher than 100% maximum level of the ratio between the fixed and variable components of remuneration for the following eight (8) executives: i) Chief Executive Officer (CEO): 175% (no variable remuneration changes versus last year), ii) Deputy CEO, Group Chief Operating Officer (COO) & International Activities: 149% (no variable remuneration changes versus last year), iii) Deputy CEO, Head of Corporate & Investment Banking: 149% (no variable remuneration changes versus last year), iv) Deputy CEO, Head of Retail & Digital Banking: 136% (7% variable remuneration increase versus last year), v) General Manager Group Risk Management, Group Chief Risk Officer (Group CRO): 134% (4% variable remuneration increase versus last year), vi) General Manager Group Finance, Group Chief Financial Officer (Group CFO): 134% (4% variable remuneration increase versus last year), vii) General Manager Group Strategy: 137% (6% variable remuneration increase versus last year) and viii) General Manager Markets: 117% (no variable remuneration changes versus last year).

For the proposed ratios of variable remuneration the responsibilities of the specific executives as well as the variable remuneration paid in the banking sector, but also in businesses of other important sectors of the economy, in Greece and abroad, were taken into consideration. The aforementioned are senior executives with responsibility for the overall course of the Group, inside and outside Greece. The proposed ratios of variable remuneration are also provided as recognition of their strong commitment to the Group's results. In addition, it is noted that although the Group net profit has increased by 27% versus last year, the variable remuneration of the CEO and the two (2) other executive members of the Board of Directors is not changing, so that the increases in the amount of profit distribution (under 6 above) and in total of the variable remuneration to be directed to the remaining executives and employees of the Company.

Although the proposal is based on market regulations and the variable pay is capped below the recommended limit of 200%, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

10. Approve the Remuneration Report for the financial year 2024

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. 2. Approve Remuneration Policy

It is proposed to approve the Remuneration Policy of the Company. The LTIP scheme use of non-financial performance metrics as a means of assessing individual performance. The use of non-financial conditions enables the policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole as well as the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Maximum potential awards for both the Annual Bonus and LTIP are clearly stated. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to at least 375% of the salary for the CEO and 275% of the salary for the CFO, over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder. The Annual Bonus is deferred. Claw-back provisions are attached to the annual bonus. The deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus is in line with best practice as half of the bonus is deferred in shares over at least two years. The performance period for the LTIP is less than five years and is therefore not considered sufficiently long-term. Claw-back provisions are in place over long-term incentive plans. However, recipients of the award are required to hold their vested shares for at least a further two years, which is welcomed

3. Approve the Remuneration Report

Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CFO's salary is below the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. Total combined variable reward paid during the year is considered excessive, exceeding the 200% recommended threshold. The ratio of CFO pay compared to that of the average employee falls below the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered to be overly excessive.

19. Authorise Issue of Equity in Connection with the Issue of Mandatory Convertible Securities

The authority is limited to one third of the Company's issued share capital. This cap can reduced to 33% of the issued share capital if shares are issued in connection with an offer by way of a rights issue. This resolution is in connection with the issue of Mandatory Convertible Securities.

The use of Contingent Convertible Securities or CoCos is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. CoCos are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that CoCos may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentives equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Recent events at Deutsche Bank has led to others voicing their concerns about the destabilising effect of CoCos on both the CoCo price and the share price. Based on these concerns, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

1.2. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There is no cap on the maximum variable remuneration payable disclosed. Additionally, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out. On this basis, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

7. Appoint the Auditors

Forvis Mazars proposed. Non-audit fees represented 1.02% of audit fees during the year under review and 1.02% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

The current auditor has been in place for more than five years and there are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

3. Approve the Remuneration Report

Disclosure: All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO's salary increase is in line with the workforce at 2%. However, the salary of the CEO is on the upper quartile of PIRC's competitor group which raises concerns of potential excessiveness.

Balance: The total variable pay for the CEO in the year under review was 86.02% of the fixed salary which is within guidelines. The CEO's pay ratio was also within guidelines at 10:1.

4. Approve Remuneration Policy

The new Remuneration Policy will primarily increase the maximum annual bonus opportunity to 200% of the salary, and provide the Remuneration Committee with more discretion on the Awards, alongside some minor amendments to the wording for clarity. The maximum variable pay available to the CEO is 500% of the fixed salary, which is deemed excessive when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 200%. Half of the Annual Bonus defers to shares for three years, which is in line with best practise. The performance period for the LTIP is three years, which is considered overly short term, however a two-year holding period applies post-vesting, which is welcomed. The inclusion of non-financial metrics on the Annual Bonus is welcomed, however, it would be best practise for these to also apply to the LTIP. Award holders may receive a payment in cash or shares equal in value to any dividends that would have been paid. Such rewards misalign shareholders and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. Malus and Clawback apply to all aspects of the variable pay.

1i.. Elect James Quincey - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. 6. Shareholder Resolution: Creation of an Improper Influence Board Committee

Proponent's argument: The proponent calls for the creation of a board-level "Improper Influence Committee" to assess whether non-pecuniary policy preferences-such as those related to ESG, DEI, and corporate social responsibility-have improperly influenced Coca-Cola's decision-making. The proposal suggests that such influence, whether from directors, executives, or asset managers, undermines shareholder value. It claims that Coca-Cola's sustainability and inclusion strategies align with partisan ideologies and could expose the company to reputational and financial harm, as allegedly seen in public backlashes against other brands. The proponent questions the rationale behind Coca-Cola's climate goals, DEI commitments, and top score on the Human Rights Campaign's Corporate Equality Index, arguing these initiatives lack clear financial justification. They argue that establishing the proposed committee and issuing a public report would enhance board oversight and ensure corporate decisions remain focused on long-term shareholder value rather than activist-driven agendas.

Company's response: Coca-Cola's Board opposes the proposal, asserting that it is unnecessary and misaligned with sound governance principles. The Board states that its current committee structure already provides effective oversight of corporate strategy and risk. Committees are formed based on strategic priorities and material risks, not in response to isolated stakeholder concerns. The company rejects the characterisation of its ESG and DEI efforts as "value destroying," emphasising that such initiatives are integrated into its broader business strategy to promote sustainable growth and stakeholder engagement. The Board also questions the practicality and purpose of forming a committee to examine "improper influence," given the vague and subjective nature of the proposal. It concludes that the measure would not contribute meaningful oversight or shareholder value and recommends a vote against the proposal.

PIRC Recommendation: The proposal presents a politicised and ideologically motivated critique of ESG and DEI practices, rather than a serious governance concern. Coca-Cola's board and committee structure already allows for robust oversight of corporate strategy and risk. There is no credible evidence that the company's decision-making has been improperly influenced in a way that compromises shareholder value. Moreover, creating a dedicated committee based on a loosely defined concept of "improper influence" would divert resources and serve no clear governance benefit. The proposal risks undermining board independence and company discretion in strategic planning. Opposition is recommended.

7. Shareholder Resolution: Removing DEI Goals in Executive Pay

Proponent Shareholder: National Legal and Policy Center

Proponent's argument: The proponent requests that Coca-Cola's Talent and Compensation Committee revisit its executive incentive pay guidelines, specifically to consider removing diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) goals. The proposal frames DEI-linked pay metrics as potentially unlawful and high risk following the 2023 US Supreme Court ruling on affirmative action, asserting that DEI programmes expose companies to legal, reputational, and financial liabilities. It highlights rising litigation against corporate DEI practices and claims that incentive structures tied to DEI objectives could violate employment laws or breach fiduciary duties. Coca-Cola's current pay policies include DEI-linked performance measures, such as aligning its workforce with U.S. Census demographics by 2030 and aiming for gender parity in leadership. The proponent argues these targets are discriminatory and should be reconsidered, citing broader backlash against DEI in corporate America and recent legal rulings involving other companies. The resolution seeks only that the board "revisit" and "consider" adjustments, positioning it as a measured, compliance-focused step.

Company's response: Coca-Cola opposes the proposal, stating it is unnecessary and redundant. The Board affirms that its Talent and Compensation Committee already annually reviews and evaluates all components of executive pay, including both financial and non-financial performance measures. This includes regular assessments of DEI-related incentives, conducted with input from independent advisors. The Committee reviewed these factors most recently in February 2025 and determined to continue including DEI goals as part of long- and short-term incentive structures. Coca-Cola's compensation design aims to align executive rewards with long-term value creation and cultural objectives, including sustainability and inclusion. The Board views these DEI-related measures as non-quota-based and fully within its strategic discretion. It argues that the proposal requests no action beyond what is already routine practice and therefore has effectively been implemented. As such, it recommends shareholders vote against the resolution.

PIRC Recommendation: It is rooted in ideological opposition to DEI principles and does not present a credible governance concern. The inclusion of DEI metrics in executive compensation is a recognised practice that reflects long-term value considerations, stakeholder priorities, and cultural alignment. Coca-Cola's DEI targets are aspirational and reviewed annually by its Compensation Committee, which retains full discretion over incentive design. The proposal mischaracterises these efforts as unlawful or financially irresponsible without evidentiary support. Eliminating or revisiting DEI goals on ideological grounds would undermine the company's strategic commitments and responsiveness to evolving workforce and consumer expectations. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

9. Shareholder Resolution: Civil Liberties in Advertising Services

Proponent Shareholder: Bowyer Research, Inc., on behalf of a shareowner

Proponent's argument: The proponent requests that Coca-Cola publish a report evaluating how it manages risks related to alleged discrimination in advertising practices based on political or religious viewpoints. The proposal centres on Coca-Cola's past association with the Global Alliance for Responsible Media (GARM), which the proponent claims enabled censorship by promoting brand safety standards that excluded certain political or religious content. It argues that Coca-Cola's involvement in such industry collaborations may have contributed to advertising restrictions against conservative media outlets, podcasts, or online platforms, thus creating reputational and legal risks under antitrust and anti-discrimination law. The proposal cites concerns about vague definitions of "disinformation" and "hate speech" used to demonetise content, and highlights GARM's disbanding in 2024 amid public pressure and a lawsuit. The resolution claims that Coca-Cola's credibility, legal exposure, and stakeholder trust may suffer without transparency around how it chooses advertising platforms or manages viewpoint neutrality.

Company's response: Coca-Cola's Board recommends voting against the proposal, stating that it rejects the premise on which the resolution is based. The company affirms that advertising platform choices are guided by business objectives, not dictated by external organisations such as GARM. Coca-Cola emphasises that it adheres to globally recognised responsible marketing frameworks and independently determines its advertising strategy, taking into account factors such as budget, brand safety, and effectiveness. The company denies engaging in discriminatory or politically motivated ad-buying practices and asserts that decisions about advertising placement are a core operational function, not appropriate for shareholder micromanagement. It argues that the requested report would serve no useful purpose and would divert resources from core strategic priorities.

PIRC Recommendation: The proposal is ideologically driven and misrepresents industry-standard brand safety practices as discriminatory censorship. Coca-Cola's responsible marketing aligns with global frameworks that seek to prevent harm, disinformation, and hate speech, which are consistent with ESG-aligned governance. The proposal undermines these principles by framing content moderation and advertising discretion as violations of civil liberties. Furthermore, there is no credible evidence that Coca-Cola discriminates in its advertising activities on the basis of political or religious views. The company's decisions in this area are commercial in nature and subject to existing oversight. Producing a report based on politically motivated claims would not enhance governance or shareholder value. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

MODERNA INC AGM - 30-04-2025

1a. Elect Noubar B. Afeyan Ph.D. - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In addition, the Director has beneficial ownership of a significant share of the Company's stock. It should be noted that Dr Afeyan is the CEO of Flagship pioneering where Mr Berenson is the the Managing Partner. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Oppose vote is therefore recommended.

3. Approve Remuneration Policy

Changes to the Remuneration Policy in the year under review include: up to 20% of salary will be payable for threshold performance. Under the current policy, the payout at threshold is 20% of salary. The circumstances for which clawback and malus may be applied have been expanded to include corporate failure and serious reputational damage to align with the updated UK Corporate Governance Code. The policy maximum under the PSP will be increased to 300% of salary. For FY25, the PSP opportunity for the CEO will be increased to 285% of salary from 270% of salary and for the CFO will be increased to 235% of salary from 220% of salary.

In line with the rules of the PSP, a payment equivalent to the dividends accrued on vesting performance shares may be made at the point of vesting, normally in shares. Up to 15% of maximum will be payable for achieving threshold performance. Under the current policy, the payout at threshold is 15% of maximum. The malus and clawback provisions will be updated to align with the changes set out under the annual bonus. The shareholding requirement for the Executive Directors will be increased under the new policy from 200% to 300% of salary. Total potential variable pay for the CEO can reach 500% of the salary in certain circumstances, which is deemed excessive when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 200%. 30% of the Annual Bonus award defers to shares for a period of two years. It would be best practise for at least half of the award to vest into shares for this period. The performance period for the PSP is three-years, which is deemed overly short-term, however, an additional holding period of two-years applies post-vesting, which is welcomed. The inclusion of non-financial performance metrics for the PSP is also welcomed. Malus and clawback provisions apply to all aspects of the variable pay.

Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

There has been no external performance evaluation conducted in the past three years, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

PIRC Issue: The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. 06. To receive and consider the Remuneration Committee's report on directors' remuneration that is set out in the Annual Report for the year ended 31 December 2024

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout in 2024 is in line with best practice by being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. Furthermore, there is potential for the total variable remuneration to exceed 200% of base salary in 2025 due to the caps placed on the Annual bonus and the LTIP. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

09. Dis-application of pre-emption rights in respect of up to 10% of the Company's issued share capital

It is proposed to authorize the Board to issue shares without pre-emptive rights until next AGM. The proposed amount of shares issued up to 10% of the current share capital. However, the resolution does not mention any specific discount level at which those shares may be issued. As such it is recommended that Camden oppose.

11. Purchase of own shares

The Share Buyback authority is limited to 10% of the company's share capital and cannot exceed 18 months. This ensures the buyback remains within a reasonable scope. The time frame and percentage limit align with standard best practices and provide a clear structure for shareholder benefit. However, the Share Buyback proposal is conducted at a price greater than a 5% premium to the prevailing market price. We consider this to be an excessive premium that may not represent a prudent use of shareholder capital. Paying significantly above market value for shares can result in an inefficient allocation of resources and may not deliver value to long-term shareholders. In our view, capital would be better deployed elsewhere in the business or returned through more equitable means. Opposition is recommended.

14. Amend Existing Long Term Incentive Plan

This proposal seeks shareholder approval to amend the Kingspan Group plc 2017 Performance Share Plan by increasing the maximum annual award limit for participants from 300% to 450% of base salary and removing Rule 4.5 along with all references to it, effectively eliminating any related restrictions or conditions previously stated in that rule. It is considered appropriate that variable remuneration remains capped at 200% of base salary. In light of the significantly higher proposed increase to this cap, a vote against the proposal is recommended.

SIGMAROC PLC AGM - 01-05-2025

2. Appoint the Auditors and Allow the Board to Determine their Remuneration

PKF Littlejohn LLP proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The date of appointment of the current audit firm is undisclosed, meaning the length of tenure is not known. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

3. Elect David Barrett - Chair (Executive)

Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

7. Elect Peter Johnson - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nomination Committee and no target has been set to increase the level of female representation on the Board, which currently falls below the recommended 33% target.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

9. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the report on the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

10. To Approve the SigmaRoc plc Long Term Incentive Plan 2025

The Board proposes the approval of a new incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded options or rights to receive shares, which will start vesting after three years from the date of award. At this time, it seems that this plan will not be based on any performance criteria but only on the beneficiaries continued employment. As a result, they may receive bonuses unrelated to their performance or even the performance of the Company as a whole, which is considered a serious frustration of shareholder accountability.
It is recommended that Camden oppose.

4.. Amend Articles: Eliminate Supermajority Voting Provisions and Allow Virtual Only meetings.

It is considered to be best practice that shareholders should have the right to approve most matters submitted for their consideration by a simple majority of the shares voted. There are concerns that the super-majority provisions which relate to the company's corporate governance documents could frustrate attempts by the majority of shareholders to make the company more accountable or strengthen the independence of the Board. However, It is also proposed to amend the articles in order to allow virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters.

It is recommended that Camden oppose. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

2.. Appoint the Auditors

Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 15.11% of audit fees during the year under review and 16.18% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

5a. Elect Anik Chaumartin - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit committee. Not considered to be independent, as this director is considered to be in a material connection with the current auditor: PwC. During her time in PwC she has acted in the roles of Global Client Relationship Partner and Lead Audit Partner for a number of major banking and financial services organisations. There is sufficient independent representation on the Board. It is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

8b. Authorise Issue Of Equity Without Pre-Emptive Rights In Connection With An Acquisition Or Other Capital Investment

The Board is seeking approval to issue up to an additional 5% of the Company's issued share capital for cash for use only in connection with an acquisition or a specified capital investment. Such proposal is not supported as it is considered that the 5% limit sought under the general authority above is sufficient. Best practice would be to seek a specific authority from shareholders in relation to a specific transaction if such situation arises. As this is not the case, an oppose vote is therefore recommended.

15. Shareholder Proposal: Elect Philip Hobbs, a Shareholder Nominee, as a Director

Proponent's argument: Resolution 15 is a shareholder proposal submitted by Ms. Valerie McCabe on 2 March 2025, seeking the appointment of Mr. Philip John Hobbs as a Director at the upcoming AGM. The company has not disclosed a formal supporting statement or justification from Ms. McCabe within the notice. The only statement related to the shareholder proposal is: "On 2 March 2025, the Company received notice from a Shareholder, Ms. Valerie McCabe of her intention to propose a resolution for the appointment of Mr. Philip John Hobbs as a Director at this AGM."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The board argues the following: "The Board has not been given sufficient time or information to evaluate Mr Hobbs by reference to the criteria set out above. In any event, the Board is satisfied that the existing non-executive Directors, each of whom is proposed for re-election at the AGM, have the relevant mix of skills, competence and capability required under the applicable regulatory requirements. Accordingly, the Board has concluded that the appointment of Mr Hobbs as a Director is not in the best interests of the Company or its Shareholders. The Board further notes, that even if approved by Shareholders, the appointment of Mr Hobbs would remain subject to, and could only become effective after, receipt of all required regulatory approvals and consultation with the Minister. There can be no certainty that any such approvals would be received."

PIRC Recommendation: The Board has outlined a comprehensive, formalised process for director appointments, involving skills-based assessment, regulatory review, and ministerial consultation. It has stated that it lacked sufficient time and information to properly evaluate Mr. Hobbs and has confidence in the current composition of the Board. Given the absence of a proponent's supporting statement and the lack of biographical information for such an appointment, the proposal does not meet the necessary threshold for support at this time.

CHURCH & DWIGHT CO. INC. AGM - 01-05-2025

1c.. Elect Matthew T. Farrell - Chair (Executive)

Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this and a vote to Oppose is recommended.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that these committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Moreover, the Chair of the Governance, Nominating & Corporate Responsibility Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and there are concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice.

The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Governance, Nominating & Corporate Responsibility Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall.

PIRC issue: At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. 2F. Re-Elect Pentti O. Karkkainen - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The chair holds another chair position at a listed company, Nuvista Energy Ltd; this arrangement raises time commitment concerns. Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board

Since there is no director up for election who is responsible for sustainability, such as the Chair of the Sustainability Committee or any of its members, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability program. Given the concerns regarding the Company's sustainability policies and practices.

The Chair is also chairing another company within the FTSE 350 index. It is considered that a chair cannot effectively represent two corporate cultures. The possibility of having to commit additional time to the role in times of crisis is ever present. Given this, a Chair should focus his attention onto the only one FTSE 350 Company.

2. Approve Remuneration Policy

It is proposed to the shareholders to approve the Remuneration Policy of the Company. The LTIP scheme use of non-financial performance metrics as a means of assessing individual performance. The use of non-financial conditions enables the policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole as well as the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Maximum potential awards for both the Annual Bonus and LTIP are clearly stated. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to at least 200% of salary, over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder. The Annual Bonus is deferred. Claw-back provisions are attached to the annual bonus. The deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus is in line with best practice as half of the bonus is deferred in shares over at least two years. The performance period for the LTIP is less than five years and is therefore not considered sufficiently long-term. Claw-back provisions are in place over long-term incentive plans. However, recipients of the award are required to hold their vested shares for at least a further two years, which is welcomed. Rating:ADC

INTUITIVE SURGICAL INC AGM - 01-05-2025

1a. Elect Craig H. Barratt - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board.

Chair of the Board. There is no Senior Independent Director appointed, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.

4. Approve New Long Term Incentive Plan

The board seeks approval of the amendment and restatement of the 2010 Incentive Award Plan which (i) increases the shares of common stock reserved for issuance under the Amended 2010 Plan, as previously amended and restated effective March 6, 2024 (the '2010 Plan'), by 5,000,000 shares from 115,350,000 shares, thereby increasing the total number of shares reserved for issuance to 120,350,000, (ii) extends the term of the Amended 2010 Plan to January 30, 2035 (the tenth anniversary of the effective date of the Amended 2010 Plan), and (iii) specifies the treatment of awards in connection with a change in control.

Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded options or rights to receive shares, which will start vesting after one year from the date of award. At this time, it seems that this plan will not be based on any performance criteria but only on the beneficiaries continued employment. As a result, they may receive bonuses unrelated to their performance or even the performance of the Company as a whole, which is considered a serious frustration of shareholder accountability.

1i.. Elect Wendell P. Weeks - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

5. Re-elect Andrea Bertone - Chair (Non Executive)

Chair. Independent upon appointment.

Since there is no Board level Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability program.

During the reporting year, Ofgem concluded a major investigation into Drax's compliance with the Renewables Obligation scheme. The investigation revealed significant shortcomings in Drax's data governance and reporting accuracy. Of particular concern was the misreporting of data regarding the types of forestry products and the proportion of sawlogs sourced from its Canadian operations-issues that were also highlighted in the 2022 BBC Panorama investigation. As a major player in the biomass energy sector, Drax's inaccuracies have had a considerable impact on Ofgem's ability to assess the sustainability and environmental footprint of biomass energy. In response, Drax has agreed to pay £25 million into Ofgem's Voluntary Redress Fund and will commission an independent external audit of profiling data from its Canadian and other international supply chains. These issues reflect a failure of oversight that should have been addressed at the board level. The Chair of the Board, as the company's highest-ranking officer, holds ultimate responsibility for ensuring robust governance structures. It is incumbent upon the Chair to implement effective strategies and ensure their execution to uphold the company's reporting standards at the required level.

1f. Re-elect Jack B. Moore - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Chair of the Compensation Committee. It is considered that the Chair of the Remuneration Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation, there are concerns with the company's executive compensation.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters.

Based on PIRC's overall assessment of the company's transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Red, indicating that it falls significantly short of PIRC's expectations. In particular, the company has failed to disclose intermediate emissions targets. As such, it is recommended to oppose the re-election of the chair of the board.

4. Amend Existing Omnibus Plan

It is proposed to amend the Occidental Petroleum Corporation 2015 Long-Term Incentive Plan. The Amended LTIP would increase the number of shares of Occidental's common stock that may be issued under the LTIP by 55,000,000 shares, extend the term for an additional ten years, and make administrative and technical updates. There are concerns with the Plan as it has various elements bundled together, and although parts of it can benefit the majority of employees, it can still be used as a vehicle for potentially excessive executive payments. As performance conditions may be attached to awards at the Compensation Committee's discretion, there are concerns that the Committee will have considerable flexibility in the payout of discretionary awards and as a result awards may not be subject to robust enough performance targets, and be insufficiently challenging. In addition, maximum award limits are excessive.

5.. Amend Articles: Limit Liability of Officers as Permitted by Law

It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Leidos Holdings Inc, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.

While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

3. Approve Remuneration Policy

The LTIP scheme use of non-financial performance metrics as a means of assessing individual performance. The use of non-financial conditions enables the policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole as well as the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Maximum potential awards for both the Annual Bonus and LTIP are clearly stated. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to at least 600% of salary, over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder. The Annual Bonus is deferred. Claw-back provisions are attached to the annual bonus. The deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus is in line with best practice as half of the bonus is deferred in shares over at least two years. The performance period for the LTIP is less than five years and is therefore not considered sufficiently long-term. However, recipients of the award are required to hold their vested shares for at least a further two years.

Authority to allot shares and grant rights to subscribe for or to convert any security into ordinary shares in the Company up to an aggregate nominal amount of USD 1,780,490,250, representing approximately 20% of the Company's issued ordinary share capital, such authority to be exercised in connection with the issue of CCSs. CCSs are debt securities which convert into ordinary shares in certain prescribed circumstances. They benefit from a specific regulatory capital treatment under European Union legislation. This authority is in addition to resolution 8 and will expire at next AGM. The Company explains that this resolution is a recurring resolution at its AGM and will be used to comply or maintain compliance with regulatory capital requirements or targets applicable to the Group. The terms of HSBC's existing CCSs have received regulatory approval from the Prudential Regulation Authority (PRA). The dilution involved for those shareholders not able to subscribe may significantly decrease their interest in the Bank. Dis-applying pre-emption rights may result in excessive dilution.

The use of CCSs are not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. CCSs are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that they may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentives equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Based on these concerns, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

04. Say on Climate

The board is seeking approval of the company's climate action plan.

Governance

The climate policy appears to be adequately linked to the governance of the company overall. The chair is indicated as being responsible for oversight of the climate strategy and members of the senior management have accrued significant experience in climate-related issues within the sector of the company.

There is adequate experience and knowledge of climate change and decarbonisation on the board of directors, including at least one non-executive director with significant experience of decarbonisation measures from within the core sector of operations of the company.

There is evidence of adequate training and learning on the Board and senior management of climate-related issues.

The company has not pledged to review or end membership of trade associations or industry environmental lobbying groups, where these pursue goals or advertise actions contrary to the company's climate strategy, which appears inconsistent with its goals and an obstacle to its effectiveness.

Disclosure

The company climate strategy for the overall required energy transition includes a defined timeline, by which progress in emission reductions can be measured.

The company's targets are in line with a plan to limit global warming to 1.5 degrees when compared to pre-industrial levels. This is considered to be best practice, and represents one of the more resilient scenarios.

The company has committed to being carbon neutral by 2050 and includes scopes 1, 2 and 3 emission reductions in this commitment. The company strategy appears to include an actual reduction of carbon emissions rather than having a heavy reliance on offsetting.

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. 9. Authorise Share Repurchase

The Share Buyback authority is limited to 10% of the company's share capital, but it exceeds the 18-month duration. While the percentage limit is within acceptable bounds, the extended time frame raises concerns about long-term shareholder value and potential market impact. This extended period could lead to excessive buybacks beyond the intended scope, which is not in line with standard practices. It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration report of Management board. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance.

11. Approve Remuneration Policy

It is proposed to approve the remuneration policy with a binding vote. Variable remuneration appears to be consistently capped, although the pay-out may exceed 200% of the fixed remuneration for the highest paid director. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. Nevertheless, opposition is recommended based on potential excessive variable remuneration and absence of quantified targets.

13. Amend Articles: Virtual Annual General Meetings until 2027

It is proposed to amend the articles in order to allow virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Non-Executive Chair of the Board.

The Chair is not considered to be independent as the director was previously employed by the Company as President and CEO. Mr. Russell is also not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.

BERKSHIRE HATHAWAY INC. AGM - 03-05-2025

2.. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Environmental Activities

Proponent Shareholder: National Legal and Policy Center

Proponent's argument: The National Legal and Policy Center requests that Berkshire Hathaway Inc. begin publishing an annual report from 2025 detailing the costs and measurable benefits of Berkshire Hathaway Energy's (BHE) voluntary environmental initiatives specifically those that exceed legal requirements. The proponent argues that shareholders lack transparency regarding the actual impact of BHE's climate related activities, which aim to reach net-zero emissions by 2050. Although BHE invests significantly in renewable energy and non-carbon assets, much of this activity is voluntary and driven by frameworks like the Paris Agreement and the IPCC, which the proponent views as lacking scientific legitimacy. The proposal questions the real world impact of such initiatives on global climate trends, particularly in the context of rising emissions worldwide and the construction of new coal plants in countries like China. The proponent asserts that existing Berkshire reporting fails to clarify whether these green initiatives result in concrete benefits for shareholders, public health, or the environment. It suggests current disclosures may constitute "greenwashing" and urges the company to quantify and justify the value of its voluntary environmental spending.

Company's Response : The Board unanimously recommends voting against the proposal, asserting that the requested report is neither necessary nor in shareholders' best interests. It argues that BHE already provides comprehensive reporting on its environmental and financial performance, including emissions disclosures and regular filings with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission. Additionally, BHE's regulated utility subsidiaries are overseen by state public utility commissions, which assess the prudence of investments and ensure affordability and reliability of service. For example, MidAmerican Energy's electricity rates are substantially below the national average. The Board contends that current disclosures are sufficient for shareholder and regulatory scrutiny, and that the additional reporting would be redundant and of limited value. It views the proposal's critique of BHE's emissions and renewable energy strategy as unfounded, given the regulatory context and already extensive transparency.

PIRC analysis: The proposal appears to function as a spoiler resolution designed to cast doubt on Berkshire Hathaway Energy's voluntary climate related investments and undermine future shareholder efforts to strengthen the company's climate alignment and transparency. While framed as a call for cost-benefit clarity, the resolution implicitly questions the scientific basis and legitimacy of global decarbonisation frameworks such as the Paris Agreement and the IPCC, and characterises voluntary environmental initiatives as unnecessary and ideologically driven. Rather than promoting transparency around climate related financial risk and opportunity, the resolution seeks to delegitimise the company's stated net-zero ambition and potentially disincentivise further climate action. It reframes decarbonisation as a politically motivated burden rather than a strategic and reputational imperative, and offers no constructive alternative for assessing long-term environmental or shareholder value. As such, the resolution risks discouraging climate leadership while failing to ensure the accountability or oversight it claims to seek. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

4.. Shareholder Resolution: Civil Rights and Non-Discrimination Report

Proponent Shareholder: American Conservative Values ETF

Proponent's argument: The proponent requests that Berkshire Hathaway conduct and publish a civil rights and non-discrimination report within the next year. The report should evaluate how the company's policies and practices impact employees and prospective employees across various identity factors including race, religion (including beliefs), sex, national origin, and political views. The proponent argues that while diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) initiatives are often framed positively, they can suppress viewpoint diversity and lead to partiality and ideological conformity. Citing the 2024 Viewpoint Diversity Score Business Index, the proposal accuses Berkshire of promoting divisive concepts like unconscious bias and critical race theory. It references polling showing that employees fear expressing religious or political views in the workplace or online. The resolution also highlights legal and reputational risks following recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions and legal challenges to race-based DEI practices. The proponent suggests that DEI efforts may no longer be legally or socially tenable and that Berkshire must evaluate its risk exposure and clarify its position. The aim is to ensure that freedom of expression and viewpoint diversity are respected across the company, in alignment with American constitutional and market principles.

Company's Response: The Board of Directors recommends a vote against this proposal, asserting that Berkshire Hathaway already complies with all applicable laws related to non-discrimination and civil rights. The company notes that its Code of Business Conduct and Ethics governs the ethical and legal standards of its directors, officers, and employees, and provides channels for reporting any violations. The Board disputes the claim that the company maintains a resource library promoting concepts such as unconscious bias or social injustice, as alleged by the proponent. Berkshire asserts that it operates on a foundational principle: follow the law and do the right thing. The Audit Committee is tasked with monitoring the company's risk exposures, including social risks. Given this existing framework, the Board considers the proposed evaluation and civil rights report unnecessary, both in substance and cost. It does not view the exercise as providing material value to shareholders and believes the proposal misrepresents the company's actual practices.

PIRC analysis: The potential benefits of workplace diversity lie in broadening the perspectives that inform decision making, fostering inclusive and innovative work environments, and strengthening a company's ability to serve diverse customer bases, supply chains, and communities. Transparency around employee demographics and inclusive practices enables shareholders to assess how well a company is positioning itself to attract, retain, and engage talent in a competitive global environment. While civil rights and non-discrimination reporting can support these aims when framed constructively, this proposal appears to originate from a politically motivated source with the intent of undermining broader diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) efforts. The resolution emphasises ideological and political viewpoint discrimination in a manner that misrepresents DEI as inherently exclusionary, and focuses narrowly on speculative short-term risks legal, reputational, and financial while disregarding the long-term value creation that inclusive practices can support. It positions itself as a corrective to "divisive" DEI policies but instead risks chilling legitimate corporate diversity initiatives. The proposal's ideological framing and selective risk assessment suggest that it is a spoiler resolution, aimed more at pushing a specific political agenda than enhancing shareholder value or corporate governance. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

5.. Shareholder Resolution: Racial Discrimination Audit

Proponent Shareholder: National Center for Public Policy Research

Proponent's argument: The proponent requests that Berkshire Hathaway's Board of Directors oversee an independent racial discrimination audit to evaluate legal and reputational risks stemming from subsidiaries' race-based programs. Citing recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions-including Students for Fair Admissions v. Harvard and Muldrow v. City of St. Louis-the resolution argues that corporate DEI initiatives may now fall afoul of updated legal interpretations concerning race-based employment and supplier diversity practices. It raises concerns about subsidiaries such as GEICO, Shaw Industries, and Fruit of the Loom, which it claims operate employee resource groups and supplier diversity programs that categorise individuals by race. The resolution suggests these practices could expose the company to lawsuits and reputational harm, especially in light of growing public and legal scrutiny of DEI. It references specific lawsuits and legal actions, warning that litigation or policy shifts could result in billions of dollars in potential liabilities. Furthermore, the proposal highlights the retreat of major corporations from DEI commitments as evidence of emerging financial and legal risk. The resolution concludes that Berkshire must proactively assess its exposure to these risks through an independent audit and public disclosure.

Company's Response: The Board of Directors recommends a vote against the proposal, stating that Berkshire Hathaway already maintains rigorous compliance protocols with all applicable laws, including those related to non-discrimination. The company emphasises that it delegates policy-making authority to its subsidiaries, allowing them to tailor their approaches to the unique demands of their respective businesses. Berkshire's Audit Committee oversees the processes by which senior management evaluates and manages risk-including social and legal risks. The Board disputes the need for a separate, independent racial discrimination audit, especially one targeting specific DEI efforts at its subsidiaries. It asserts that Berkshire's long-standing decentralised model and existing ethical frameworks-such as the Code of Business Conduct and Ethics-ensure legal compliance and accountability. Given these mechanisms, the Board concludes that the requested audit would not add shareholder value and may impose unnecessary costs or create reputational risk based on misleading premises. Accordingly, shareholders are advised to vote against the proposal.

PIRC analysis: Transparent and thorough disclosure on workplace diversity practices and racial equity initiatives is essential for enabling shareholders to evaluate a company's ability to foster an inclusive workplace, attract diverse talent, and mitigate reputational and legal risks associated with discrimination. Numerous studies have highlighted how systemic barriers based on race continue to affect access to economic opportunity, workplace advancement, and representation across sectors. While the proposal frames itself as a legal risk assessment, it reflects a politically motivated attempt to challenge established DEI efforts and undermine progress on racial inclusion. It adopts an adversarial tone, relying on selectively presented legal cases and cultural commentary to argue that DEI is an inherently discriminatory view that contradicts evolving norms in corporate governance and responsible business conduct. Berkshire Hathaway's decentralised model allows subsidiaries to respond to the needs of their specific workforces, and oversight mechanisms already exist to manage legal compliance and ethical standards. This resolution appears designed not to enhance accountability but to deter ongoing efforts toward racial equity within subsidiaries.

It is recommended that Camden vote to oppose.

4. Amend Articles: Exculpation of Certain Officers as Permitted by Delaware

It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of Carvana Co, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.

While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers. On balance, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. 4.. Shareholder Resolution: Corporate Financial Sustainability

Proponent's argument: The National Center for Public Policy Research urges Bristol Myers Squibb (BMS) to establish a Board level committee on corporate financial sustainability. The resolution contends that the company's positions, advocacy, partnerships, and charitable giving on contentious social and political matters risk alienating customers and damaging shareholder value. The proponent raises concern over BMS's 100% rating on the Human Rights Campaign's Corporate Equality Index, arguing that compliance requires engagement in partisan social issues. Citing sources like the 1792 Exchange, the resolution claims BMS exhibits ideological bias that may discriminate against religious viewpoints and partners. The proposal further critiques BMS's association with the Trevor Project, asserting that support for gender affirming care might entail reputational and financial risks. The supporting statement references market value declines at Bud Light, Target, and Disney following politically divisive stances, arguing that BMS could similarly experience negative financial consequences. To mitigate these risks, the proponent calls for the formation of a new committee to oversee and publicly report on the company's involvement in politically sensitive issues and their financial implications. The resolution stresses that a dedicated committee and public reporting could strengthen shareholder oversight and safeguard long-term value.

Company's Response : The Board of Directors unanimously recommends voting against the proposal, asserting it is unnecessary, duplicative, and not in shareholders' best interests. The Board states that it already maintains strong corporate governance structures that thoroughly address financial sustainability and risk oversight. Oversight of policy positions, advocacy, and partnerships is distributed across standing committees, notably the Audit Committee and the Committee on Directors and Corporate Governance, both of which monitor issues impacting reputation, sustainability, and risk. The Board argues that forming a new committee would only replicate existing responsibilities, resulting in inefficiencies without added value. Additionally, BMS regularly publishes comprehensive disclosures, including its annual Sustainability and Social Impact Report and information about its political engagement and governance policies, all of which are publicly accessible. These documents reflect the Company's ongoing evaluation of potential risks tied to its advocacy and partnerships. According to the Board, the requested additional report would divert resources without offering material new information to shareholders. The Board emphasises that its current governance model allows it to remain focused on long-term growth, shareholder value, and effective operational execution. As such, the proposal is considered both redundant and misaligned with the Company's strategic priorities.

PIRC analysis: Disclosure surrounding the company approved charities allows shareholders to assess corporate values and philanthropic strategy within the broader framework of long-term value creation and stakeholder engagement. Enhanced transparency that more explicitly links charitable giving and public policy engagement with financial sustainability would generally be considered beneficial for shareholders. However, the resolution rests on a disputable premise that donations to certain charities are directly responsible for movements in company stock prices an assertion that oversimplifies complex market dynamics and lacks robust analytical grounding. Furthermore, the proposal appears to be rooted in the intention to promote specific ideological perspectives within the company's charitable activity. While shareholders may hold differing views on the suitability of particular organisations, the presence of donations to charities some may oppose does not necessitate equal representation of all viewpoints. Philanthropic strategies are shaped by a range of business considerations, including relevance to the company's mission, community needs, and long-term stakeholder relationships. Imposing political or viewpoint balancing requirements on charitable contributions could undermine board discretion and operational flexibility. Opposition is recommended.

5.. Shareholder Resolution: Cease DEI Efforts

Proponent Shareholder: National Center for Public Policy Research

Proponent's argument: The proponent calls for Bristol Myers Squibb (BMS) to consider abolishing its Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) programs, policies, department, and goals, citing legal and financial risks. The proposal references the U.S. Supreme Court's SFFA v. Harvard and Muldrow v. City of St. Louis decisions, arguing that these rulings increase the legal scrutiny and potential liability of corporate DEI efforts under equal protection and anti-discrimination laws. The resolution warns that DEI-related initiatives could expose the Company to lawsuits, breach fiduciary duties, and create costly liabilities. It cites recent high-profile discrimination lawsuits and the rollback of DEI initiatives at other major companies-including Alphabet, Meta, Microsoft, and Boeing-as evidence of a growing trend and legal concern. The proposal identifies BMS's current DEI components, including race-based employee resource groups, workforce representation goals, and supplier diversity programs, as areas of risk. The proponent argues that continuation of such efforts, in light of shifting legal precedent and corporate trends, poses significant financial exposure. It concludes that abolishing DEI efforts would protect shareholder value and mitigate reputational and legal risk.

Company's Response: Bristol Myers Squibb's Board unanimously recommends a vote against the proposal, asserting it is not in the best interests of the Company or its shareholders. The Company emphasises its commitment to inclusion, equal opportunity, and legal compliance across all jurisdictions in which it operates. It strongly rejects the characterisation of its DEI policies as discriminatory, affirming that its programs are merit-based and promote a culture of fairness, dignity, and collaboration. BMS argues that an inclusive workforce supports strategic priorities, especially in delivering transformative medicines to diverse patient populations and improving access to clinical trials across demographic groups. The Board underscores that the Company's DEI initiatives are aligned with shareholder value and patient outcomes and are regularly reviewed for compliance with all applicable laws. The proposal's assumptions are refuted as both inaccurate and potentially harmful, as its implementation could hinder existing compliance frameworks and limit management's ability to maintain an inclusive and respectful workplace. The Board concludes that dismantling these programs would negatively impact BMS's strategic objectives, legal responsibilities, and operational effectiveness.

PIRC analysis: The resolution calls for the Company to consider ending its DEI programs, citing legal and financial risks. While legal developments such as SFFA v. Harvard and Muldrow v. City of St. Louis have prompted increased scrutiny of DEI practices, corporate programs that comply with non-discrimination laws remain both legal and strategically important. Effective DEI efforts can enhance decision-making, support talent retention, and help companies respond to the needs of diverse stakeholders. The proposal appears to adopt a narrow, politically driven interpretation of risk, with limited attention to long-term value considerations. The Company's existing DEI disclosures provide transparency and demonstrate alignment with its business goals. Opposition is recommended.

1f.. Re-Elect Thomas W. Hofmann - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee, and member of the Compensation Committee.

Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. The director chairs a committee which is not fully independent which does not meet Camden guidelines. It is considered that both the Audit Committee and Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

The proposed auditor is not independent, and the chair of the Audit Committee holds accountability for this. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure. The proposed auditor is not independent, and the chair of the Audit Committee holds accountability for this.

4.. Amend 2016 Omnibus Incentive Compensation Plan

It is proposed to extend the Original 2016 Plan, which is set to expire in 2026, and introduce several key amendments. These include an increase of 2,000,000 shares for a total of 3,079,000 shares available for issuance, and raising the maximum number of shares for incentive stock options to 2,000,000. The plan's term will be extended to May 6, 2035. The fungible share ratio will be reduced from 2.5:1 to 2.0:1, and the annual individual award limits will remain at 500,000 shares for equity awards and USD 7,500,000 for cash-based awards. Additionally, the non-employee director compensation limit will be set at USD 800,000.

There are concerns with the Plan as it has various elements bundled together, and although parts of it can benefit the majority of employees, it can still be used as a vehicle for potentially excessive executive payments. As performance conditions may be attached to awards at the Compensation Committee's discretion, there are concerns that the Committee will have considerable flexibility in the payout of discretionary awards and as a result awards may not be subject to robust enough performance targets, and be insufficiently challenging. In addition, maximum award limits are excessive.

1.03. Elect Russell Girling - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Board.

Based on PIRC's overall assessment of transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Black, indicating that it falls short on one of PIRC's most basic expectations. In particular, the company has failed to disclose its emissions across scopes 1, 2 and 3. As such, it is recommended that Camden oppose the re-election of the chair of the board.

1.07. Elect Lorraine Mitchelmore - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director, chair of the Environment, Health, Safety and Sustainable Development Committee and member of the Audit Committee

During the year under review, the company has been fined for environmental mismanagement, and while the full impact of this decision is yet to be ascertained, there are concerns over the company's environmental risk management processes. Unmanaged environmental risks could lead to serious physical, reputational or legal consequences for the company as well as harm to the broader community. Owing to the apparent failure of Board-level environmental oversight, opposition is recommended to oppose the Chair of the Sustainability Committee.

Furthermore, based on PIRC's overall assessment of transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Black, indicating that it falls short on one of PIRC's most basic expectations. In particular, the company has failed to disclose its emissions across scopes 1, 2 and 3. As such, it is recommended that Camden oppose the chair of the sustainability committee.

4. Shareholder Resolution: Report on Impact of Suncor Energy's Net Zero by 2050 Pledge

Proponent's argument: Shareholders request that Suncor Energy Inc. commission and issue a report to itemize the impacts and quantify the costs of its commitment to achieve Net Zero by 2050. Shareholders argue the following: "We are calling on Suncor Energy to commission a report that would provide data and analysis on the impacts and costs of Suncor's commitment to achieving Net Zero carbon emissions by the year 2050. This should address how the Net Zero commitment will affect revenue projections, growth plans, costs, profit, and share price. On the global level, a commitment to Net Zero by 2050 would mean massive declines in the use of coal, oil and natural gas. Yet, demand is forecast to go up and there are no signs of its peaking anytime soon. On the national level, commitment to Net Zero by 2050 has the potential to disrupt Canada's energy security, food security, national security and economic security, but in the enthusiasm for the concept, its costs are not explained to Canadians. And on the company level, Net Zero by 2050 would make it significantly more difficult for Suncor to do what it does best – extract oil and natural gas – resulting in lower production, lower revenue, less profitability, and thus reduced returns for shareholders. The commitment to Net Zero by 2050 has profound implications for share value. Shareholders have a right to know what those implications are. Suncor owes a duty of care to shareholders to explain the situation thoroughly, and a comprehensive report is the best way to do that."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The board argues the following: "As one of Canada's largest integrated energy companies, Suncor has an opportunity to support shared goals on climate, economic prosperity, and energy security. Suncor has long recognized carbon as a principal risk to our business. Climate risks and opportunities are deeply embedded into strategy development, scenario planning, business planning, project execution, risk oversight, executive compensation, disclosure, skills development, and external engagement. Our strategy to deliver shareholder value reflects these views and details on our plans to deliver on those objectives will be disclosed as they progress. [...] Our strategy is clear, concise and focused. We are committed to ensuring a profitable, high-performing business today, so that we can have a profitable, high-performing, and sustainable business in the future. We will continue to work to deliver on our strategy, communicate our performance, and realize these results."

PIRC analysis: The requested disclosure on the congruency of corporate expenditure with net zero ambitions appears to be a spoiler resolution to prevent other shareholders from filing resolutions regarding the company's alignment with net zero, or emission reduction targets, and focuses on executive behaviour with the clear intent to ensure that views against what the filers describe as "risky and costly political-schedule decarbonization" are represented within the company's political activities, as opposed to promoting accountability around the potential benefits of decarbonization and requesting transparency over the financial impact from non-traditionally financial issues, particularly the climate emergency, or avoid any suspicion and any damage that may cause to the company's reputation, or that the company may adopt a conduct different from what it has committed to. Opposition is recommended.

1c.. Elect Linda Hefner Filler - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nominating and Governance Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Nominating and Governance Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall. Additionally, the Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and there are concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice. [At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: AEA. Based on this rating, there are some concerns with the company's remuneration practices.

Furthermore, the company has not used any climate-related metrics in determining bonuses paid during the year. As such it is recommended that Camden oppose the remuneration report.

3.. Appoint the Auditors

Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 0.00% of audit fees during the year under review and 1.07% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

However, the company's auditor does not disclose considering climate and it is not clear whether they assessed climate-related risks associated with a 1.5C scenario. As such it is recommended to oppose the re-appointment of the auditor.

CF INDUSTRIES HOLDINGS INC. AGM - 06-05-2025

1b.. Elect Robert C. Arzbaeher - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee and Chair of the Sustainability Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that these Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the Chair.

The Chair of the Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered to be adequate in order to minimize material risks linked to sustainability.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

1g.. Elect Stephen J. Hagge - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Member of the Compensation Committee and Nomination Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising their oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.

Additionally, in terms of best practice, it is considered that the Compensation Committee and Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole. The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

1i.. Elect Anne P. Noonan - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Nomination Committee and Member of the Compensation Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that these committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the Chair. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

PIRC issue:

The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Nomination Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall.

1h.. Elect Michael T. Speetzen - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, chair of the Audit and Finance Committee. At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure. The proposed auditor is not independent, and the chair of the Audit Committee holds accountability for this.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

PIRC issue: It is not clear the Audit and Finance Committee oversees the whistle-blowing hotline. This may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalated which may mean the issue is concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

INTEL CORPORATION AGM - 06-05-2025

1e.. Elect Barbara Novick - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: Blackrock. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

It is recommended that Hounslow oppose.

PIRC issue: The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall. Furthermore, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of Corporate Governance and Nominating committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

1k.. Elect Frank D. Yearly - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years and due to a relationship with the Company which is considered material: Mr Yearly is also on the Board of Mobileye Group, a subsidiary of the Company. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. 4.. Amend Existing Long Term Incentive Plan

The board seeks approval to amend the 2006 Equity Incentive Plan to add 150 million shares to the share reserve, representing approximately 3.4% of the Company's outstanding shares of common stock. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that will vest over a three-year period. Performance targets have been quantified at this time, which is above market practice. However, the potential total reward raises excessiveness concerns (together with other incentives) and the vesting period of three years is considered to be short term. Opposition is recommended.

6.. Shareholder Resolution: Charitable Giving

Proponent Shareholder: American Family Association

Proponent's argument: The proponent, the American Family Association, represented by Bowyer Research Inc., requests that Intel produce an annual report evaluating how its charitable contributions may impact risks related to discrimination based on individuals' speech or religious beliefs. The proposal argues that while corporations frequently support humanitarian causes, some organisations they fund may undermine core freedoms, such as freedom of speech and religion. Specifically, it points to Intel's corporate partnership with the Human Rights Campaign (HRC), an organisation the proponent claims promotes censorship of dissenting views, supports controversial healthcare mandates, and lobbies for policies allegedly threatening to religious liberty. The proponent contends that Intel's charitable giving, including support for the HRC, contradicts its own stated goals on inclusion and diversity, particularly with respect to ideological and religious pluralism. The resolution cites other companies that have reevaluated their giving policies and suggests that Intel follow suit to better align with shareholder values, protect its brand reputation, and ensure its social impact does not alienate stakeholders with diverse viewpoints.

Company's Response : Intel's Board recommends voting against the proposal, stating that the requested report is unnecessary given the company's existing robust oversight, transparency, and governance frameworks. Intel outlines that its charitable giving focuses on education and community causes, including STEM initiatives, disaster response, and civic engagement. These donations are already publicly disclosed in Intel's Corporate Responsibility Report, on its foundation website, and through legally mandated filings. The company further notes that all grantees must comply with Intel's non-discrimination policy and that charitable relationships are continuously monitored to ensure alignment with corporate values and legal obligations. Intel's governance mechanisms, including board oversight, are described as sufficient to address any potential risks arising from charitable contributions. The company strongly refutes the implication that its giving practices promote discrimination and reiterates its commitment to diversity, inclusion, and employee freedom of expression. The Board argues the proposal is ideologically motivated, reflects a narrow political agenda, and has been previously rejected by shareholders. It maintains that current disclosure and risk assessment practices render the proposal redundant and not in shareholders' best interests.

PIRC analysis: Disclosure of company-supported charitable contributions helps shareholders assess alignment with the company's long-term interests, including relationships with diverse stakeholders. However, this proposal centers on ideological and political viewpoints, seeking to scrutinise Intel's charitable giving based on whether it sufficiently reflects certain political or religious perspectives. The request appears to rest on a flawed premise: that corporate donations must represent all ideological positions equally. Corporate philanthropy is not obligated to offer ideological balance, particularly when donations are made to legally compliant organisations that align with the company's social impact goals. Intel already discloses detailed information on its charitable giving, and its oversight mechanisms include compliance with its non-discrimination policies. Given the existing governance processes and transparency in place, and the proposal's intent to influence charitable decisions based on specific ideological criteria, support is not warranted.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

OMNICOM GROUP INC AGM - 06-05-2025*1a.. Elect John D. Wren - Chair & Chief Executive*

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

At the company, there is no external whistle-blowing hotline. This suggests that such concerns that should be raised by a whistle-blower are dealt with internally, which may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalating to a level where the higher was the level of the misconduct, the more likely is the issue to be concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure. The proposed auditor is not independent, and the chair of the Audit Committee holds accountability for this.

1.5. Elect John S. Marr Jr - Chair (Executive)

Executive Chair. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that the Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Holding an executive position is incompatible with this.

As there is no formal Sustainability Committee, the Chair of the Board is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

It is proposed to amend the articles in order to introduce a capital range of authorised conditional share capital, and disapply pre-emptive rights for a portion of this range. Under the revised Swiss corporate law, shareholders may authorise the Board of Directors to increase or reduce the authorised share capital within a certain range, for a period of up to five years. The board has proposed a capital range of EUR 2,922,440.26 and EUR 2,391,087.50, to last for five years following the date of the upcoming meeting. The restriction of pre-emption rights does not exceed 10% of share capital. However, the duration of the authority exceeds 12 months. ALCON AG AGM - 06-05-2025

1. Approval of the operating and financial review of Alcon Inc., the annual financial statements of Alcon Inc. and the consolidated financial statements for 2024

The financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified. However, there are some concerns surrounding the board-level governance of sustainability issues, policies and practice. As such, it is considered that the annual report and the financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. These concerns should have been addressed in the financial statements submitted to shareholders, but the financial statements fail to address these concerns and it is recommended that Camden oppose this resolution

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 99.7, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 0.0,

4. Consultative vote on the 2024 Report on Non-Financial Matters

The non-financial statements were made available sufficiently before the meeting and include the auditor's independent verification report. However, there are serious concerns surrounding the sustainability policies and practice at the company and the lack of board level governance structure for sustainability issues. Therefore, it is considered that the non-financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks. As such it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 90.7, Abstain: 1.3, Oppose/Withhold: 7.9,

5.1. Consultative vote on the 2024 Compensation Report

It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 86.9, Abstain: 0.6, Oppose/Withhold: 12.4,

5.3. Binding vote on the maximum aggregate amount of compensation of the Executive Committee for the following financial year, i.e. 2026

It is proposed to approve the prospective remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the total remuneration cap. It is proposed to approve the prospective remuneration for members of the Executive Management of the Company, which means that the proposed amount will not be the actual amount to be paid, but only the total remuneration cap. The voting outcome of this resolution will be binding for the Company.

It is proposed to fix the remuneration of members of the Executive Committee until next AGM at CHF 43,000,000. This proposal includes fixed and variable remuneration components.

There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not disclosed quantified targets for performance criteria for its variable remuneration component, which may lead to overpayment against underperformance. On balance, opposition is recommended based on excessiveness concerns.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 91.1, Abstain: 1.0, Oppose/Withhold: 7.9,

6.1. Elect F. Michael Ball - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered to be independent as he was previously employed by the Company as CEO. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Oppose vote is therefore recommended. Member of the Nominations Committee. It is considered that the Nominations Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. Regardless of the independent representation on the Board as a whole, opposition is recommended.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 95.3, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 4.6,

6.6. Elect Keith Grossman - Senior Independent Director

Non-Executive Director. Chair of the Governance and Nomination Committee. The Chair of this committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and the Company's sustainability policies and practice are not considered adequate to minimise the material risks linked to sustainability, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 94.2, Abstain: 0.6, Oppose/Withhold: 5.3,

6.7. Elect Scott Maw - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director.

Chair of the Audit Committee. The director chairs a committee which is not fully independent which does not meet Camden guidelines.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 99.5, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 0.4,

9. Re-appoint the Auditors

PwC proposed. Non-audit fees represented 3.00% of audit fees during the year under review and 2.94% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

The current auditor has been in place for more than five years and there are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 98.6, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 1.2,

10. Transact Any Other Business

It is proposed to instruct the independent proxy to approve all Board proposals that may be included on the agenda, up until the time of the meeting. No proposals have been set forth at this time. Opposition is recommended.

CBOE GLOBAL MARKETS INC AGM - 06-05-2025

1a.. Elect William M. Farrow III - Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board, member of the Audit Committee. As the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is not up for election, the Chair of the Board is considered accountable for the Company's sustainability programme. As such, given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 98.4, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 1.4,

1c.. Elect Edward J. Fitzpatrick - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Compensation Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1k.. Elect Roderick A. Palmore - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Nominating and Governance Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nominating and Governance Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Opposition is recommended.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 93.2, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 6.6,

11.. Elect James E. Parisi - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee. The proposed auditor is not independent, and the chair of the Audit Committee holds accountability for this.

PIRC issue: At the company, it is not clear that the Audit Committee does not oversee the whistle-blowing hotline. This may increase the risk of such issues not being followed up or escalated which may mean the issue is concealed. On this basis, and on the potential unforeseeable consequences for the company, opposition is recommended to the re-election of the chair of the audit committee, who is considered to be accountable for the concerns with the whistle-blowing reporting structure.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 99.3, Abstain: 0.2, Oppose/Withhold: 0.5,

2. Advisory Vote on Executive Compensation

The Company has submitted a proposal for shareholder ratification of its executive compensation policy and practices. The voting outcome for this resolution reflects the balance of opinion on the adequacy of disclosure, the balance of performance and reward and the terms of executive employment. The compensation rating is: ACB. Based on this rating, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 93.5, Abstain: 0.7, Oppose/Withhold: 5.9,

3. Appoint the Auditors

KPMG proposed. Non-audit fees represented 2.23% of audit fees during the year under review and 1.62% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor.

The current auditor has been in place for more than five years and there are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 99.3, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 0.3,

4. Amend Existing Long Term Incentive Plan

The Board proposes the amendment of an existing long-term incentive plan, seeking approval to, amongst other things, increase the share reserve by 3,000,000 shares and increases the maximum amount that may be paid to any participant in any calendar year under cash-based awards from $5,000,000 to $15,000,000. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that will vest over a three-year period. Performance targets have been quantified at this time, which is above market practice. However, the potential total reward raises excessiveness concerns (together with other incentives) and the vesting period of three years is considered to be short term. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

1b. Re-Elect William H. Cary - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee.

Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that audit committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

The director chairs a committee which is not fully independent which does not meet Camden guidelines.

The proposed auditor is not independent, and the Chair of the Audit Committee holds accountability for this.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1c. Re-Elect Mayree C. Clark - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, member of the Audit Committee and member of the Compensation, Nominating, and Governance Committee.

Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that both these committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1d. Re-Elect Kim S. Fennebresque - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Compensation, Nominating, and Governance Committee.

Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that this committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. The director chairs a committee which is not fully independent which does not meet Camden guidelines.

The Chair of the Compensation, Nominating, and Governance Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation, and there are concerns with the company's executive compensation.

The ratio of CEO, or the highest paid executive officer, to employee pay of the company is greater than 150:1, this does not meet Camden's guidelines.

The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Compensation, Nominating, and Governance Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1g. Re-Elect Marjorie Magner - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and member of the Compensation, Nominating, and Governance Committee.

Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that this committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

5.. Amend Existing Long Term Incentive Plan

The Board proposes the approval of a new equity-based Hubbell Incorporated Incentive Award Plan. Under the plan, participants will be allotted shares that will vest over a three-year period. Performance targets have been quantified at this time, which is above market practice. However, the potential total reward raises excessiveness concerns (together with other incentives) and the vesting period of three years is considered to be short term. Changes include:

Number of shares of Hubbell Common Stock available for issuance under the plan was increased by 620,000 shares to be, as of March 7, 2025, an aggregate of 1,749,789 shares available for issuance;

Annual per person limitation on shares (or dollar value) subject to employee awards was eliminated;

Independent directors maximum aggregate annual grant date fair value limit was increased from $500,000 to $1,000,000;

"Change in Control" and "Continuous Service" definitions were amended to provide that a change in the majority of the Board (which is a higher threshold than the prior threshold of 1/3) is required to trigger a Change in Control.

Given the concerns around policy excessiveness, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

1g.. Elect Phebe N. Novakovic - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal. 1B.. Re-elect Robert M. Blue - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

Based on PIRC's overall assessment of the company's transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Red, indicating that it falls significantly short of PIRC's expectations. In particular, the company has failed to set emissions targets covering all relevant emissions scopes. The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

Non-Executive Director and member of the Audit Committee and Chair of the Nominating, Governance and Sustainability Committee. Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that the Audit and Nominating Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

Based on PIRC's overall assessment of the company's transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Red, indicating that it falls significantly short of PIRC's expectations. In particular, the company has failed to set emissions targets covering all relevant emissions scopes.

4.. Shareholder Resolution: Request to Consider Eliminating Non-Carbon Emitting Generation Goals in Executive Pay Incentives

Proponent's argument: National Legal and Policy Center request the Board of Directors' Compensation and Talent Development Committee to revisit its incentive guidelines for executive pay, to re-emphasize fiduciary goals and consider eliminating NCGC-based incentives from compensation inducements. Shareholders argue the following: "Despite evidence that climate alarmism and associated renewable energy policies are unwarranted, Dominion Energy, Inc.'s executive pay program incorporates unnecessary incentives to attain "non-carbon emitting generation capacity" goals (NCGC): Under the Company's 2023 60% performance grant in its long-term incentive program, named executive officers received performance grants that included a "10% weighting" for NCGC. The NCGC performance metric "measures the company's wind, solar, nuclear and conventional hydro generation capacity as a percentage of its total generation capacity."

Company's response: The board recommended a vote against this proposal. The Board argues the following: "The use of a NCGC performance metric is a component of this strategy, encouraging officers to focus on the company's long-term strategic plan, which includes delivering increasingly clean energy while maintaining reliability and affordability for customers. [...]The Board of Directors believe that the NCGC performance metric is an appropriate performance metric for our executive compensation program because it supports our "all-of-the-above" approach to meeting our customers' energy needs by encouraging the development of diverse non-carbon emitting generation sources. This development process directly aligns with our mission to provide reliable, affordable and increasingly clean energy. [...] The Board considered this proposal, its fiduciary duties, the design and philosophy of the company's executive compensation program and the company's strategy. We believe that eliminating the NCGC performance metric at this time is not in the best interests of the company or its shareholders."

PIRC Recommendation: The resolution is rooted in a broader ideological dispute over climate science rather than material governance shortcomings. The proponent disputes widely accepted scientific consensus and regulatory realities that shape the utility industry. While debate over climate models is valid in policy circles, its import here is limited: the proponent does not convincingly demonstrate how the NCGC metric materially harms shareholder value or imposes unjustified costs. The resolution fails to demonstrate that the NCGC metric undermines fiduciary duty or shareholder value. Dominion's compensation structure is well-justified, legally anchored, and shareholder-supported. Removing sustainability-linked performance metrics would risk undermining strategic alignment and regulatory compliance.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report

Shareholders are being asked to approve the Company's annual report on remuneration. Disclosure of figures and policy is adequate. The aggregate limit set in relation to Directors' remuneration was not exceeded during the year. Directors' remuneration does not comprise any performance-related element, which is welcomed. It is further noted that no additional discretionary payments were made in the year. The increase in individual fees during the year under review was under 10%, which is within guidelines. Overall, the remuneration practices and the level of fees paid to the Board are considered acceptable. However, it is noted that this Resolution received significant opposition of over 10% at last year's AGM, and there has been no statement from the Company explaining how this issue was addressed with Shareholders. ASTON MARTIN LAGONDA GLOBAL HOLDINGS PLC EGM - 07-05-20251. Approval of Rule 9 Waiver

Introduction & Background: The EGM was convened following the Company's 31 March 2025 announcement of a proposed capital raise involving a direct investment by the Yew Tree Consortium and a potential sale of shares in AMR GP Holdings Limited. The investment aims to raise approximately GBP 52.5 million through a non-pre-emptive placing of new shares. Under the UK Takeover Code, any entity acquiring 30% or more of voting rights must make a mandatory offer to all shareholders. The Yew Tree Consortium's stake would rise to 33.13% post-placing, thus necessitating a Rule 9 waiver. The Panel on Takeovers and Mergers has conditionally agreed to waive this requirement, subject to independent shareholder approval, which necessitates this EGM.

Proposal: The Company seeks approval from independent shareholders for a Rule 9 waiver that will permit the Yew Tree Consortium to increase its stake in Aston Martin Lagonda Global Holdings plc to 33.13% through a GBP 52.5 million placing of 75,000,000 new shares at a premium price of 70 pence per share. This would exempt the Consortium from having to make a general offer to all shareholders under Rule 9 of the Takeover Code. This resolution is to be voted on by poll and excludes members of the Yew Tree Consortium from voting.

Rationale: The Board believes that the investment from the Yew Tree Consortium will provide significant benefits to the Company, including enhanced liquidity, a strengthened balance sheet, and additional capital to support product innovation and business transformation. The placing is structured at a 7% premium to the market price, which the Independent Directors view as a vote of confidence in the Company's strategy. Moreover, it is not underwritten, reducing associated costs. Approval of the waiver is critical, as the placing is contingent upon it; if the resolution fails, the Company will not receive the capital injection, which could impact its financial resilience amid macroeconomic uncertainties.

Recommendation: The proposed Waiver Resolution would allow the Yew Tree Consortium to increase its stake from 27.78% to 33.13% without triggering a mandatory offer to remaining shareholders, representing a clear case of creeping control. This increase in influence would occur through a non-pre-emptive placing, bypassing standard protections for minority shareholders and undermining the principle of equal treatment. The concentration of power in the hands of a single shareholder group without offering an exit opportunity to others is inappropriate and raises concerns over governance and board independence. PIRC recommends voting against this resolution.

5.. Amend Certificate of Incorporation to Reflect New Delaware Law Provisions Allowing for Officer Exculpation

It is proposed to amend the Company's Certificate of Incorporation to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation. Article Ninth of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.

While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonise corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are, however, a more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuade shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers.

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. There are concerns regarding excess as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary. The Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. 8. Resolution on the cancellation of the existing and the grant of new authorization to acquire and use treasury shares and on the exclusion of shareholders' subscription rights and rights to sell shares to the Company

Resolution 8 proposes cancelling the existing authorization and granting Mercedes Benz Group AG a new authorization, valid until May 6, 2030, to acquire and use treasury shares of up to 10 percent of the share capital. These treasury shares may be repurchased through the stock exchange, public offers, or third parties and used for purposes such as cancellation, employee share plans, share based dividends, and strategic acquisitions. The resolution also permits the exclusion of shareholders' subscription and sell rights in specific cases, within a 10 percent cap.

The Share Buyback authority is limited to 10% of the company's share capital, but it exceeds the 18-month duration. While the percentage limit is within acceptable bounds, the extended time frame raises concerns about long-term shareholder value and potential market impact. This extended period could lead to excessive buybacks beyond the intended scope, which is not in line with standard practices. Independent Non-Executive Chair of the Board.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is

1k.. Elect Daniel J. Taylor - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Nominating Committee and Member of the Audit and Human Capital and Compensation Committees. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that these committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of Nominating Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

3. Approve Remuneration Policy

For 2025, several amendments have been introduced to the Remuneration Policy, including the introduction of a new Peer Group to better reflect the structure of the business in recent years, a focus on increasing remuneration at the Company to better reflect this peer group: for the Annual Bonus the current 3.00 times base salary maximum will be held. However, the Company will increase on-target bonus from 1.00 times to 1.50 times base salary to help reach the new peer-group median level, and additionally, the cap on the Long-Term Incentives will increase from 600-800%. Performance metrics will also be adjusted in order to better reflect strategic goals at the Company. The total variable pay available to the CEO is 1100% of the fixed salary, which is deemed extremely excessive when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 200%. Half of the Annual Bonus up to 200% of the salary, and 100% of it over this level will defer to shares for a period of three years, which is within guidelines. The performance period on the Performance Share Plan (PSP) is three years, which is deemed overly short-term, however, a holding period of two-years applies post-vesting, which is welcomed. The variable pay utilises non-financial performance metrics, which is welcomed. Malus and clawback apply.

2. Approve the Remuneration Report

Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of a peer comparator group. This raises concerns over potential excessiveness of the variable incentive schemes currently in operation, as the base salary determines the overall quantum of the remuneration structure. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate

3. Approve Remuneration Policy

The LTIP scheme use non-financial performance metrics as a means of assessing individual performance. The use of non-financial conditions enables the policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole as well as the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Maximum potential awards for both the Annual Bonus and LTIP are clearly stated. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to at least 200% of salary, over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder. The Annual Bonus is deferred. Claw-back provisions are attached to the annual bonus. The deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus is in line with best practice as half of the bonus is deferred in shares over at least two years. The performance period for the LTIP is less than five years and is therefore not considered sufficiently long-term. Claw-back provisions are in place over long-term incentive plans. However, recipients of the award are required to hold their vested shares for at least a further two years, which is welcomed.

Although the aggregate limit sought is within acceptable limits, the company has made donations which are deemed to be political during the year. The Group made political donations of USD 559,000 xxx to support candidates for nomination and/or election to public office. This raises concerns about the potential donation which could be made by the Company under this authority. Furthermore the proposed resolution in the 2024 Annual General Meeting received significant opposition of 12.62% of the votes and the Company did not disclosed information as to how addressed the issue with its shareholders.

Before considering approval of buybacks (and this should come from the board, not the manager, nor a company secretary in the employ of the fund manager), we would like to see a public statement: - addressing whether any part of the discount can be explained by capitalisation of the costs (the total costs as in the Key Investor information Document - 'KID'), - setting out why the board believes that the performance of the incumbent management is not a contributory factor to the discount, and - setting out how the current fee structure might be contributing to the discount, for example some investment companies cap management fees, or reduce the manager fee the larger the fund gets, - setting out the effect of prior year buybacks to help determine the effectiveness of prior buybacks.

BARCLAYS PLC AGM - 07-05-202502. Approve the Remuneration Report

Disclosure: All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO salary is in line with the workforce, since for the year under review the CEO salary increased by 3% and the workforce salary increased by 3%. However, the CEO salary is in the upper quartile of the competitor group which raises concerns for potential excessiveness.

Balance: Total variable pay for the year under review was excessive, amounting to 250.6% (Annual Bonus: 75.6% & LTIP: 175%) of salary. The ratio of the CEO pay compared to average employee pay is not acceptable at 140:1. PIRC consider adequate a ratio of 20:1.

03. Approve Remuneration Policy

Company policy prohibits dividend accrual on unvested share options which is welcome. A welcome addition to the LTIP scheme is the use of non-financial performance metrics as a means of assessing individual performance. The use of non-financial conditions enables the policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole as well as the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Maximum potential awards for both the Annual Bonus and LTIP are clearly stated. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to at least 200% of salary, over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder. The Annual Bonus is deferred. Claw-back provisions are attached to the annual bonus. The deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus is in line with best practice as half of the bonus is deferred in shares over at least two years. The performance period for the LTIP is less than five years and is therefore not considered sufficiently long-term. Claw-back provisions are in place over long-term incentive plans. However, recipients of the award are required to hold their vested shares for at least a further two years, which is welcomed

04. Amend Existing Long Term Incentive Plan

This resolution seeks shareholder approval to amend Rule 3.6 of the LTIP rules in order to align them with the provisions of the proposed new Directors' Remuneration Policy. The existing LTIP rules, which were last approved by shareholders at the 2021 AGM, currently cap annual LTIP awards for Executive Directors at 500% of fixed pay. Under the proposed new Remuneration Policy-subject to shareholder approval-this limit would increase to a maximum of 550% of basic salary for the Chief Executive Officer and remain at 500% for the Group Finance Director. The proposed amendment to Rule 3.6 would remove the fixed 500% cap and instead allow LTIP awards up to the maximum permitted under the Directors' Remuneration Policy in force at the time. PIRC does not support these changes. The proposed amendments do not enhance alignment with shareholder interests. Furthermore, PIRC maintains that LTIPs are not a reliable mechanism for incentivising performance. These plans are insufficiently long term in nature and open to potential manipulation due to their discretionary elements.

24. Authorise Issue of Equity in Relation to the Issuance of Contingent Equity Conversion Notes

It is proposed to give the Directors the authority to allot ECNs, or shares issued upon conversion or exchange of ECNs, up to an aggregate nominal amount of £825,000,000 representing approximately 22.97% of the Company's issued ordinary share capital (excluding shares held in treasury) as at 12 March 2025. The Company explains that this resolution is a recurring resolution at its AGM and will be used to comply or maintain compliance with regulatory capital requirements or targets applicable to the Group.

The use of Contingent Convertible Securities or CoCos is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. CoCos are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that CoCos may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentives equity investors from putting more new funds in to banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. Recent events at Deutsche Bank has led to others voicing their concerns about the destabilizing effect of CoCos on both the CoCo price and the share price. Based on these concerns, an oppose vote is recommended. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Executive Chair.

The Chair holds an executive role, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters.

1A. Re-elect Christopher M. Burley - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee and Member of the CG&N Committee.

This director is a non-independent member of the Audit Committee. As a result, the audit committee is not fully independent, which does not comply with Camden guidelines.

This director is a non-independent member of the Corporate Governance and Nominating Committee. It is important that this committee be exclusively comprised of independent directors in order to ensure an equitable and unprejudiced appointment process. Does not meet Camden guidelines. The proposed auditor is not independent, and the chair of the Audit Committee holds accountability for this.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1B. Re-elect Maura Clark - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and Member of the HR&C Committee.

This director is a non-independent member of the Non-Executive Director and Member of the HR&C Committee. It is considered that this committee should be exclusively comprised of independent directors.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

1C. Re-elect Russell K. Girling - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board. The Chair is not considered to be independent due to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

ALLFUNDS GROUP PLC AGM - 07-05-20253. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration policy. The payout is in line with best practice, being under 200% of the fixed salary. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Re-elect Zita Saurel - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director. Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: Nominated by LHC3 Limited, ultimately jointly controlled by Hellman & Friedman LLC and its affiliates, which holds 35.4% of the shares in the Company in accordance with the provisions of the relationship agreement signed on 16 April 2021 between the Company and its then shareholders (the Relationship Agreement).

This director is a non-independent member of the Remuneration, Appointments and Governance Committee. It is important that this committee be exclusively comprised of independent directors in order to ensure an equitable and unprejudiced appointment process. Does not meet Camden guidelines.

7. Re-elect Lisa Dolly - Vice Chair (Non Executive)

Independent Vice Chair of the Board & Chair of the Remuneration, Appointments and Governance Committee.

The director chairs a committee that is not fully independent, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

PIRC Issue: The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Remuneration, Appointments and Governance Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

10. Authorise Share Repurchase

The Share Buyback authority is limited to 10% of the company's share capital, but it exceeds the 18-month duration. While the percentage limit is within acceptable bounds, the extended time frame raises concerns about long-term shareholder value and potential market impact. This extended period could lead to excessive buybacks beyond the intended scope, which is not in line with standard practices. Given the duration exceeds the typical 18-month limit, opposition is recommended. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

3. Approve Remuneration Policy

Changes proposed: i) Increase on the maximum opportunity for the Annual Bonus to 250% of the salary for the CEO and 200% of the salary for the CFO, ii) Introduction of a hybrid LTIP structure, combining existing performance share awards with new restricted shares and iii) Increase of the CFO LTIP award maximum opportunity to 250% of the salary from 200% of the salary.

Total variable pay could reach 475% of the salary for the CEO and 385.7% of the salary for the CFO. Annual Bonus, if an Executive Director does not meet their shareholding guideline, 50% of any bonus will be deferred into shares, typically for a period of three years. This is not considered adequate it would be preferable 50% of the Bonus to be paid in cash and 50% to defer to shares for at least three years. On LTIP awards there are no non-financial performance measures attached to the LTIP and so the focus of remuneration policy is not the operational performance of the business as a whole or the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Instead, the focus of the remuneration policy is financial KPIs, which mainly include factors beyond an individual director's control. Performance period is three years which is not consider sufficient long-term, however, a two-year holding period applies which is welcomed. Dividends may accrue on vesting awards from the date of grant. Such rewards misalign shareholders and executive interests as shareholders must subscribe for shares in order to receive dividends whereas participants in the scheme do not. Malus and clawback provisions apply.

4.1.i. Elect Joerg Wolle - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board, Member of the Audit Committee and Member of the Nomination and Compensation Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent he is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder, Kuehne Holding AG. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Additionally, it is considered that the Audit Committee and the Nomination and Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

4.3.a. Elect Remuneration Committee Member: Karl Gernandt

Non-Executive Director, candidate to the Remuneration Committee on this resolution. Not considered independent he served in an executive position for the Company until 3rd May 2016. Mr. Gernandt was elected at the EGM held in December 2008 to replace Mr. Kühne as Delegate to the Board. He is also Executive Chairman of the Kuehne Holding AG, which holds a significant percentage of the Company's issued share capital. Furthermore the director is not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that the Remuneration Committee should consist exclusively of independent members. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

6. Approve the Remuneration Report

It is proposed to approve the implementation of the remuneration report. The payout is in line with best practice, under 200% of the fixed salary. However, the Company has not fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. Although a common practice in this market as this is deemed to be sensitive information, it prevents an accurate assessment and may lead to overpayment against underperformance. In addition, there are no claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration component which makes it unlikely that shareholders will be able to reclaim any variable remuneration unfairly paid out.

REGENCY CENTERS CORPORATION AGM - 07-05-2025

1a.. Re-elect Martin E. Stein Jr. - Chair (Executive)

Executive Chair.

Chair of the Board. The Chair holds an executive role, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. 7.. Shareholder Resolution: DEI Practices for Contractors

Proponent Shareholder: Bowyer Research, Inc. on behalf of David Bahnsen, Trustee of the Bahnsen Family Trust

Proponent's argument: The resolution calls for a report assessing the potential risks associated with Gilead Sciences' Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) requirements for contractors, including the risk of discrimination based on race, religion, sex, political views, or other protected characteristics. The proponent argues that current supplier policies may compel vendors to adopt ideological or politically charged DEI initiatives, which could expose the Company to legal and reputational risk. Citing concerns raised by recent court rulings and federal legal trends, the proposal suggests that Gilead's DEI linked procurement expectations may be legally vulnerable, particularly in light of heightened scrutiny around race and belief based contracting. It also references declining public support for corporate involvement in social policy issues, along with examples of companies withdrawing or scaling back DEI efforts. The proposal claims that existing policies may violate civil liberties and inhibit viewpoint diversity and calls for enhanced transparency regarding how such DEI expectations are communicated and enforced in the supplier selection process. The requested report would help determine whether these practices expose Gilead to unnecessary legal or reputational risk.

Company's Response : Gilead's Board recommends voting against the proposal, stating that the company already operates under a strong legal compliance framework and equitable procurement policies. The Company emphasises that its supplier selection process is competitive and inclusive, but not discriminatory. While the Company aims to expand access to diverse suppliers, it does not mandate participation in DEI programs as a prerequisite for selection, nor does it engage in unlawful discrimination. Gilead argues that supplier diversity supports innovation, resilience, and alignment with the Company's broader health equity mission. Furthermore, the Company points to its enterprise wide risk management system, which includes oversight by the Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee and regular reporting to the Board on relevant legal and ESG risks. Given these existing structures, Gilead maintains that the requested evaluation would add limited value while unnecessarily diverting resources. The Board concludes that the proposal is duplicative of existing practices and is not in the best interest of shareholders or the Company.

PIRC analysis: The potential benefits of supplier diversity lie in widening perspectives across the value chain, strengthening innovation, and building resilience in operations. Encouraging participation from a broad spectrum of vendors helps companies reflect the complexity of their customer base and the societies in which they operate. Transparency over such practices allows shareholders to assess how inclusion is embedded into the company's long-term business model. However, this resolution appears to have been filed by actors affiliated with right-wing advocacy networks and seems designed less to promote meaningful oversight than to challenge the legitimacy of corporate diversity frameworks. The proposal emphasises speculative legal and reputational risks while ignoring the strategic rationale and legal compliance underpinning current inclusion practices. It is framed around political objections to DEI and reflects a broader effort to discourage corporate engagement in diversity and inclusion under the guise of protecting civil liberties.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

16. Approve the Company's Long-Term Incentive Plan 2025

It is proposed to the shareholders to approve the Long-Term Incentive Plan of the Company. Under the plan all employees (including Executive Directors) of the Company and its group are eligible to participate in the Plan. 3 Types of share awards that may be granted Share awards under the Plans ("Awards") may take the form of a conditional right to receive shares ("Shares") in the Company (a Conditional Award), an option to acquire Shares at an exercise price set by the Committee at grant (which may be nil) (an Option) or in such other form which the Committee may determine as economically equivalent. Under each of the Plans, any Award granted to an Executive Director shall not exceed any limit set out in the Company's Directors' Remuneration Policy applicable at the time of grant. In any 10-year period, the number of Shares issued or issuable under the Plans and under any other employees' share plan adopted by the Company must not exceed 10% of the issued Share capital of the Company from time to time. Awards under the LTIP will normally vest over a period set by the Committee at grant and only to the extent that any conditions (which may or may not be linked to performance) set by the Committee at grant have been met. However, Awards granted to Executive Directors will always be subject to performance conditions to the extent required by the Directors' Remuneration Policy, and the vesting period of Awards granted to Executive Directors will be set in accordance with the Directors' Remuneration Policy. Currently, this means Awards under the LTIP will be granted subject to a three-year performance period followed by a two-year post-vesting holding period, and Awards under the BSP will be subject to a deferral period of three years. LTIP Awards may also be granted subject to a post-vesting holding period. During a holding period, the participant cannot normally sell or transfer any Shares received on vesting, except to cover tax and in other limited circumstances such as in connection with certain corporate events. The Committee also has discretion to implement a holding period through other means, including by delaying delivery of the Shares in respect of which the Award has vested until the end of the holding period. Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans which have the participation of Executive Directors. On balance It is recommended that Camden oppose.

17. Approve Mondi plc Bonus Share Plan 2025

It is proposed to the shareholders to approve the Company's Bonus Share Plan. An Award may be granted on the basis that the number of Shares in respect of which the Award vests will be increased to take account of dividends paid between grant and vesting on the number of Shares which vest. The basis for calculating dividend equivalents will be determined by the Committee and may assume notional re-investment of the dividends. Dividend equivalents may be paid in Shares or in cash and may take account of special dividends and/or dividends paid during a holding period if the Committee so determines. In line with the current Directors' Remuneration Policy, the dividend equivalents paid to Executive Directors will be delivered in shares. Under these provisions, the Committee can: i) reduce the number of Shares in respect of which an Award would otherwise vest ("malus"); and/or ii) clawback Shares or cash received by a participant on vesting or exercise ("clawback"). Clawback may be applied within six years from the date on which the Award is made (or three years from payment in the case of a cash bonus payment under the BSP), or such other period as the Committee may determine. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

20. Authorise Share Repurchase

The Share Buyback authority is limited to 5% of the company's share capital and cannot exceed 18 months. This ensures the buyback remains within a reasonable scope. The time frame and percentage limit align with standard best practices and provide a clear structure for shareholder benefit. It is noted that the proposed resolution in the 2024 Annual General Meeting received significant opposition of 11.82% of the votes, and the Company did not disclosed information as to how address the issue with its shareholders. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

CRH PLC AGM - 08-05-2025

1g. Elect Lamar McKay - Senior Independent Director

Senior Independent Non-Executive Director. Chair of the Remuneration committee. It is considered that the Chair of the Remuneration Committee is responsible for the company's remuneration report, and owing to concerns with the company's remuneration report, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

2. Consideration of Named Executive Officer Compensation for 2024 ("Say-on-Pay")

It is proposed to approve the annual report on remuneration of Executive and Non-Executive directors with an advisory vote. There are excessiveness concerns as the total variable remuneration exceeded 200% of the salary for the highest paid director. The Company has fully disclosed quantified targets against which the achievements and the corresponding variable remuneration has been calculated. There are claw back clauses in place over the entirety of the variable remuneration, which is welcomed. However, opposition is recommended based on excessive remuneration.

Vote Cast: Oppose

4. Approval of the CRH plc Equity Incentive Plan

CRH is proposing a new Equity Incentive Plan to replace its expired 2014 plan, allowing for the issuance of up to 15 million ordinary shares to employees, consultants, and non-management Directors. The plan includes features such as no liberal share recycling, clawback provisions, no dividends on unvested awards, and fair market value pricing for options. It sets a $950,000 annual cap on non-management Director compensation and will be administered by the Compensation Committee. The plan allows for different types of awards, including performance share units, which are based on achieving specific performance goals. While non-management directors may receive equity awards, there is no explicit statement confirming that their awards will be performance-based equity, such as PSUs. It is considered that non-executive directors should receive only fixed fees and not any performance based equity awards. Furthermore, the exact performance conditions for the executive directors under this equity plan have not been described. Based on this, opposition is recommended.

5a. Ratification of Appointment of Deloitte U.S. as Auditor

Deloitte proposed. No non-audit fees were paid to the auditors in the past three years. This approach is commended. The current auditor has been in place for more than five years and there are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

Vote Cast: Oppose

6. Issue Shares for Cash

Proposal 6 seeks shareholder approval to renew the CRH Board's authority to issue shares up to approximately 20% of the issued ordinary share capital as of February 13, 2025. This is a routine authorization under Irish law, necessary for any issuance of shares from authorized but unissued capital. The Board currently has no plans to issue shares, except in connection with equity compensation plans. Any issuance exceeding 20% would require separate shareholder approval. Authority is sought to issue shares without pre-emptive rights to an amount of more than 10% of the share capital, which is deemed excessive. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

7. Disapplication of Pre-emption Rights

Proposal 7 seeks shareholder approval to renew the CRH Board's authority to issue shares for cash without first offering them to existing shareholders, disapplying the statutory pre-emption rights under Irish law. This authority would apply to shares up to 20% of the issued share capital and aligns with common practice among Irish-incorporated U.S. public companies. It enables the Board to issue shares more efficiently, for example, to fund acquisitions or support equity compensation plans, without delays caused by pro-rata offerings. Approval requires a 75% majority of votes cast, and the authority would expire at the 2026 AGM or on November 7, 2026, whichever comes first.

Allowing shares to be issued to new investors without offering them first to existing shareholders can dilute existing ownership. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

10. Amendments to Articles re: Advance Notice Provisions and Requirements for Shareholder Proposals

Proposal 10 seeks shareholder approval to amend CRH's Articles of Association to clarify and modernize the advance notice requirements for shareholder proposals and director nominations. The current rule allows nominations only 7 to 21 days before the AGM, which provides limited time for review and voting. The proposed amendment aligns with U.S. market standards and requires notice to be submitted no earlier than 120 days and no later than 90 days before the anniversary of the prior year's AGM (or within 10 days of notice in certain other cases). It also introduces detailed information and certification requirements for shareholder submissions, enabling more robust evaluation of proposals and nominees. This change supports transparency, consistency with U.S. regulations, and more effective corporate governance. Approval requires at least 75% of votes cast.

Extending the notice period gives shareholders and the Board more time to assess nominees or proposals, leading to more informed decision-making. However, the new requirements may make it harder for smaller or activist shareholders to submit proposals or nominate directors, possibly limiting shareholder influence. Although structured, the Board retains discretion over whether proposals meet the standards-this could concentrate more power with management. It is considered that the proposed amendments may have an adverse effect on shareholder rights. Therefore, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

12. Amendments to Articles re: Granting the Board Authority to Set the Limit on Directors' Fees and Certain Administrative Amendments.

Proposal 12 seeks shareholder approval for amendments to the Articles of CRH plc to allow the Board of Directors rather than shareholders at general meetings to set the limit on fees payable to non-management Directors. This change is intended to give the Board flexibility to adjust fees based on business needs regulatory context and competitive benchmarks. The proposal aligns CRH's practices with those of other US public companies and integrates fee caps included in the new Equity Incentive Plan if approved. Additionally the proposal includes administrative updates to the Articles such as replacing references to Chairman with Chair enabling general meetings outside Ireland or via technology removing outdated references linked to the company's delisting from Euronext Dublin and correcting cross-references and outdated provisions following its migration from Euroclear to DTC. The Board states that none of these changes will materially affect shareholder rights.

It is considered that shareholders should retain the right to set the limit on Director fees. As such it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board.

4.. Amend Articles: Liability of Certain Officers

It is proposed that the Restated Certificate of Incorporation of the company, is amended, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding officer exculpation]. The Board seeks authority to amend the articles, to reflect new Delaware law provisions regarding the exculpation of officers. Article VII of the Company's Certificate of Incorporation (Certificate) currently provides for the Company to limit the monetary liability of directors in certain circumstances pursuant to and consistent with the Delaware General Corporation Law (DGCL). The State of Delaware recently amended Section 102(b)(7) of the DGCL to allow Delaware corporations to extend similar protections to officers. Specifically, the amendments to the DGCL allow Delaware corporations to exculpate their officers for personal liability for breaches of the duty of care in certain circumstances.

While efforts to align executive and non-executive liabilities and harmonize corporate articles are acknowledged, decisions taken by executives, may cause significant higher losses compared to those taken by directors. While officers remain liable for lack of fiduciary duty due to wrongful actions committed wilfully, they would nevertheless be exculpated against direct actions, such as class actions. Shareholders could still act via derivative lawsuits, which are however more complex and less lucrative legal avenue since shareholders would bring an action in the name of the corporation and not in the name of shareholders. This could potentially dissuading shareholders from pursuing actions and entrench poorly performing officers.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Changes proposed: i) Increase of the maximum opportunity for the Annual Bonus from 200% of the salary to 300% of the salary, ii) Increase of the maximum opportunity for the LTIP award from 500% of the salary to 800% of the salary for the CEO and from 300% of the salary to 500% of the salary for the CFO and iii) Increase of the shareholding guidelines from 500% for the CEO and 300% for the CFO to 1000% for the CEO and 400% for the CFO.

The LTIP scheme is the use of non-financial performance metrics as a means of assessing individual performance. The use of non-financial conditions enables the policy to focus on the operational performance of the business as a whole as well as the individual roles of each of the executives in achieving that performance. Maximum potential awards for both the Annual Bonus and LTIP are clearly stated. Vesting scales are considered to be sufficiently broad and geared towards better performance. Total potential awards capable of vesting under the policy exceed the recommended threshold of 200% of the highest paid Director's base salary. Directors are required to build a holding equivalent to at least 200% of salary, over a period of no more than five years. It is considered that a shareholding policy aligns the interests of the Executive to that of the shareholder. The Annual Bonus is deferred. Claw-back provisions are attached to the annual bonus. The deferral period attached to the Annual Bonus is in line with best practice as half of the bonus is deferred in shares over at least two years. The performance period for the LTIP is less than five years and is therefore not considered sufficiently long-term. Claw-back provisions are in place over long-term incentive plans. However, recipients of the award are required to hold their vested shares for at least a further two years, which is welcomed

1k.. Re-elect Martin J. Lyons, Jr. - Chair & Chief Executive

Chair and CEO. Combined roles at the head of the Company. There should be a clear division of responsibilities at the head of the Company between the running of the board and the executive responsibility for the running of the Company's business. No one individual should have unfettered powers of decision. Combining the two roles in one person represents a concentration of power that is potentially detrimental to board balance, effective debate, and board appraisal.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters.

Based on PIRC's overall assessment of transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Black, indicating that it falls short on one of PIRC's most basic expectations. 5.. Shareholder Resolution: Risks Arising From Voluntary Carbon-Reduction Commitments

Proponent's argument: The proponent requests that UPS produce a report analysing the risks arising from its voluntary carbon-reduction commitments, especially relating to Scope 1, 2, and 3 greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions. The proposal argues that such voluntary climate-related disclosures expose the company to potential regulatory, legal, and reputational risks, especially in light of increased enforcement activity by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) targeting ESG-related disclosures. It asserts that Scope 3 emissions, in particular, are complex and external to the company's direct operations, making their inclusion in voluntary commitments problematic. It references enforcement actions against investment firms over ESG misrepresentations and argues that UPS's reporting lacks clarity regarding the technological or financial feasibility of meeting its long-term sustainability goals. The proposal notes that there is no global scientific consensus supporting the feasibility of achieving net zero emissions by 2050, citing a 2023 report by the Global Climate Intelligence Group which claims there is "no climate emergency." Citing the risk of "greenwashing," the proponent urges UPS to exercise greater caution and transparency in setting and communicating environmental targets. A vote for the resolution is encouraged to protect shareholder value from ESG-related liabilities and regulatory scrutiny.

Company's Response: The Board recommends voting against the proposal, stating that UPS already provides comprehensive, transparent sustainability disclosures through numerous channels, including its annual sustainability report and reports aligned with frameworks such as the Global Reporting Initiative (GRI) and CDP. UPS asserts that it does not have a net-zero goal but aims to be carbon neutral by 2050. The company argues that its emission-reduction strategy is grounded in fiscal responsibility and sound engineering principles and that its goals are operationalised through initiatives such as fleet electrification, renewable fuels, and network innovation. Oversight is provided through multiple independent board committees including the Risk Committee and Nominating and Corporate Governance Committee. The company notes its approach includes robust internal controls, third-party assurance on sustainability disclosures, and stakeholder engagement to address progress and risks. UPS contends that the requested report would duplicate existing disclosures and impose an unnecessary burden without providing additional meaningful insights. It reaffirms its commitment to long-term value creation and sound environmental strategy management and concludes that its current approach is sufficient to meet stakeholder expectations and regulatory standards. Accordingly, the Board believes the proposal is unnecessary and recommends a vote against it.

PIRC analysis: The requested disclosure on the risks arising from voluntary carbon-reduction commitments appears to be a spoiler resolution designed to pre-empt or discourage shareholders from filing resolutions aligned with net-zero or emissions-reduction objectives. While framed as a call for transparency, the proposal emphasises executive caution over decarbonisation efforts, with the apparent intent of introducing skepticism toward corporate climate goals. Rather than supporting accountability and alignment between stated commitments and operational practices, the resolution focuses on undermining the rationale for voluntary targets by casting doubt on the feasibility or legitimacy of climate science. The proposal does not support transparency over climate-related risks in a constructive manner and risks distracting from legitimate concerns around the financial and reputational consequences of climate inaction. Furthermore, the company's existing disclosures on emissions reductions and climate-related risks already provide shareholders with a basis to assess progress and alignment. Therefore, the proposal is not considered to be in the interests of long-term shareholders or aligned with broader stakeholder expectations regarding climate action. Opposition is recommended. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

3. Approve Remuneration Policy

There have been some minor amendments to the Remuneration Policy proposed at this year's AGM, however, the Committee believes that the current Policy remains fit for purpose and supports the updated strategy. Therefore there are no structural changes to the Policy. Minor changes have been made to the Policy to clarify its intentions. The maximum variable pay for the Executive Directors is not defined wholly as a percentage of the salary, however, the Annual Bonus alone can reach up to 428% of the fixed salary, which is deemed excessive in itself when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 200%. In addition to this, up to 300,000 options and 150,000 shares can be awarded for the LTIP in exceptional circumstances, which raises further concerns around excessiveness. One-third of the annual bonus may defer into shares for a period of three years. It would be considered best practise for at least half of the bonus to defer for this period. The potential performance period of three years for the LTIP is considered overly short term, however, a two-year holding period also applies post vesting, which is welcomed. Also welcomed is the inclusion of non-financial performance metrics for the LTIP. Malus and clawback apply to all aspects of the variable pay.

GREAT-WEST LIFECO INC AGM - 08-05-2025

1.05. Re-Elect Marcel R. Coutu - Non-Executive Director

Non-executive Director, member of the Governance and Nominating Committee and member of the Human Resources Committee.
Not considered to be independent as the director has a cross directorship with other directors; Mr. Coutu is a director at Power Corporation of Canada, where Claude Genereux, Jake P. Lawrence, and R. Jeffrey Orr hold executive positions. Also not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. Both these committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members under Camden guidelines.
It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1.06. Re-Elect André Desmarais - Non-Executive Director

Non-executive Director, member of the Governance and Nominating Committee and member of the Human Resources Committee.
Not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder; the director is Deputy Chair of Power Corporation of Canada, having served as the President and Co-CEO from 1996 to 2020. He is also a trustee of the Desmarais Family Residuary Trust, which has voting control over Power Corporation, which in turn has voting control over the Company. Both these committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members under Camden guidelines.

1.09. Re-Elect CClaude G  n  reux - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Human Resources Committee. Not considered to be independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder; the director is the Executive Vice-President of Power Corporation. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Human Resources Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. The director holds an executive position at another public listed company, Power Corporation. This arrangement may compromise their ability to devote sufficient attention and impartiality to their duties within the current organization, ultimately undermining effective governance and decision-making. Furthermore, it is considered that the Chair of the Human Resources Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation, and there are concerns with the company's executive compensation.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

1.14. Re-Elect R. Jeffrey Orr - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board, Chair of the Governance and Nominating Committee and member of the Human Resources Committee.

The Chair is not considered to be independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder; the director is the President and CEO of Power Corporation of Canada. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.

The director chairs a committee that is not fully independent, which does not meet Camden guidelines. The Governance and Nominating Committee and the Human Resources Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

PIRC Issue: The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Governance and Nominating Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall.

05. Amend Existing Long Term Incentive Plan

The Board proposes the approval of a new incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded options or rights to receive shares, which will start vesting after three years from the date of award. At this time, it seems that this plan will not be based on any performance criteria but only on the beneficiaries continued employment. As a result, they may receive bonuses unrelated to their performance or even the performance of the Company as a whole, which is considered a serious frustration of shareholder accountability.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

4.. Vote to approve the DTE Energy Company 2025 Long-Term Incentive Plan

It is proposed to approve a restricted share plan for employees and corporate officers. The Board would receive the authority to set beneficiaries and other conditions. After allotment, shares will be restricted for three years, which is not considered to be sufficiently long term. The Company states that exercise of shares will be based on targets, which at this time remain undisclosed.

Plans to increase employee shareholding are considered to be a positive governance practice, as they can contribute to alignment between employees and shareholders. On the other hand, executives are also among the beneficiaries: it is considered that support should not be given to stock or share option plans that do not lay out clear performance criteria, targets and conditions.

1d.. Re-elect Ann Fritz Hackett - Lead Independent Director

Lead Independent Director, Chair of the Governance and Nominating Committee and Member of the Compensation Committee. Not considered independent due to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that a Lead Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role. Also, in terms of best practice, it is considered that the Governance and Nominating and Compensation Committees should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Furthermore, at this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the Chair of Governance and Nominating Committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.

The articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters.

Based on PIRC's overall assessment of the company's transition planning and climate governance capabilities, the company was rated Red, indicating that it falls significantly short of PIRC's expectations. In particular, the company has failed to set emissions targets covering all relevant emissions scopes. As such, it is recommended to oppose the re-election of the chair of the board.

FRANCO-NEVADA CORPORATION AGM - 08-05-2025

1.01. Re-Elect David Harquail - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board.

The Chair is not considered to be independent as the director was previously employed by the Company as CEO. Also not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1.03. Re-Elect Tom Albanese - Lead Independent Director

Lead Independent Director and member of the Compensation and ESG Committee.

Not considered independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. It is considered that a Lead Independent Director should be independent, in order to fulfil the responsibilities assigned to that role, irrespective of the level of independence of the Board.

It is considered that the Compensation and ESG Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members under Camden guidelines.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1.05. Re-Elect Derek W. Evans - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Compensation and ESG Committee.

Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. The director chairs a committee that is not fully independent, which does not meet Camden guidelines. The Compensation and ESG Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair, under Camden guidelines.

PIRC Issue: The level of gender diversity on the board is below 33%, which does not align with best practices for diverse board representation. Given the Compensation and ESG Committee's responsibility for board composition and diversity oversight, the Chair of the Committee bears accountability for this shortfall. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

MAGNA INTERNATIONAL INC AGM - 08-05-2025

1F. Elect Robert F. MacLellan - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board, member of the Audit Committee. The Chair is not considered independent as the director is considered to be connected with a significant shareholder: T. Rowe Price Group, Inc. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. Similarly, it is considered that the Audit Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members.

Furthermore, the articles of association include provisions allowing for the convening of virtual-only meetings. The decision to remove the ability for shareholders to attend meetings in person is significant and could potentially limit shareholder engagement and transparency. Virtual-only meetings may restrict the ability of shareholders to effectively participate, ask questions, and engage with company management and the board. Shareholders should carefully consider the implications of such amendments and advocate for practices that uphold shareholder rights and promote transparency in corporate governance. We welcome the possibility of hybrid meetings as a way to increase participation and transparency, however virtual-only meetings should not be used lightly and should be restricted only to cases where in-person attendance is impossible due to public health crisis or natural disasters. Without a clear justification, we recommend opposing the Chair of the Board. It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1G. Elect Mary Lou Maher - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee.

Chair of the Audit Committee. The director chairs a committee which is not fully independent which does not meet Camden guidelines. The proposed auditor is not independent, and the chair of the Audit Committee holds accountability for this.

Vote Cast: Oppose

1I. Elect Indira V. Samarasekera - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Talent Oversight and Compensation Committee. Not considered to be independent owing to a tenure of over nine years. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Talent Oversight and Compensation Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair. Furthermore, it is considered that the Chair of the Talent Oversight and Compensation Committee is responsible for the company's executive compensation, and owing to concerns with the company's executive compensation, opposition is recommended.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

02. Appoint the Auditors and Allow the Board to Determine their Remuneration

Deloitte proposed. Non-audit fees represented 10.86% of audit fees during the year under review and 9.67% on a three-year aggregate basis. This level of non-audit fees does not raise serious concerns about the independence of the statutory auditor. The current auditor has been in place for more than ten years. There are concerns that failure to regularly rotate the audit firm can compromise the independence of the auditor.

Vote Cast: Oppose

03. Approve New Executive Share Option Plan

The Board proposes the approval of a new incentive plan. Under the plan, the CEO and other executives will be awarded options or rights to receive shares, which will start vesting after three years from the date of award. At this time, it seems that this plan will not be based on any performance criteria but only on the beneficiaries continued employment. As a result, they may receive bonuses unrelated to their performance or even the performance of the Company as a whole, which is considered a serious frustration of shareholder accountability. Opposition is recommended.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

ANTOFAGASTA PLC AGM - 08-05-2025

1. Receive the Annual Report

The annual report was made available sufficiently before the meeting and has been audited and certified.

There are concerns regarding the company's sustainability policies and practices. The annual report and financial statements may not accurately reflect the material and financial impact of non-traditional financial risks, including the lack of board-level accountability for sustainability issues. These concerns should have been addressed in the annual report submitted to shareholders; however, the report fails to do so adequately. Camden is recommended to oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 99.7, Abstain: 0.3, Oppose/Withhold: 0.0,

2. Approve the Remuneration Report

Awards granted to Directors under the Company's variable remuneration schemes are considered excessive as they exceeded 200% of base salary during the year under review. The CEO's salary is below the upper and lower quartile of a peer comparator group. The ratio of CEO pay compared to that of the average employee exceeds the recommended limit of 20:1 and is therefore not considered appropriate.

Rating: AE

Based on this rating it is recommended that Camden oppose.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 96.5, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 3.5,

4. Re-elect Jean-Paul Luksic - Chair (Non Executive)

Non-Executive Chair of the Board and Chair of the Nomination Committee. The Chair is not considered to be independent as Mr J-P Luksic was Chief Executive Officer of Antofagasta Minerals S.A. The Luksic family is interested in two investment vehicles that control a majority share of the voting rights of the company, Metalinvest Establishment and Kupferberg Establishment. It is a generally accepted norm of good practice that a Chair of the Board should act with a proper degree of independence from the Company's management team when exercising his or her oversight of the functioning of the Board. Being a non-independent Chair is considered to be incompatible with this. In terms of best practice, it is considered that the Nomination Committee should be comprised exclusively of independent members, including the chair.

It is recommended that Camden oppose.

Results: For: 92.7, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 7.3,

5. Re-elect Francisca Castro - Senior Independent Director

Senior Independent Director and Remuneration Committee Chair.

There are serious concerns regarding the remuneration policy at the company, and it is considered that the chair of the Remuneration Committee should be held accountable for it when considering re-election.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 99.0, Abstain: 0.0, Oppose/Withhold: 1.0,

11. Re-elect María Eugenia Parot - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director and Chair of the Sustainability Committee.

Chair of the Sustainability Committee. As the Chair of the Sustainability Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended. The Sustainability Committee is not fully independent, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 99.8, Abstain: 0.1, Oppose/Withhold: 0.1,

14. Elect as director any person appointed by the Board after 25 March 2025 but prior to the meeting

It is proposed to elect to the Board any person appointed by the Board after 25 March 2025 but prior to the upcoming meeting. The Board notes that it is considering appointing an additional independent, non-executive director to the Board and that the appointment may take place prior to the upcoming meeting. Therefore, if the appointment takes place before the AGM, the AGM will be asked to consider and, if thought fit, approve a resolution for the re-election of that person. As no candidate has yet been proposed at the time of writing, it is recommended that Camden oppose.

1.4. Elect Leslie S. Heisz - Non-Executive Director

Independent Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Audit Committee.

The director chairs a committee which is not fully independent which does not meet Camden guidelines. The proposed auditor is not independent, and the chair of the Audit Committee holds accountability for this.

Vote Cast: Oppose

Results: For: 98.2, Abstain: 0.5, Oppose/Withhold: 1.3,

1.5. Elect Paul A. LaViolette - Non-Executive Director

Non-Executive Director, Chair of the Compensation and Governance Committee.

The director chairs a committee that is not fully independent, which does not meet Camden guidelines.

Furthermore, the ratio of CEO, or the highest paid executive officer, to employee pay of the company is greater than 150:1, this does not meet Camden's guidelines.

Lastly, as the Chair of the Compensation and Governance Committee is considered to be accountable for the Company's sustainability programme, and given the concerns over the Company's sustainability policies and practice, an oppose vote is recommended.

It is recommended that Camden oppose. At this time, individual attendance record at board and committee meetings is not disclosed. This prevents shareholders from making an informed assessment on the fulfilment of fiduciary duties and the time that directors commit to the company. It is considered that the chair of nomination committee be responsible for inaction in terms of lack of disclosure.

OSB GROUP PLC AGM - 08-05-2025

2. Approve the Remuneration Report

Disclosure: All elements of the Single Total Remuneration Table are adequately disclosed. The CEO did not receive a salary increase in the year under review, while the wider workforce saw an average increase of 2%. The CEO's salary is in the upper quartile of PIRC's comparator group, raising some concerns about excessiveness.

Balance: The CEO's total variable pay for the year under review was 54.06% of the fixed salary, which is well within guidelines. The CEO's pay ratio is 27:1, which is deemed somewhat excessive when compared to the maximum recommended limit of 20:1.

17. Authorize Issue of Equity in Relation to the Issue of Regulatory Capital Convertible Instruments

The use of Regulatory Capital Convertible Instrument is not considered appropriate as they put investors at significant risk of dilution in the event that conversion occurs. They are relatively new instruments and there are concerns that they may create a situation which whilst converting some debt to equity actually disincentives equity investors from putting more new funds in the banks via rights issues, due to the dilutive effect of the conversion taking away much, or some, of the premium that would ordinarily accrue to shareholders. There are important concerns about the destabilizing effect of such instruments on both the instrument price and the share price.
